RAINEY BACKED BY ROOSEVELT; SEEN SPEAKER

Job Is Believed Clinched by President-Elect's Indorsement.

UTILITY AND POWER VIEWS POINTED OUT

Favor Is Regarded as Having Put End to Ambitions of McDuffie.

By J. BERNARD McDONNELL.

Forced, in self-defense, to take a hand in the fight over the job of Speaker of the next House, President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt is regarded by astute political observers as having just about clinched the election of Representative Henry T. Rainey, of Illinois, to that powerful post.

Apparently embarrassed by reports that he favored election of Representative John McDuffie, of Alabama, as next Speaker, the President-elect has authorized Representative Adolph J. Sabath, of Illinois, to say unequivocally that such reports are unfounded and were spread without his approval or authorization.

Although the action taken by Mr. Roosevelt is, on the surface, a purely negative one, it was regarded by many as having just about put an end to the ambitions of Mr. McDuffie, in whose behalf "persons close to the President-elect" have waged an energetic campaign both through the newspapers and at first hand in various places through the country. The campaign was designed to picture Mr. McDuffie as the one man in the House Mr. Roosevelt could and would like to work with as Speaker.

Boosted By Jackson.

Robert Jackson, secretary of the Democratic national committee and committeeman from New Hampshire, has been the mainspring of the campaign to paint Representative McDuffie as the fair-haired boy who fills the eye of Mr. Roosevelt. Mr. Jackson was put into his job by the Roosevelt forces, but the assiduity with which he has mixed into the Speakership contest, as well as some other matters, seeking to give the impression he was the mouthpiece of the President-elect, already has marked him in the minds of several political observers as a likely candidate for the official ax.

Personalities have not become involved in the contest for the Speakership and Mr. Roosevelt's statement that he was not supporting Mr. McDuffie went no farther than that. Representative Sabath makes it plain that Mr. Roosevelt's statement did not involve opposition to the Alabaman.

The Roosevelt statement, however, came after friends of Mr. Rainey and Representative Joseph W. Byrns, of Tennessee, had expressed indignation and opponents of Mr. McDuffie had warned Mr. Roosevelt that such publicity might well afford the Republicans with future campaign material inasmuch as the President-elect and the forceful and likable Alabaman are on distinctly opposite sides of the Hearing of Alleged Rum 'King' Put Off

So-Called "Best Informer" Will Be Arraigned on January 13.

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 29.—A preliminary hearing for William Plummer, called by a prohibition official the "king of bootleggers in Calvert County and the best informer I ever had," who is charged with hijacking dry investigators in Calvert County last September, was postponed today until January 13.

The hearing was to have been held before J. Frank Supplee, United States commissioner, but was continued until next month at the request of the Government and of defense counsel.

Plummer, who was arrested on the orders of Simon E. Sobeloff, United States district attorney, following the sentencing of three other men, who pleaded guilty to the hijacking and who implicated Plummer, is being held in jail in default of $20,000 bail.

Bonds Gone

Chevy Chase, Md., Woman Reports Disappearance of $19,500 Package.

MRS. HENRIETTA PAGE FARRAR.

In checking her securities, Mrs. Henrietta Page Farrar, 7 West Underwood street, Chevy Chase, Md., Tuesday morning went to her bank and removed negotiable bonds amounting to $19,500 from her safety deposit box.

She took them home, and after checking them, dropped them in a desk drawer in the living room. Wednesday morning, she chanced to look in the desk drawer and found the bonds missing. At first she merely thought they had been removed by a member of the family, or else she had placed them in some other drawer. A search of the premises was started, but she did not become

DEMOCRATIC FIGHT ON DAVIS LOOMING

Some in Party Oppose Move to Make Him New Secretary of State.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

The activity shown by Norman Hezekiah Davis in consultation with President-elect Roosevelt at Albany ever since his return from Geneva, Paris and London, has given body to the rumor that the American disarmament delegate will be the Secretary of State in the new Cabinet. Political circles close to the incoming President are divided in their opinions, however, on the possibility of the Davis appointment.

On the one hand, Davis is perhaps the best-informed man in any party on the present state of Europe with regard to disarmament, war debts or the economic conference. He was the delegate of the United States to the General Disarmament Conference at London; he served again as codelegate with American Ambassador Sackett on the preparatory committee for the World Economic Conference. His extra-official activities in the problems of the war debts give him a sharper perspective of the probable reactions of European debtors than any other American could furnish at this time.

Yesterday Secretary Stimson went to New York to confer with Mr. Davis. This apparently indicates that the President-elect will use the Democratic banker to bridge the gap in the international political problems from one administration to the other.

However, he is not entirely persona gratissima to the stalwart Democratic

Leaking Schooner Will Be Towed In Five-Masted Ship, Bound for Baltimore, in Danger Off Carolina.

Cape Hatteras, N. C., Dec. 29 (A.P.). Leaking at the rate of 6 inches an hour, the five-masted schooner Edna Hoyt, of Boston, was in distress tonight off Diamond Shoals Lightship. A Coast Guard cutter from Norfolk, Va., was proceeding to the Edna Hoyt to tow her to Norfolk, Va.

The vessel is 30 days out of Venezuela, bound for Baltimore and New York with a cargo of fertilizer. She carries a crew of seven and Capt. R. W. Richardson.

A passing tanker wirelessed the schooner's condition to the Naval Compass Station here today and in a heavy sea the Coast Guard sent her aid.

O'CONNOR RAPS BRITISH CHARGE OF SHIP WASTE

Denies U. S. Taxpayers Mulcted to Provide Subsidies.

PUTS RATE SLASHING ONUS ON FOREIGNERS

Shipping Board's Chairman Aroused by Criticism of U. S. Ocean Policy.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

Long-smouldering commercial rivalry between American and British shipping interests was brought into the open last night when Chairman T. V. O'Connor, of the United States Shipping Board, publicly denounced recent attacks in London upon the American Government's shipping policy. Aroused by what he characterized as an unwarranted interference in the purely domestic affairs of the United States, Chairman O'Connor flatly challenged the recent statement of Sir Alan Anderson, a powerful figure in British shipping, that American taxpayers had been forced to contribute $3,000,000,000 to merchant marine subsidies since the World War.

"The fact is that the American taxpayer has spent nothing like $3,000,000,000 on ship subsidies in the past twelve years, or, for that matter, during the entire 150 years of the Nation's existence," Chairman O'Connor said.

Unsound Subsidies Charged.

In response to Sir Alan's charge that through unsound subsidies the American Government was "dumping shipping services" on the high seas at a time when approximately 14,000,000 tons of shipping is idle throughout the world, Mr. O'Connor pointed out that recent rate slashing has been most pronounced in those trades in which American bottoms are not considerable competitors.

"As for mail subventions," he continued, "they are calculated with a view merely to equalizing competitive conditions and can in no sense be considered as measures to stifle competition."

Chairman O'Connor's vigorous rejoinder to London aroused much interest on Capitol Hill, where the Senate appropriations committee now is delaying the Postoffice-Treasury annual supply bill awaiting a special report from Postmaster General Brown on the cost of ocean mail contracts last year. These figures, which it is anticipated will be presented to the committee next week, are expected to provide conclusive evidence concerning the subventions which recently have become the focal point of international discussion.

Sir Alan Anderson also charged in his statement that three American vessels recently placed in service between San Francisco and Australia, which had been built with aid from the Shipping Board's construction

2 Harvard Students Die as Plane Falls

Perish While Joy Riding When Craft Dives in Sea Off Nahant.

Nahant, Mass., Dec. 29 (A.P.).—Two Harvard students crashed to their death today in the waters a half mile off Bass Rocks here, while on a pleasure cruise from the East Boston Airport. Airport officials said they were Edward Mallinckrodt and Donald Frost.

Coast Guards from the Nahant base immediately put out to the wrecked plane after it was seen to fall from a low altitude. The first crew to reach the craft was unable to locate either of the victims and a larger crew was sent out. Eyewitnesses of the crash said the plane plunged, nose first, into the water.

Airport attaches said the young men left in the plane at approximately 4 o'clock and apparently headed north. The crash occurred shortly after at a spot 12 miles away.

MYSTERIOUS GUEST M'COIN CASE CLEW

Proprietor of Clear Springs Hotel Describes Strange Actions of Lodger.

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Dec. 29.—State, county and city police and relatives of R. S. McCoin, wealthy Henderson, N. C., attorney, missing since last Thursday, continued their search for additional clews, which they hope may lead them to the finding of the body. McCoin was reported to have been slain by one of four youths near Petersburg, Va., last Thursday afternoon and his body hidden in the vicinity of Hagerstown.

The first clew that might indicate McCoin's car was in Hagerstown was obtained by city detectives, who were told by two taxicab drivers that they saw a green Chrysler automobile answering the description of the McCoin car, bearing North Carolina license tags, parked in front of Hotel Alexander about 2 a. m. Friday.

The party of State, county, city officers and a nephew, H. C. Linthicum, of Raleigh, N. C., visited a number of roadhouses along the National highway west of here, and at one obtained a promising clew.

The proprietor of the Potomac House, a small hotel at Clear Springs, twelve miles west of here, said a young man carrying a brief case procured lodging there last Thursday night at 10 o'clock, did not register, as is the custom of guests, and left early the next morning before anyone else was up.

The investigating party continued on toward Cumberland this afternoon in the hope of finding additional in-

Ruth Judd Plea Denied By Arizona High Court

Phoenix, Ariz., Dec. 29 (U.P.).—The Arizona Supreme Court today denied the petition of Winnie Ruth Judd's attorneys to grant her a rehearing on its decision upholding her sentence to death.

The Supreme Court handed down its denial shortly after the State attorney general's motion, protesting the rehearing petition, was filed with the tribunal.

Private at Arizona Fort Killed After Shooting Fifth Victim.

Motive Behind Rampage Clouded; Lieutenant Will Recover.

Fort Huachuca, Ariz., Dec. 29 (A.P.). Capt. and Mrs. David A. Palmer and Capt. and Mrs. Joseph R. Wessely, of the Twenty-fifth Infantry, United States Army, were shot to death and Lieut. Harvie Matthews was injured seriously by a Negro private who ran amuck here today. The culprit was killed by the guard while in the act of shooting Lieut. Matthews.

The slayer was James H. Abernathy, 46, of the Quartermaster Corps. Officers said the reason for Abernathy's attacks had not been learned.

Capt. Wessely, post officials said, drove up to the Army gasoline service station, where Abernathy was in charge, to have his motor car serviced.

The Negro shot him down and then took the car, drove to Capt. Wessely's home and killed Mrs. Wessely.

His next stop was at the home of Capt. and Mrs. Palmer. He shot them to death.

Outside, he shot down Lieut. Matthews, wounding him seriously. As the officer fell, the military guard caught up with Abernathy, opened fire and killed him instantly.

Post officers, led in a preliminary inquiry by their commander, Lieut. Col. M. C. Tomlinson, expressed belief that Abernathy either became suddenly deranged and attacked Capt. Wessely without rational cause, or had been laboring under some fancied urge for revenge upon commissioned officers.

They believed Capt. Wessely scarce had time to suspect an attack before the soldier's first bullet toppled him from his car at the post gasoline station. He had halted to have his machine serviced.

In December, 1930, Abernathy, a sergeant at that time, was released to civil authorities of Cochise County

FAMILY WIPED OUT BY LOSER OF LEGACY

Studebaker's Chauffeur Kills Wife, Daughter and Self in Disappointment.

Chicago, Dec. 29 (A.P.).—The story of Peter Peterson and his wife and his daughter ended today in double murder and suicide.

It began 29 years ago when Peter went to work for Clement Studebaker, jr., as footman. Studebaker was one of the South Bend wagon-makers then.

As wagon-making turned to automobile manufacturing, Peter became the family chauffeur. He stayed at that job 21 years, long enough for Pauline, the daughter of Peter and Anna, to grow into a 20-year-old senior at Northwestern University with high scholastic standing.

Clement Studebaker, jr., of late a leader in public utilities, died. And in a will he left $5,000 to the faithful family chauffeur out of the wealth amassed from Studebaker motor cars and public utilities. But yesterday a later will was found, leaving Peter Peterson nothing.

Peter had grieved for his employer and counselor. He had brooded over loss of his life's investments. This will was the finish.

He walked into his daughter's bedroom this morning, placed a revolver at her temple and fired.

He walked to the sun parlor where his wife lay slumbering and sent a bullet into her temple.

Then he went methodically about the business of notifying those who should know, and making ready to die. He telephoned a niece and asked her to come in right away.

"Anna and Pauline are dead," he said. "I will be with them in a little while, too, Jennie, and I want you to take care of everything. I have left a note for you. Say goodby for me to your family." In the

Barcelona Reveals Spanish Rebel Plot

Bombs, Arms and Papers Found Baring Casero Conspiracy.

Barcelona, Spain, Dec. 29 (A.P.).—Police announced today the discovery of a revolutionary extremist plot with nation-wide ramifications and implicating numerous army officers and men which was scheduled to break some time in January with a general railroad strike.

The police said a quantity of bombs found this afternoon was connected with the plot.

They described the planned revolution as an anarcho-syndicalist rebellion headed by Juan Matias Casero, who was arrested in his lodgings, where the authorities reported finding a large quantity of bombs, rifles, short arms, thousands of rounds of ammunition and a metal box containing documents with detailed insurrection plans.

12,000 Japanese Move Against Chinese Rebels

Harbin, Manchuria (Friday), Dec. 30 (A.P.).—Twelve thousand picked Japanese troops are advancing along the eastern section of the Chinese-Eastern Railway with the purpose of wiping out an estimated 10,000 Chinese insurgents, most of whom are between Hailin and Pogrannichnaya, where they are in control of the railway.

The Japanese assert that if the expedition succeeds it will mean the elimination of insurgency from North Manchuria.

Captain of Rescue Vessel Describes Burning Tanker

Crew of Oil Ship Is Taken Off Safely as Heavy Volume of Flames and Smoke Interrupts First S O S Signal While Proceeding From Texas.

The following story of the burning at sea yesterday of the S. S. Doris Kellogg, American tanker, and the rescue of all members of the crew, was written by Capt. Rogers of the S. S. Delaware Sun, the rescue ship, and sent by wireless to the Associated Press:

By CAPT. BERT ROGERS.
(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

S. S. Delaware Sun, at Sea, Dec. 29. While proceeding to Marcus Hook from Smith Bluff, Tex., on Thursday, December 29, at 1:50 p. m., the S. S. Delaware Sun sighted the S. S. Doris Kellogg of the Kellogg Steamship Co. with home office in New York, ablaze with a heavy volume of smoke arising from her after-section. This was sighted by the second officer, Mr. Edwin Morris, who immediately notified the commander.

The course was changed and the Delaware Sun headed for the stricken vessel, which was observed flying distress signals. The Coast Guard cutter Yamacraw was notified by radio of the scene of the disaster.

The Delaware Sun arrived and stood by the Doris Kellogg. All lifeboats had been lowered and with all hands were heading for the rescue ship.

The Doris Kellogg was commanded by Capt. Chapman and was proceeding from Port Arthur, Tex., to Philadelphia with a cargo of crude oil for the Atlantic Refining Co.

Three lifeboats' loads were taken aboard the Delaware Sun and all members of the Doris Kellogg crew reported saved. Due to the suddenness of the blaze it was impossible for the radio operator of the Doris Kellogg to complete his distress signals, which he started, but power lines failed before he was able to sign its call signal.

The Delaware Sun, owned by the Sun Oil Co., of Marcus Hook, Philadelphia, is standing by the scene awaiting the arrival of the Yamacraw. The immediate cause of the fire was not determined.

ECONOMY IDEA LEAD IS TAKEN BY ROOSEVELT

Convict Plea

Man Would Die in Chair for Mrs. Snipes to Aid Children.

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 29.—Howard Curtis, sentenced to life imprisonment for murder of his sweetheart, has offered to go to the electric chair in place of Mrs. Beatrice Ferguson Snipes, an expectant mother, who is to be electrocuted in April in South Carolina.

Curtis, who is 27, said in Fulton County Jail here today that he had written Gov. Blackwood of South Carolina that "it ain't right for little children to have to come up without a mother," and that if the State would free Mrs. Snipes, sentenced for murder of a rural policeman, or commute her sentence to life imprisonment to "give her a chance to fight free," he would die in her place.

"I'm married and I got three children that I ain't ever goin' to see while I'm doin' time in th' chain gang," said Curtis, who was convicted of killing his paramour last summer. "I never meant to kill that woman. It happened while we was scuffling for a gun. But I don't feel like there is any justice for me on this earth and I would just as soon die, for I reckon I'll find peace then."

REALTY BODY DENIES RENT-FIXING CHARGE

Group in Senate Concludes Hearings; "Black List" Also Disowned.

Blanket denial of "combine" and other charges preferred against local realty interests in the Senate's rent investigation was made yesterday by representatives of the Washington Real Estate Board at final hearings before the Senate District rent investigating subcommittee.

Outlining ethical objectives of real estate boards throughout the country, Roger J. Whiteford, counsel for the local group, told of steps taken here in line with this movement to elevate the standard of real estate practices.

The District subcommittee, which since midsummer has been pressing its inquiry into local rent levels, will meet again at the call of Chairman Arthur Capper to decide what to do with the far-reaching report of Oscar H. Brinkman, committee investigator. A report must be made to the Senate by January 10.

Whiteford said no effort is made by realtors to fix rents, and no "black list" of tenants is maintained as charged by Brinkman. He said that 5 per cent commission to agents handling rental property is not excessive, and that there is no basis for prosecution of the board under the Federal antitrust law.

J. F. M. Bowie, former president of the Washington Real Estate Board, also spoke briefly. He said he had no objection to Brinkman's recommendation that the matter be turned over to the Department of Justice, holding that justice operatives had al-

Governors Urge Cotton Crop Be Reduced Half

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 29 (A.P.).—A compulsory 50 per cent curtailment of next year's cotton crop was indorsed here tonight by the South-wide conference of governors as a means of bolstering the price of the staple.

Gubernatorial Row Is Further Tangled

Granting of Clemency to 7 Prisoners in Wyoming Is Questioned.

Cheyenne, Wio., Dec. 29 (A.P.).—Wyoming's gubernatorial squabble took a new turn today as acting Gov. A. M. Clark, Republican, exercised executive clemency powers.

Clark's right to retain the office is challenged by Gov.-elect Leslie A. Miller, Democrat, who last Tuesday took the oath of office and assumed the role of chief executive five days in advance of his inauguration.

Clark granted pardons or commutations in seven cases. The acting governor said he was standing on the opinion of Attorney General James A. Greenwood that Miller could not assume executive authority until Monday. Warden Roach said he would comply with Clark's orders.

President-Elect Is Planning to Reorganize.

FEELS POWER IS NECESSARY

House Chiefs Agreed On Authorization; Rider Likely.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 29 (A.P.). President-elect Roosevelt, it became known today, is ready to take the full responsibility for the proposed reorganization of the Federal Government as a means of effecting major economies.

Mr. Roosevelt believes that the proposed reorganization will be an insurmountable task, it was learned, unless the authority and responsibility for the reorganization are centered in the Chief Executive.

This attitude of the New York Governor and President-elect was made clear by his advisers two days after he had rejected the proposed general manufacturers' sales tax program advanced in Congress as a means of balancing the Federal budget.

Full Responsibility.

While Mr. Roosevelt declined to say yesterday whether he believed the budget could be balanced by further economies and extension of the present selective sales tax, his advisers made it clear today that he is willing and believes "his shoulders are broad enough" to take the responsibility for consolidation of various governmental units in order to reduce governmental costs.

Mr. Roosevelt's view is, his friends said, that the Chief Executive, with the reorganization his responsibility and his only, will be less subject to pressure from organized groups, which may feel their interests are at stake, than the individual members of Congress would be.

Under the plan Mr. Roosevelt is now known to have in mind, the individual members of Congress would be called upon only for affirmative action of the reorganization measure through their vote on the appropriation bill.

Obtained Their Approval.

Gov. Roosevelt's advisers recalled that when he stopped in Washington last November, upon returning from Warm Springs, he consulted more than a score of legislators in both houses of Congress and obtained their approval of a plan for consolidation of governmental units.

Mr. Roosevelt believes this plan can be put through in a way that will make the President responsible, besides giving him authority for the reorganization, and that at the same time will avoid putting him in the role of dictator. In this way he hopes to relieve Congress of a burden without detracting from its authority.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

Proposed authorization for President-elect Roosevelt to reorganize the Government and effect extensive economies yesterday was thrown into the budget-balancing breach by House Democratic leaders in search for something to stop the gap caused by forlorn revenue hopes.

The authorization would be tacked on to one of the appropriation bills

ORGANIZED DRYS ASK HOUSE BEER HEARING

Letter Is Sent Senator Norris Doubting Constitutionality of Collier Measure.

(Associated Press.)

Organized drys renewed yesterday their request to Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, for hearings on the House beer bill, contending its constitutional phases have not been considered.

A letter carrying the request was given out by Edward B. Dunford as chairman and Izora Scott, secretary, of a committee for the Antisaloon League; the Boards of Temperance of both the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church South; the International Reform Federation and the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

The letter said:

"We believe there are serious constitutional questions involved in the Collier beer bill passed by the House and now pending before your committee. There is also equally involved the fundamental question of the social policy represented by this legislation. We would respectfully call attention to the fact that the constitutional phases of the measure passed by the House of Representatives were never considered by the judiciary committee of that body. In the hearings before the ways and means committee of the House on the bill, four days were given the proponents of the bill and only two days to those opposed. The hearings before the subcommittee on manufactures of the present Senate, in January, 1932, upon similar proposals to legalize and tax beer were not considered by the judiciary committee of the Senate. This is the first occasion when legislation of this character has been before that committee for consideration. In our judgment, the public interest requires that there should be the fullest consideration of the subject involved."

Norris, chairman of the judiciary committee, has repeatedly expressed opposition to holding any hearings at all on the bill, desiring to get it before the Senate as quickly as possible. Yesterday's letter said a previous request was sent on December 24.

Drys Plan Convention In Florida on Feb. 19

St. Petersburg, Fla., Dec. 29 (A.P.).—Battle crys for the Nation's dry forces to mobilize and resist efforts to tamper" with the liquor laws were sounded today by the Antisaloon League of America.

O. G. Christgau, assistant general superintendent, announced leading prohibition advocates of the country will be called together here February 19 to 21 to lay plans for organized opposition to any attempt to repeal or modify the eighteenth amendment.

He came here from Washington to make preliminary arrangements for the conference, which will be held jointly by the national and State leagues.

"We have just begun to fight, and we are taking the offensive for the first time in fifteen years to give a real battle to the wets," the dry leader said.

He called the beer bill passed by the House a "quack cure-all."

"As a tax measure it would drop prosperity dollars in reaching for poverty nickels and dimes," he said. "As an economic relief measure it would invite the wolf at the door into destitute homes to drink the baby's milk, steal the children's clothes and shoes and devour the last loaf of bread."

Christgau said the campaign would reach a climax in the 1934 congressional elections, "and by then the depression will have lost much of its political force, party planks will interfere less with clear-cut division of wet and dry strength, and, most important, the liquor forces will be on the defensive."

Paraguay Is Firm On Soler's Recall

Chaco Peace Commission Gets New Notes From Both Nations.

(Associated Press.)

A new note from Bolivia and another from Paraguay, reiterating her intention to abandon peace negotiations here, were before Assistant Secretary Francis White, chairman of the neutral Chaco commission, yesterday, but action was deferred on both.

Dr. Juan Jose Soler, Paraguayan delegate, is in New York, scheduled to embark tomorrow for Buenos Aires and home. His government has stated he will not be ordered to return to Washington, and the neutral commission has run against a stone wall in seeking to prevail upon the Asuncion government to reconsider the recall order.

Bolivia, in its new note, accepted again the principle of latest peace proposals, and further defined its position on new efforts to end hostilities in the disputed region.

RAINEY WINS INDORSEMENT OF ROOSEVELT AS SPEAKER

Point to Long Record.

Rainey supporters pointed to his long and consistent record on the questions and pointed out, too, that it was Roosevelt's attitude of these questions which made Mr. Rainey one of his original and stanchest supporters. On the contrary, it is contended, the legislative record of Representative McDuffie does not gee with professed Roosevelt principles.

In the sixty-eighth Congress Mr. McDuffie voted against the child-labor measure, one of 19 Democrats who will be members of the next House, to do so. Both Representative Rainey and Representative Byrns, chairman of the appropriations committee, who is Rainey's most powerful opponent, voted for the measure. Mr. McDuffie also was one of the 30 Democrats who will be members of the next house to vote against prohibition of child labor later in the same Congress, although Representatives Rainey and Byrns voted for the measure.

Both Rainey and Byrns voted for the lame-duck amendment in the first session of the seventieth session. Mr. McDuffie was one of the 29 Democrats who will be members of the next House who voted against it.

Vote on Muscle Shoals.

Representatives Byrns and McDuffie supported the Reece Muscle Shoals amendment to create a corporation for operation of the Government property there. Representative Rainey voted against the amendment. Both Mr. Byrns and Mr. McDuffie voted for passage of the resolution and Mr. Rainey voted against it. All three voted for approval of the conference report, the only two Democrats who will be members of the next House voting against approval being Representative Douglas, of Arizona, and Palmisano, of Maryland.

Representative McDuffie, incidentally, is under a vicious attack by various newspapers in his home State, which criticize him as too friendly with the powerful Alabama Power Co.

Bankhead Eliminated.

Representative John E. Rankin, of Mississippi, is regarded as something of a self-starting candidate. It is doubtful if Mr. Rankin even expects to hold all of the votes of his own State delegation in any series of ballots. Mr. McDuffie has been officially indorsed for the post by his State Legislature. That indorsement eliminates Representative William B. Bankhead, of Alabama, from the Speakership fight, but it does not eliminate him as the prospective majority floor leader if Mr. Rainey is elected Speaker. Mr. Bankhead, incidentally, took public cognizance of the widespread slate-making by issuing a statement in which he reiterated what he has consistently said publicly and privately; that is, he was for Mr. McDuffie for Speaker so long as Mr. McDuffie was a candidate. Representative John J. O'Connor, of New York, is not expected to permit advancement of his name in this battle, although he was a candidate for Speaker when Mr. Garner was elected at the beginning of the present Congress.

Supporters of Mr. Rainey already are counting on something like 160 or more votes, enough to assure his election. Mr. Rainey is keeping his own counsel. He admits he is a candidate and would like to have the post. But he says he doesn't know who is going to vote for him nor how many, but he is confident of election and beyond that he will not go.

Southern Vote Split.

Neither will supporters of Mr. Byrns or Mr. McDuffie consent to commit themselves to a capitulation of assured or prospective votes. Mr. McDuffie will have all of the Alabama delegation, some of the Missouri and Kentucky delegations, but the Southern vote will be split between him and Mr. Byrns, who is widely liked and holds a powerful post.

On the other hand, it may be logically assumed that Mr. Rainey's support will include most, if not all, of the Democrats from such States as Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, West Virginia, California, Washington, Colorado, Arizona, New Mexico and Pennsylvania, along with some in Missouri and possibly New York, depending on Tammany's orders, as well as others.

Selection of the next Speaker will depend on the voting in a caucus of the Democratic members of the next House. A majority of a quorum in a party caucus determines the matter inasmuch as the party members vote solidly when the question is taken to the floor when the new Congress formally convenes and undertakes to elect its Speaker.

O'CONNOR DENOUNCES CHARGE TAX MONEY IS LOST ON SHIPS

loan fund, were vastly more costly than the trade would justify.

"A competing British line which can not dip into the public purse is unable to offer the public such costly vessels," Sir Alan was quoted in Chairman O'Connor's statement.

Denies Taxes for Luxury.

Chairman O'Connor denied that American tax funds paid for any extra luxury in these ships.

"Whether the ships built by the American company are, as Sir Alan alleges, more expensive than the trade will support, is entirely a matter of judgment," he said. "The considered decision of his American competitor was that they were not."

At another point, Chairman O'Connor alluded to Sir Alan's observations as "an excellent illustration of the lengths to which studied propaganda can go in seeking to destroy competition."

"So much error and misapprehension is wrapped up in these statements of Sir Alan," the statement continued, "that they would merit scant attention were it not for the fact that they emanate from a recognized authority in the British shipping world. * * * It has been the uniform policy of the American lines operated for the Government account, and, so far as is known, of private American lines, to maintain rates at fair levels, a statement which can not be made in the case of our foreign competitors."

Billions Spent in America.

Mr. O'Connor estimated that since 1921 ships of American registery operating in foreign services have earned approximately $3,000,000,000, the greater portion of which was expended in the United States "for American materials and products and wages to American labor."

"Had American ships not been available to earn this tremendous sum, it would have gone to our foreign competitors—much of it to be expended upon new ships built in foreign yards and for foreign labor and materials."

While no tabulations of recent loans and subventions to American shipping were included in Mr. O'Connor's reply, Shipping Board records disclose that since 1920 only 57 new vessels have been built in this country with the aid of Government funds. In the same period advances have been made for the reconditioning of 39 merchant vessels.

As recently as November 30, the Federal Shipbuilding Co. launched at Kearny, N. J., the S. S. Santa Eleana, the last of the new vessels laid down under the Government-aid plan. Although a number of new commitments have been concluded for future building, no merchant hulls now are under construction with Federal aid in any American yard.

While America was building her 57 new bottoms, France launched 56, Japan 67, Germany 79 and Great Britain a total of 601—all of them more than 2,000 tons gross.

These figures, Mr. O'Connor suggested, should explain why today "world shipping is in desperate straits."

Money Transfer Voted Out of Bill

Amendment to Agriculture Measure Is Defeated by House.

The House yesterday voted out of the Agriculture Department appropriation bill the provision authorizing transfer of appropriations within the department up to 12 per cent of any one item.

The amendment, proposed by Representative Collins (Democrat), Mississippi, was opposed by Appropriations Chairman Joseph W. Byrns, who pointed out that two bills which already have passed the House contain the provision. For 15 years the Agriculture appropriation bill has authorized up to 10 per cent transfer of funds, he said.

The amendment was carried by viva voce vote after Representative Bankhead (Democrat), Alabama, and Representative Taber (Republican), New York, spoke for it. Bureau heads recently were charged on the floor of the House with abusing the 12 per cent provision, by transferring funds to save the jobs of Government workers.

PHILIPPINE LIBERTY BILL PASSES HOUSE

Vote Is 171 to 16; Belief Grows That President Will Veto Act.

(Associated Press.)

By a preponderantly lop-sided vote the House yesterday passed the much-disputed issue of Philippine independence on to the White House where an uncertain fate awaited it.

From members of President Hoover's party, the freedom measure—a conference agreement with the Senate providing independence after a ten-year transitional period—received extensive support. In the final House decision only 16 stood in opposition, while 171 arose to back the bill.

Among those who have kept closely informed on the subject, there was a distinct inclination to believe Mr. Hoover would veto the measure. Many pointed to his last direct statement on the question—that immediate freedom would lead the islands to disaster.

It was a little over a year ago, October 27, 1931, that President Hoover spoke. After hearing the conclusions brought back by Secretary Hurley from an inspection of the islands, the Chief Executive told newspapermen:

"Independence tomorrow without assured economic stability would result in the collapse of Philippine government revenues and the collapse of all economic life in the islands."

Further he spoke of "the necessity that independence must be assured of durability and the government of the Philippines * * * assured of stability."

Those who gave the bill a chance of presidential approval pointed to the ten-year clause and provisions intended to help the islands attain governmental and commercial stability in the interim.

Secretary Hurley, the most outspoken of the administration group on the question, flatly opposed the original Hawes-Cutting bill which provided for independence after twenty years, and as late as December 3, this year, restated in his annual report that:

"The political chaos in the Orient today is such that in my opinion this is no time to deal with Philippine independence."

Some Republicans were so confident of a veto that they did not demand a record vote when the House, after an hour's debate, shouted its approval of the independence agreement reached with the Senate. They argued more votes could be obtained to uphold a veto if members did not go on record at this time.

On a record vote, the same House last year passed an independence bill 306 to 47. Neither on first passage nor in acting on the conference agreement was a roll-call ballot taken in the Senate.

The attitude of island leaders toward the legislation also seemed divided. In Manila, Manuel Quezon, president of the Insular Senate, branded the measure as a "joke" which would provide a "fictitious independence." He added:

"If my opposition to the bill causes a division of the Nacionalista party let there be a division."

Legislators meeting with him as the independence commission adopted a resolution saying difference of opinion among the Filipinos was based on the 10-year transition period provided and retention of naval bases by the United States, not the limitation on imports which was one of the chief forces behind the measure in the United States.

James Clark, 86, Cumberland, Dies

Head of Brewing Company and Wealthiest Citizen Suffered Stroke.

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Dec. 29.—James Clark, 86, president of the Cumberland Brewing Co. and chairman of the board of directors of the Second National Bank, died this afternoon. He was stricken by paralysis last Saturday morning. He was born of Irish parents aboard ship, coming to this country. They settled in New Jersey, but later moved to Winchester, Va., when the son was quite young. He served in the Confederate Army in Rosser's brigade. He came to Cumberland in the early seventies and first engaged in the shoe business. Mr. Clark was the largest owner of property located on Baltimore street, the main business thoroughfare. He held extensive banking interests here and at Winchester and was regarded as Cumberland's wealthiest resident. He was associated in business for many years with his half brother, the late Col. John Keating, who was among the Democratic leaders in Maryland for a number of years. Mr. Clark was a member of St. Patrick's Catholic Church.

House Gets Three-Day Recess for New Year

(Associated Press.)

After quitting only three days for Christmas, the House yesterday decided to take the same amount of time off for the new year.

Just before consideration of the Philippines independence bill, the majority leader, Representative Rainey, of Illinois, sent a resolution for the recess from today till Tuesday to the Speaker's desk.

The resolution was adopted immediately after the clerk read it.

VILLAGES DECLARED HOPE OF POSTERITY

Geographers Congress Told Only Migration to Main Street Will Save.

Back to Main street—

Only by taking this route in the next decade can the American people save the Nation from disaster, O. E. Baker, of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the Department of Agriculture, and retiring president of the Association of American Geographers, told the association at its twenty-ninth annual dinner last night at the Shoreham Hotel.

Migration from the village and farm to the city since the World War has brought, among other setbacks, such a decline in the birth rate that the United States will be fortunate if it maintains a stationary population in the next ten years, Mr. Baker declared.

Nation's Destiny in Village.

The economist expressed confidence that "the road of our Nation's destiny is turned toward the village." Basing his predictions on a thorough study of national trends in the last century, and particularly in the last decade, Mr. Baker said that not only will the city dweller migrate to the village in the immediate future, but the farmer as well.

With this exodus to the rural communities must come the wider spread of electric and gas power, and transportation facilities, and a replanning of industry, Mr. Baker said. "The main hope for an increase in the birth rate lies with extension of State aid to families and a widespread increase in the average income."

"The proletariat must be preserved," Mr. Baker added, "and to do it, the American people will find that it may be necessary to leave our skyscrapers empty shells before they turn their backs again on the rural communities."

Peril in Birth Rate Decline.

Mr. Baker stressed the decline in the birth rate as the greatest danger confronting the Nation. This has come, he pointed out, through the emancipation of women, the migration from country to city and a revolution in social ideas. The future return to the village, however, will probably bring a revival of the old religious beliefs that "children are worth having," he added.

The retiring president's address included a statistical study of the decline in population in various States. These figures, he announced, will be released in book form in the near future.

At the concluding session of the association this afternoon, Mr. Baker's paper will form the basis of a discussion on land utilization, it was announced. A number of papers on other subjects will be presented at this morning's session.

ROOSEVELT MAY GET REGROUPING POWER

as a rider, either in the House or the Senate, under agreement reached yesterday. Appropriations Chairman Joseph W. Byrns is sponsor of the plan, which has the solid backing of Speaker Garner and House Democratic Leader Rainey. Senate leaders have been consulted.

The program of retrenchment as opposed to taxation was put forward only after the President-elect's reported stand against the sales tax appeared definitely to have spiked any hope of revenue from that source.

Cent a Dollar Proposed.

Leaders yesterday still were casting about for new forms of taxation to be considered by the ways and means committee when it meets late next week. Representative Rainey's suggestion that incomes might have to be tapped again was followed yesterday with a proposal by Representative Griffin (Democrat), New York, for a 1-cent-a-dollar tax on all gross incomes. He estimated it would yield $1,410,000,000 annually.

Proposal to give President-elect Roosevelt full power to eliminate useless bureaus and overlapping of Government functions is in line with the suggestion made by House Expenditures Chairman Cochran, when he introduced a resolution for blanket disapproval of the 58 bureau consolidations and transfers proposed by President Hoover. Speaker Garner said yesterday the Byrns proposal does not "necessarily" mean sidetracking of the President's recommendation. It is generally predicted, however, the House will adopt the Cochran resolution if and when it is reported out of committee.

May Give Full Reign.

Contrasting with the limited authority voted President Hoover, to reorganize the Government subject to congressional approval, the Roosevelt authorization may place no restraints upon the incoming President in carrying out his program.

Expectation is that Gov. Roosevelt will launch his study leading to the proposed economies when he goes to Warm Springs, Ga., next month.

House Leader Rainey believes the proposed reorganization might render unnecessary any revenue legislation, aside from beer revenue features and continuation of the present excise taxes.

Against Reorganization.

Appropriations Chairman Byrns commented:

"I have given the subject of consolidation and abolishing Federal agencies considerable thought and I have concluded that Congress can not effect such reorganization. The President has the machinery at hand to do it and by giving him authority to place economies into effect we can expect to be able to rely upon it that they will be put into effect."

Representative Rainey charged propaganda by Federal workers has hindered the House economy program.

"The present Government is controlled by organized minorities, including 50,000 to 60,000 Government employes, who have been leading the raids on the Treasury for their own benefits," he said. "Every time Congress tries to effect economies, these people send telegrams to their folks at home. Within a few days members of Congress begin to hear from home and the movement is start before it gets underway."

for trial on a manslaughter charge. He first pleaded not guilty and then changed his plea to guilty, receiving a suspended sentence of eleven years imprisonment. The charge grew out of a motor car accident in Douglas, Ariz., in which a man was killed.

Prior to that time, Abernathy had been reported by his superior officers to have maintained a high character rating.

For many years Fort Huachuca has been a famous cavalry post, with a historic frontier background. At present, scarcely more than 50 white persons are stationed here. The enlisted troops are Negroes, augmented by the last of the old Apache frontier Army scouts.

Had Been Cavalry Base.

Until recently the fort had been a cavalry base exclusively, the garrison of the Tenth (Negro) Cavalry. Since the recent decision of the War Department to abandon infantry cantonments at Nogales and Douglas, portions of the Twenty-fifth Infantry have been moved here. The last of the border companies are scheduled to come here after the first of the year.

Capt. Palmer, 42 years old, was a native of Massachusetts. He was an emergency officer in the World War and reached the grade of major, returning to the grade of captain in 1920. He was a graduate of three service schools—Command and Staff, Infantry and Signal Corps.

Capt. Palmer received his appointment to the Army from Beverley, Mass. Mrs. Palmer formerly was Miss Mary Lowden, of Dedham, Mass.

Capt. and Mrs. Palmer leave two children, David, 12, and Polly, 10. David hid his sister in a closet and ran out of the house to spread the alarm when his parents were killed.

Matthews to Recover.

Capt. Wessely was appointed from San Antonio, Tex., in 1917. Mrs. Wessely was from Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Lieut. Matthews, who was wounded in the legs, received his appointment from Chapel Hill, Tex., in 1921. Surgeons said he will recover.

Capt. Wessely also was a World War emergency officer, and served as a major. He was a native of Texas, 56 years old. He was a graduate of the Motor Transport School of the Quartermaster Service. Capt. Wessely advanced from the ranks, having joined the Army as a private in 1908.

Lieut. Matthews, 33, also is a Texan. He is an honor graduate of the Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College. He attended Officers' Training School during the war and received his regular commission in 1921, advancing to the rank of first lieutenant in 1926.

War Department officials here refused last night to comment on the murder of the officers and their wives at Fort Huachuca, Ariz., yesterday.

A telegram received at the office of the adjutant general of the Army at the War Department here early today described Abernathy, the killer, as "insane."

Insull Plans Long Sojourn in Greece

May Visit England Soon; Hopes to Enjoy Life in Beautiful Country.

Athens, Greece, Dec. 29 (A.P.).—Samuel Insull, whose extradition to the United States was refused by the Greek Court of Appeals, said today that he looks forward with pleasure to a long residence in Greece and hopes that during the next few years he will be able to enjoy life to the full here among beautiful surroundings.

He expressed deep gratification at the outcome of the extradition proceedings and intimated that in the near future he might take a trip through Europe and England. Mrs. Insull, he said, is to join him here later.

Mr. Insull, former utilities official, is under indictment for larceny and embezzlement in Chicago in connection with the collapse of the Middle West Utilities Co.

2 Robbers Get $1.25, Leaving Till in Haste

Working in haste and apparently satisfied with small returns, two robbers last night held up and took $1.25 from the pockets of Edward MacCuming, attendant at a filling station at Georgia avenue and Belmont street, but fled without molesting the cash register.

MacCuming described the men as being well dressed and young. Only one of them drew a gun.

Shotgun Wounds Fatal.

Richard Dorsey, colored, 25 years old, of Montrose, Md., died at Montgomery County General Hospital yesterday as the result of wounds inflicted with a shotgun by Richard Noland, colored, 25, of Montrose, according to police. Noland surrendered to county police Wednesday night. The shooting followed an argument.

LAST SEVEN BODIES TAKEN FROM MINE

Discovery Ends Rescue Hope That Some Had Escaped Gas at Moweaqua.

Moweagua, Ill., Dec. 29 (A.P.).—Rescuers today came upon the bodies of the last seven of 54 miners entrapped in the Moweaqua Coal Co.'s mine Christmas Eve.

The discovery ended the possibility that the men might have barricaded themselves safely in the far end of the north tunnel of the mine, against the deadly gas which permeated the mine after an explosion.

The last seven, like those of the others whose bodies have been recovered a few at a time daily since the disaster, had died instantly.

So late as this morning, Glen Shafer, director of the mine, which was being run cooperatively, had expressed the hope that the remaining seven might be still alive. The mine is T-shaped, with the horizontal running north and south. The far end of the north tunnel provides a pocket from which air pressure might have excluded the gas. It was in the same way that 60 miners were saved at the Cherry, Ill., mine disaster some 25 years ago.

The bodies were identified by their work tags, embalmed, and immediately sealed in coffins before being taken to the surface.

A second tragedy impended for a few moments in the mine today when a section of roof collapsed behind a squad of rescuers. A second squad was following, however, and the efforts of both succeeded in clearing the channel while the air was clear.

FLORIDA SUNSET CATCHES PRESIDENT'S PARTY

This Florida sunset caught President Hoover's vacation party as the yacht Sequoia, followed by two Coast Guard boats, plowed southward along the inland passage in search of rest and fishing grounds.

HOOVER'S SHIP RUNS AGROUND IN FLORIDA

Fleet Reaches Palm Beach 3 Hours Late; President Will Fish Today.

Sailfish Club, Palm Beach, Fla., Dec. 29 (A.P.).—After running aground and being stuck fast for more than an hour, the U. S. S. Sequoia, carrying President Hoover and members of his party, dropped anchor in this quiet harbor shortly after 9 o'clock tonight, with a sailfishing expedition in prospect for all hands tomorrow.

The presidential party was delayed three hours after darkness fell in reaching Palm Beach. First one boat of the flotilla and then another would run aground while searching for the channel into the Lake Worth anchorage.

The small fleet of Hoover boats was scheduled to reach Palm Beach during the early afternoon, but rough water in the Atlantic Ocean caused a decision to stick to the safer inland passage.

The arrival time was set up to about 6 p. m., but with delays in finding the channel the fleet was three hours behind the revised schedule.

Harry S. Guggenheim, American Ambassador to Cuba, boarded the Sequoia after the anchorage was reached, after an unsuccessful attempt to get aboard during the later afternoon. He went into immediate conference with the President, but told newspapermen, whose boat took him out to the presidential flagship, that his visit had no significance as far as Cuban political affairs were concerned.

The presidential party did not come ashore during the night, but stayed aboard the Sequoia.

Rainey Wants Hoover To Fish Until March 4

(United Press.)

House Democratic Floor Leader Henry T. Rainey wants President Hoover to keep on fishing until March 4.

"The Nation has lost confidence in Mr. Hoover and I hope he will continue to do what he is doing now," Rainey said in a statement. "It would be beneficial if President Hoover would stay fishing for the rest of his administration."

elements in the Senate, on whom any Secretary of State will have to depend for confirmation of his diplomatic activities. Davis, in the view of the more uncompromising Democratic elements, has already forfeited his Democratic birthright by serving in the administration of President Hoover. They point out that by serving the interests of a Republican President he has automatically curtailed his usefulness to a Democratic administration. That is their plaint.

However, the President-elect has indicated to his closest friends that he regards the Cabinet portfolio of Secretary of State as an office in which he is personally and solely responsible. He will, therefore, let his own judgment decide the final appointment even if it ruffles some Democratic susceptibilities.

There are plenty of reasons for placing the Tennessee Democrat at the head of the Roosevelt Cabinet, even on purely personal bases. He is a close personal friend of the Governor of New York. For years he has maintained a summer home at Stockbridge, Mass., which is only an hour's ride from Albany, and while there he would frequently ride over to spend the day or the week-end at the Roosevelt homestead. The Roosevelt-Davis friendship dates from the days of the war when Davis was in charge of American foreign loans and the next President was Assistant Secretary of the Navy.

Would Be Powerful Asset.

In any event it seems likely that the presence of Norman Davis in the foreign affairs office of the Roosevelt administration will be a powerful asset in the solution of any of the present problems that will fall to the new administration for settlement. Davis knows the war debts from their very inception. He went to Madrid to stabilize the peseta, to Paris to arrange the payment of huge French purchases in the United States, and to London for the establishment of British war credits with the Treasury Department. He is a close student of all Latin-American affairs ever since he laid the bases for his fortune from 1904 to 1915 in Cuba. He founded the Trust Co. of Cuba and has remained a director of it ever since. His Spanish is fluent and emphatic, and although he depreciates his knowledge of French, he is still able to follow the oratorical declamings of the present French Premier Paul-Boncour and he can appreciate the jokes of former Premier Edouard Herriot.

Even if Davis is not invited to become Secretary of State, it is believed very likely that the incoming President will invite him to become his agent in Europe. Davis would be the ideal appointment for carrying out the Roosevelt theory of settling the war-debt difficulty by diplomatic negotiation, it is believed in Democratic circles. He is regarded as one of the few great conciliators who have appeared on the international horizon since the disappearance of Aristide Briand and Dwight W. Morrow. His ability to compose diametrical differences of opinion, heightened by nationalistic prejudice, is legendary in Geneva, where his adroit settlement of the Memel dispute between Germany and Lithuania is still the standard by which other arbitrations are judged.

Reports First to Hoover.

When Davis returned to the United States last week he carefully observed the punctilios of diplomatic usage by coming first to Washington to render an account of his European stewardship to the President, accepting the invitation of the President-elect to go to Albany. His influence with the new administration is believed to be confirmed as a result of the change of attitude of President-elect Roosevelt toward the forthcoming experts' meeting of the economic conference. The State Department here had given up the intention of sending the two experts, John H. Williams and Edmund E. Day, to Geneva again in the absence of some confirmatory gesture by the President-elect. Davis arrived from Washington and went into conference with President-elect on the Geneva economic meeting and the two experts were ordered to New York to receive the last-minute instructions from the lips of Davis. The President-elect has definitely assumed supervision of the preparations for the economic conference and as soon as the other experts have agreed on the definitive terms of the agenda, the date for holding the conference and the place will be decided.

GANDHI THREATENS UNTOUCHABLE FAST

Mahatma Gives Britain Until Mid-January to Pass Anti-Caste Law.

Poona, India, Dec. 29 (U.P.).—Mahatma Gandhi, brown little leader of the Nationalist cause in India, today laid down a new ultimatum to the British government in behalf of the nation's millions of untouchables.

Unless Great Britain sponsors an enabling bill to remove legal difficulties which forbid the depressed classes from entering Hindu temples by mid-January, Gandhi said he will begin another "fast unto death" in Yerovda Jail.

Ignoring reports that the British government is planning to release him from prison New Year's Day, the frail little "great soul of India" said if the British viceroy refuses his demand, the cause of antiuntouchability will, of necessity, become a world issue.

Gandhi's first "fast unto death," undertaken last September, ended after six days, when caste leaders effected a tentative compromise on the question of communal representation for the untouchables.

Gandhi appeared cheerful and seemed in fair health when he received the correspondent today, though he complained that his ankles cause him some pain and that his right hand is giving him considerable trouble, having become virtually useless. He is experimenting with food devoid of salt, and occasionally abstains from goat's milk, in an effort to allay his physical suffering. He now weighs 102 pounds.

When informed that indications point to a refusal of his new demand by the British government, Gandhi simply said:

"I am not worried. I certainly shall not resume my fast before the middle of January, which ends the period the government asked in which to overcome technical difficulties of the problem. The matter can not be left at rest.

"With the viceroy's refusal, it necessarily becomes a world issue whether India shall be chained down to untouchability against her will. Indian opinion strongly resents the official trend as unreasonable and unprecedented."

Friends of Gandhi frankly fear another fast will mean his death, and his passing, they say, might precipitate a serious religious war in India. His September hunger strike left him weak and broken, suffering from rheumatism and with virtually no fat. He has to be carried each day from his cell to the shade of a mango tree in the jail yard.

RENT CHARGE DENIED AT SENATE HEARING

ready been through the board's files and found nothing to complain of.

In arguing that the board is anxious to improve realty practices, Whiteford pointed to a bill that the group has been advocating for the last six years designed to regulate realtors through a local real estate license law.

He took sharp issue with Brinkman's recommendations that a six months' moratorium be declared on mortgage foreclosures here, and that rents be regulated by the Public Utility Commission. He said individuals ought not to be encouraged to repudiate their obligations through a mortgage moratorium. He said the rent problem here "will work itself out in time" and no regulation is necessary.

Much of the rebuttal was aimed at Brinkman's methods. Whiteford charged that Brinkman began the inquiry "with a biased attitude."

"He has given only opinions," Whiteford said. "We don't want his opinions. We want all the facts, and Mr. Brinkman has deliberately singled out isolated instances as examples in his report. You can not take isolated instances and base a principle on them."

After Whiteford finished, Brinkman repeated a number of his charges and asserted that the Washington Real Estate Board had not made a satisfactory rebuttal. He said he had not presented the entire results of his investigation, as charged by Whiteford, because a number of large real estate companies had not cooperated.

In response to a question by Bowie, Brinkman said he would call the Department of Justice investigation a "whitewash" again if the department fails to prosecute under his findings.

Shelby Theft Suspect Indicted.

Los Angeles, Dec. 29 (A.P.).—Leslie B. Henry, accused in a complaint by the district attorney's office of theft of the funds of Mrs. Charlotte Shelby, mother of Mary Miles Minter, former film star, was indicted today by the county grand jury in a supplementary action.

RIVERS FLOOD MANY SECTIONS OF SOUTH

Rome, Ga., Chattanooga and Montgomery Menaced as Waters Rise.

(Associated Press.)

Water two feet deeper than in the overflow earlier this month eddied through low-lying sections at Rome, Ga., yesterday and relief agencies were standing by for eventualities in Alabama as rivers in those States led streams all over the South in a rampaging progress over bottom lands and the outskirts of numerous towns.

The other States affected were North Carolina, South Carolina, Mississippi and Tennessee. Little serious damage was reported.

Weather observers said a number of the streams should recede soon, but added that not until the extent of the rainfall Wednesday and yesterday is reported can the course of the rivers in the next few days be calculated.

Rome, with about 140 refugees, had the biggest immediate problem. The Etowah and Oostanaula Rivers converge at Rome to form the Coosa, which was one of Alabama's troublemakers. The streams at Rome rose to 33.62 feet, 2 feet above the rise that drove out more than 300 persons recently. Most of the inundated area is sparsely populated.

Red Cross Is Alert.

C. H. MacFarland, Red Cross field representative at Birmingham, said workers Wednesday night aided in caring for several homeless Negro families.

Mac Freeman, Red Cross chairman at Wetumpka, where the Coosa was rising, reported no immediate danger to residents.

The Mississippi River was reported at a moderate stage and most of its tributaries well within their banks with the exception of the "Yazoo, in Mississippi, and the St. Francis, in Missouri and Arkansas, which are nearly full, and the Tennessee, which is rising rapidly and will pass flood stage from headwaters to the Alabama-Tennessee line."

The Alabama lapped at streets in north Montgomery with 2 feet more of water predicted. Backwaters flooded a large area in Elmore and Montgomery counties. Trucks stood by to evacuate 520 convicts from a camp in that section, and water more than 4 feet deep flowed through Hunters Station, 4 miles from Montgomery. The Alabama was 15 feet over the overflow line at Miller's Perry where much land was inundated.

Chattanooga Is Menaced.

The Black Warrior overran Northport streets, and the Tombigbee was rising.

A crest of 37 feet, 7 feet above the flood stage, was forecast at Chattanooga on the Tennessee River. Principal roads into the city were reported under water.

Business men rode boats in Charleston, Tenn., where the Hiawassee rose to the highest level in 12 years. Several Knoxville families left their homes as the Tennessee went past flood stage. The French Broad at Dandridge was 4 feet over the flood line.

The Chattahoochee, southwest of Atlanta, Ga., was expected to end its rise around 22 feet, 3 feet above flood stage.

North Carolina Safe.

Little damage was expected in North Carolina, where all rivers were rising. The Roanoke at Weldon was expected to go 9 feet above flood stage. The Neuse at Smithfield and the Cape Fear at Elizabethtown were both well out of their banks.

The Santee in South Carolina was overflowing.

The Red River at Shreveport rose 16 feet within 24 hours yesterday on account of heavy rains and melting snow. In Mississippi the Chickasawhay left its banks at Enterprise after reaching 6 feet above flood stage.

VIENNA LOAN VOTED BY FRENCH DEPUTIES

Many Oppose $14,000,000 Advance, Citing Default to America.

Paris, Dec. 29 (A.P.).—The Chamber of Deputies, by a vote of 351 to 187, tonight authorized the government to participate in the projected reconstruction loan for Austria, which will mean an advance by France of approximately $14,000,000.

This action was taken over the objections of a group of deputies who argued that France should not lend money to Austria when only two weeks ago she refused to make the war debt interest payment of approximately $19,000,000 due the United States.

Former Premier Herriot, who was responsible for the French policy on the Austrian loan question when he headed the government, vigorously defended it before the Chamber.

One of the principal opponents of the action was Deputy Henry Haye, who said:

"Two weeks ago we refused to pay 500,000,000 francs to those to whom we owed something. Are we going to give 350,000,000 to those to whom we owe nothing?"

A similar argument was advanced by Deputy Louis Marin, Nationalist leader, who led the opposition to the December 15 payment to the United States.

"How could we lend to Austria after our gesture toward the United States, our ally who fought on our side?" M. Marin asked.

He expressed the belief that the $14,000,000 would be "money lost, of which the lenders would not get back a sou."

Premier Joseph Paul-Boncour, appealing for a favorable vote, said the loan was necessary for the stability of central Europe.

The Senate also considered financial measures today, voting in favor of a 5,000,000,000 franc (about $195,000,000) issue of Treasury bonds requested by the Government as provisional credits for January. The Senate also went on record in favor of placing wheat funds in the hands of an army purchasing board instead of creating a wheat bureau.

It is expected the Chamber and the Senate will adjourn tomorrow until January 1.

The Austrian loan was recommended by the League of Nations. France, Great Britain, Italy, Switzerland, Holland and Belgium among them were to provide about $43,000,000. The purpose of the loan is to save Austria from its perilous financial condition.

Earlier this week the French wheat measure was before the Chamber of Deputies, which authorized the government to advance up to 300,000,000 francs (about $11,700,000) to a National Agricultural Credit Association for one year to finance the wheat crop. The purpose was to help raise the price of the grain.

More than ever convinced that the American debt of December 15 ought to have been paid, former Premier Herriot, rendering an account of his stewardship to 5,000 Paris Radical Socialists tonight, said:

"I agree that the American Government ought to be approached to bring it to modify its viewpoint, but legally we have no right to withhold payment. The day will come when the people will be glad a government and a party resisted the wave of general opinion."

Referring to the Lausanne reparations conference, M. Herriot said it had made a start toward extricating the world from its difficulties, hoping that America would join, but each party reserved liberty in the event of America's refusing to collaborate.

"My plan," he continued, "was to form a united front of the European nations. I am much afraid now that front will be broken."

alarmed until the hunt proved fruitless. Then she decided she bonds had been stolen.

Late yesterday police were notified and the bond company was immediately told of the theft.

Just how the home had been entered and the securities taken remained a mystery last night. There were no signs of entrances having been tampered with. A Boston terrior was inside the house during the entire time, and a large police dog was tied to his kennel in the rear, the family declared.

"While I was in the bank," Mrs. Farrar last night told The Post, "Some one may have seen me obtaining the bonds and followed me home. This seems the most reasonable explanation of their disappearance."

Mrs. Farrar, a native of Clarke County, Va., was princess at the 1930 Winchester apple blossom fete. She was married the same year.

Germany Appears Doomed To Receive 'Prince Mike'

American Immigration Officials Hold Two-Hour Session to Decide Where Adventurous "Romanoff" Will Be Shipped This Time.

New York, Dec. 29 (A.P.).—Germany appeared to be "it" tonight in the game of "nation, nation, who gets 'Prince Michael Romanoff.'"

The United States, in so far as it was represented by immigrant officials, indicated it did not want the man who sometimes had difficulty himself deciding whether he is Harry Gerguson, of the Bronx, or "Prince Michael Romanoff, scion of the Czars."

Out on Ellis Island, where Gerguson was taken last night after his penchant for distinctive tobacco led him into the toils of the law, a special board of inquiry sat for two hours today to consider how "Prince Mike" got into the country and presumably how it could get him out again.

Before his latest arrival he came as a stowaway on the Ile de France. He was put back on a French liner and started East. France locked him up for about six months and he only recently got out of jail.

This time, reports have it, he slipped in on the Europa. The Department of Labor at Washington said today that if this could be proved, the Romanoff problem might be shifted to Germany and the North German Lloyd Line.

Immigration officials here have had some unfortunate experiences with Gerguson, including an escape or two, and they were not talkative about their well-known charge. They would not even allow him to be interviewed, although "Prince Mike" was said to be willing.

Word came through, however, that officials believe they have found witnesses to prove Gerguson arrived on the Europa and that they are working on the theory he was assisted on and off the ship by friends among the passengers.

The "Prince", himself, originally quoted as having boasted coming on the German ship without ticket or passport, has gone back on that story. He now says he came from Canada.

With additional witnesses, the Government expects to reopen the hearing tomorrow. Meanwhile Gerguson is being held in a spacious but well-barred room at Ellis Island.

At the hearing today he wore the sporting costume in which he was arrested—corduroy trousers, angora sweater, walking shoes and a scarf of green, red and purple. There was one thing new, however, and as usual with anything concerning "Prince Mike," no one could explain it. In the lapel of his jacket was a tiger orchid—and it was fresh.

(Associated Press.)

Another deportation for Harry Gerguson, alias Prince Michael Romanoff, was indicated yesterday at the Labor Department.

No formal report on Gerguson's arrest in New York had been received here, but it was said that unless he could produce proof that he is an American citizen, he would be sent back to the country from which he came.

The department said that if it were shown that he entered the United States on the Europa from Germany it was likely the ocean line would be required to return him at its own expense.

note he told how to dispose of his little property.

He called the police, told them where to find the bodies.

Then Peter telephoned Clement Studebaker 3d, 38-year-old son of his late employer.

Studebaker and the police arrived simultaneously at the Peterson flat. Peter had lain down beside his dead wife, pulled up a blanket and ended his life.

The younger Studebaker said there had been no change in Peter's $200 monthly salary that he was still employed. The new will of Clement, jr., admitted to probate yesterday, had dropped several bequests provided in the previous testament and made his widow beneficiary of practically all the $2,000,000 estate.

"I am sure my dad's death is responsible for all this," said Clement 3d. "He went all to pieces when dad died. Once before my father's death he told me if 'things got too tough' he would end his life."

Peterson had $100 in a bank and $6,600 life insurance.

EXPERTS DISCOVER NEW FOE OF GERMS

Michigan Experiments Disclose Means of Fighting Streptococcus.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Dec. 29 (A.P.).—Results of more mimic battles to improve the strategy of mankind in the perpetual warfare on disease germs were reported to the Society of American Bacteriologists today.

Rabbits were the victims partially rescued from germ enemies in immunity experiments described by N. W. Larkum and Ruth Corpron, of the Michigan Department of Health laboratories.

It has been known for some time that if the liquid medium in which certain organisms have been growing is filtered to free it from these organisms, then given an intermediate feeding of the same kind of germs, a time arrives when a mysterious agent in the filtrate turns on the germs and apparently kills them.

The Michigan workers fed mass doses of this "germicidal" filtrate to rabbits. The deadly streptococcus, an arch-enemy of mankind, had been growing in the medium. After repeated injections of the "bacteriophage," the rabbits were allowed a considerable rest. Then doses of streptococcus were injected and the workers state: "The mortality as compared with the controls shows a marked degree of protection." Streptococcus organisms are found in infections of most kinds.

Woodrum Weighs Cut of Farm Board

Would Trim Appropriation to Lowest Point Without Ending Group.

(Associated Press.)

Representative Woodrum, of Roanoke, whose subcommittee is now at work on independent offices appropriations, is bent on trimming the Farm Board appropriation "to the lowest figure possible without abolishing it."

Woodrum's subcommittee last session trimmed the Farm Board item from the budget estimate of $1,800,000 to $800,000. He indicated yesterday that if his ideas prevail the budget estimate of $1,000,000 for next year will undergo a slashing.

The Virginian told newspapermen yesterday he would like to see the board abolished, but believed special legislation should be enacted for that purpose.

The Federal Diary

By GEORGE D. RILEY

WE are fortunate in obtaining an abstract of a paper presented today by Dr. Wilmer Souder, F. A. C. D., chief, Dental Laboratory, Bureau of Standards, on invitation, on "How Science Aids in Dental Restorations." The paper will be read at Atlantic City before the American Association for Advancement of Science:

Riley

"This paper emphasizes the severe demands made upon the oral tissues would restore defective teeth to their original functioning. He may not count upon any cooperation whatever from nature, as may the physician and surgeon. A tooth once infected by the germs of decay will not repair itself even after all decay has been removed.

"The dentist must make a further contribution; he must restore the lost tooth substance with a material which not only functions as the natural tooth, but also seals the cavity from that instant on against further decay. When this is accomplished, the dentist has given a service superior to nature in this specific instance since the natural tooth did decay.

"This ideal service is often realized. Thousands of fillings have given entire satisfaction over periods of 50 years or more or until the patient had no further need for the restoration. Our problems arise because millions of fillings do not give this perfect service. Two factors have been discovered which account for many failures in dental restoration. These are defective materials and defective methods.

"In cooperation with the American Dental Association the Bureau of Standards has discovered many defective materials, such, for example, as shrinking amalgams (the so-called silver fillings). Further defects have been located in the methods taught (unintentionally) dentists, such, for example, as making dental inlays without compensation for the casting shrinkage of the gold alloy. References to these and many similar conditions are presented. The solutions for these problems are available and have been verified by cooperators throughout the United States and abroad. The first item calls for safe and standardized materials. Specifications have been adopted for most dental restorative materials. Our leading manufacturers will gladly supply and personally guarantee their respective products to meet these standards. The second item calls for a scientific and safe technic in the dentist's laboratory. Several dentists have mastered this part of the program and are truly restoring the lost teeth or parts of teeth. The dental profession at large is rapidly mastering this detail and soon we shall have, quite generally, more effective dental service.

"This will mean that people will gladly spend their money for this much-needed (and too often hitherto, only expected) service.

"The entire program and developments furnish one of the most striking examples of that ideal in which 'science and art meet and merge.'

"Millions of dollars will be saved annually through this perfection in dental practice. The savings in health through the reduction of conditions favorable to infections and ills resulting from abscessed teeth can not be estimated in dollars."

Farmers Seed Loan boys and girls will form a social club to gather charity funds. And they want a name. And they offer a prize. Well, here's a suggestion, "Cosoles."

And if we win the prize we'll give it right back to the charity fund. Is it a go? If they want to know where we get the name we'll give details upon application.

The organization will give a dance January 7 at the Washington Hotel. And there'll be bridge, too.

SPEAKING of hiking, (and we weren't), L. O. Robbins, administrative assistant, Secretary's office, Agricultural Department, not so long ago hung up a one-day record of 56 miles. Otis H. Gates, solicitor's office, falls within the class of being an exploration hiker. He just likes to light a pipe, get on hiking togs, and strike out for uncharted courses.

Louis V. Woulfe, animal industry, has to his credit six trips afoot, covering more than 3,000 miles. He is an aspirant, it is said, for Weston's shoes. Dr. George Pope, of the latter bureau, has a great fondness for measuring foot expeditions with a pedometer.

To this group may be added a contingent of men and women, scattered in different bureaus, who are ardent members of the Appalachian Trail Club and who like to pursue the mysteries of mountain trails. These are:

Wendell Rawlins, solicitor's office; Lillian A. Krause, animal industry; Vivian Robb and Marion E. Lapp, chemistry and soils; G. E. Marvin, entomology, and Corabel Bien, main library. The plant industry bureau presents a strong front with the following membership:

Oscar J. Dowd, Neil E. Stevens, Ernest Bailey, Harry A. Allard, P. L. Rickard and Ernest L. Crandall. Since public roads is a bureau of the Agriculture Department it is in keeping for this Federal agency to be largely represented by the "road" fraternity.

After shoveling the snow off the sidewalk in front of his residence and from a 160-foot walk in the rear thereof, Walter P. Zeph, division of classification, Postoffice Department, who made a visit the early part of October to Miami, Fla., has come to the conclusion his visit was made about two weeks too soon. He reports his back is still sore.

"SO HIS chauffeur," reads the pick-up line from the last-mentioned of Swarmi Fedd and the Paris note. Now start reading:

So his chauffeur, needing little encouragement for another motor whirligig and seeing Swarmi in a daze, yes, it seemed like days and daze, to Swarmi, picked up all Swarmi's belongings from the sidewalk and started loading them into the tonneau. They weighed nearly a ton. This time Mr. Fedd showed his note to the chauffeur. The latter understood. After reading the address he threw his gears into reverse and away they went straight ahead.

We notice Col. U. S. Grant 3d, P. B. and P. P. director, likes good music and harmony, judging by his attendance at "The Student Prince."

Havy Fedd, Swarmi's half-brother, was waiting for an Eastern Air Transport plane from New York when he encountered David G. Arnold, Legal Division, Department of Justice. Havy Fedd served in Troop B, Rhode Island Cavalry, when Maj. Arnold was only a lieutenant in that outfit, during the Mexican border days and subsequently under Capt. (now Maj.) Arnold in France. . . . Now don't get excited, D. G., we're not even going to mention Paris or Chevigny farm. . . . We were just remembering the major ranked very high in Newport's famous society circle and some of "the 400" (horrors, we're so used to making 8 marks before figures) ladies wanted to do something nice for D. G.'s boys who were preparing to leave for France. So-o-o-o, they sent each private, corporal and sergeant in the troop a beautiful pair of delicately tinted pajamas. The boys naturally were proud of their new regalia and donned their outfits one evening to stage a parade before Battery B of the Field Artillery. . . . Most of the pajama suits ended up in the horsepond, but then the troop was hopelessly outnumbered, so we just can't consider it a moral victory.

TO Mr and Mrs. A. L. Duncan, Miss Amy Cross, Miss Eula Bates, Mrs. Brownie Kerr, Clifford Bowman, James Dougherty and Earl Martin: The next time you play bridge at the home of Miss Lillian Hicks (1435 Spring road northwest)—who, by the way, is one of Uncle Sam's girls at the General Accounting Office, don't tie for the prize. Stew expensive.

You see, the hostess had to furnish each and every guest a prize, all on account of tying. And in times like these!

One doesn't necessarily have to take the word of Randolph Shaw, chief counsel, Prohibition Bureau, that he likes golf. Your present correspondent, S. Fedd, saw him trudging over the soft ground at Kenwood Country Club Monday. The same authority can be cited that broke "hundred." And when he breaks "hundred" it stays "broke."

Somewhere some one said:

Misses Jesse Kundel, Veterans' Administration, and Glendoris Huffman, Agriculture Department, spent the holidays in Pennsylvania, visiting Miss Kundel's home.

Miss Eleanor Townshend, Agriculture, spent the week-end at Oakland, Md., with parents, accompanied by Miss Frances Snyder, Internal Revenue.

Richard Dill, Bureau of Standards, drove home to North Carolina.

Miss Peggy Jane Houston, War Department, Air Corps, spent Christmas in Latrobe, Pa., with mother and brother.

If the ladies of Internal Revenue Bureau missed Clarence Sipes, this will explain his absence over the holidays, Clarence and the wife motored to Columbia, S. C., to visit Mrs. Sipes' brother. We haven't heard how many detours they encountered. Sorta detourists, maybe.

D. H. Reichgut, chief Personnel Division, Prohibition Bureau, we wish you speedy recovery from illness.

A. L. (Al) Duncan, whose pleasant personality makes work easier for employes of Records Division, Internal Revenue Bureau, of which he is assistant chief, is assisting his wife entertain Mrs. Duncan's sister, Miss Amy Cross, who came down from New York for a holiday.

To J. Sig Marks, chief, Medical Record Section, Bureau of Medicine and Surgery, Navy Department: We hope, and feel sure, you'll be back on the job soon, despite those two weeks in Naval Hospital.

Incidentally, hasn't Chief Marks a lengthy title?

Have you a little guppy! in your home? Or a large one? It seems that everybody in Washington who had a pair now have hundreds. Friday evening, January 20, Fred Orsinger, Aquarium, informs us, the National Aquarium Society will open an exhibit, Department of Commerce Building. Prizes to boys and girls for the best guppyi, two males, one female.

John Ruel Manning, in charge of technological investigations, Fisheries, notes with amusement, the story in Saturday's The Federal Diary about his Christmas present of fish from Florida. But he hastens to advise Swarmi Fedd that the latter has missed the best part of the story.

Seems Chester "Damrosch" Tolle, who runs the white rat laboratory of the bureau, took part of John's fish off his hands. Chester was the boy who anted up the 27 cents. Now in this shipment of fish were some froglegs and Chester got some of the froglegs. When Chester arrived home with them, his "best argument," who hails from Kansas, where the Florida bullfrogs do not visit, would have none of them.

The lady insisted they were rat legs from Chester's laboratory, so Chester simply had to cook and eat the frog legs all by himself. We wonder if Chester has an original way of meeting times like these and perhaps has put something over on the wife. But then the lady is not so easy for the "put-over." No, sir!

H. W. Dorsey, chief clerk, Smithsonian, has received the thanks of the Red Cross for memberships subscribed by the Institution's personnel.

Joseph S. Grimes, assistant clerk in charge, and Meyer Kans, both of Patent Office search room, last night started out for a sorority dance at Sunnybrook, which, as they said, is "not as far as Camp Spring but beyond Congress Heights." Wonder if they found the place?

When it's 6 o'clock in Shanghai, it's Sunday night over here. So that may be the reason Janet Nunn, Commerce, has received an unexpected present, a letter from Shanghai office of the department, elaborating on the importance of monthly economic figures and facts which Janet forwards to personnel in the Far East. Even so, it's a rather long-range how-do-you-do?

Today at 11 o'clock in the office of the Alien Property Custodian, the custodian himself, will present to John H. Newman a matched cane and umbrella set, a present from Mr. Newman's associates in the office of the Alien Property Custodian on the occasion of his retiring from the Government service. Presentation in room 721, Hurley-Wright Building. To Karl Wallace Greene: we'll be there, too, with pleasure.

Such popularity is deserved. Charles E. Molster, Commerce, always gets a big hand, for Charlie, as disbursing officer, always sees that the "ghost" walks with those little brown pay envelopes in advance when regular pay days interfere with legal holidays.

"We see by the paper where Arthur Brisbane refers to 'SMALL FRY,' not protected by Civil Service," who "are wondering."

How come?

That portrait of Willis B. Magruder, presented by patent attorneys of Washington to the Patent Office and accepted by Commissioner Thomas E. Robertson, yesterday hung in its place of honor. Mr. Magruder, 73, was presented with a purse of gold, while former fellow workers of Mr. Magruder presented him with flowers. Mr. Magruder, for 25 years, was chief of the Assignment Division.

J. Finney Engle, who has 42 years' service, soldier subdivision, pension service, Veterans' Administration, and Dr. George M. Beckett, examiner in the subdivision, with 46 years' service, will be retired Saturday. Both have received letters of commendation from Gen. Frank T. Hines, veterans' affairs administrator. Dr. Beckett lives at 2129 G street. Mr. Engle lives at 706 North Carolina avenue southeast.

ARTIFICIAL GROWTH OF KIDNEYS SHOWN

Science Congress Also Told of Strange Discovery About Gravitation.

Atlantic City, N. J., Dec. 29 (A.P.). Success in causing kidneys to grow artificially on a glass slide under a microscope and a significant medical discovery resulting from watching the "wheels" of this "living machine" were reported to the American Association for the Advancement of Science today.

A "surprising" mathematical discovery about the possible effects of gravitation, which is almost as strange as saying that gravitation might sometime pull in the opposite direction, was also announced today.

The kidney work was described by Prof. Robert Chambers, of New York University. The artificially grown organs were from mice and chickens, old and young alike. Sections of the kidneys "lived and worked" for two weeks under the microscope.

How Kidney "Factory" Works.

The sections were complete tubules, the first time, Dr. Chambers said, that this entire unit of kidney has been raised artificially. The tubule is the "unit," a complete machine in the kidney "factory." A kidney is a collection of thousands of these tubules.

The surprising thing that gravitation does was reported by Dr. Richard C. Tolman, of California Institute of Technology. It happens in a new model of the universe made mathematically by Dr. Tolman, the latest of a series by him which have attracted world-wide attention in the last two years.

This one is a whopper—100,000,000 light years across. That means it is a full sixth of the diameter of all the space which great telescopes can see. It is made of gas—monatomic, or one kind of gas only. So it differs from the original state of creation as conceived by science, which was also gas, but a gas made of all the different kinds of chemical elements.

Giant Model's Revelation.

The real universe appears to be expanding like a soap bubble, and unable to stop, which translated into simple ideas means that if this keeps on everything will become absolutely cold with no life anywhere.

But Dr. Tolman's giant model both expands and contracts. The contraction of his gas bubble is equivalent to showing a universe which can some day start growing young again. In other words return to the state of creation of the dim past and start all over.

He operates this model with the laws of Einstein's general relativity, and thermodynamics, the principles of heat which every machine-age mechanic uses in his day's work.

That this model universe should be able to contract is a surprise, but the mathematics show it happens, and that is where gravitation comes in. Gravitation is one of the two important mathematical factors which result in the unexpected contraction. The other factor is general relativity.

Tobacco Growers' Problem Analyzed

American Economic Association Told Needs by Experts.

Cincinnati, Dec. 29 (A.P.).—A committee of experts reported to the American Economic Association tonight "there is no reason to believe" collective bargaining by tobacco growers will succeed "until tobacco growers become much more experienced in cooperation and have a better understanding of the problems, possibilities and limitations of mass selling."

The report was presented by H. B. Price, of the University of Kentucky. Asher Hobson, of the University of Virginia, led the discussion that followed.

Both were members of the committee that studied the tobacco situation. Other members were James C. Stone, chairman of the Federal Farm Board; C. E. Brehm, of the University of Tennessee; William Collins and Mordecai Ezekiel, of the Federal Farm Board; I. G. Davis, of Connecticut Agricultural College; James Dickey, of the United States Department of Agriculture; L. G. Foster, of Ohio State University, and John Hutcheson, of Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

U. S. Fishing Craft Held By Mexico to Be Seized

San Diego, Calif., Dec. 29 (A.P.).—Joaquin F. Tena, Mexican fish and game commissioner here, today notified owners of the Peerless, Maine and Balboa, market fishing boats held at Ensenada, Mex., that the boats would be confiscated unless fines of 500 pesos each were paid within 20 days.

Wiley Ambrose, president of the West Gate Sea Products Co., which owns the Peerless, reiterated his charges that the seizure of the Peerless by the Mexican patrol boat Rof No. 1 constituted "piracy on the high seas." He said affidavits concerning its capture have been sent to William A. Smale, American consul at Ensenada, to be forwarded to the State Department at Washington.

Four Bank Bandits Get $3,000.

Wanatah, Ind., Dec. 29 (A.P.).—A band of four men held up the Wanatah State Bank today and looted it of nearly $3,000. After gathering up all the cash three men fled to a car driven by a companion and drove away in the direction of Illinois.

MYSTERIOUS GUEST OF HOTEL M'COIN DISAPPEARANCE CLEW

formation from roadhouses or gasoline filling stations, where the green car of McCoin might have stopped.

While they have no reason to presume the anonymous letter mailed to the "Supreme Court Judge" at Raleigh from Chicago early this week, telling of the murder of McCoin and of disposing of his body, is a hoax, Linthicum frankly admits he is skeptical and is hopeful of finding McCoin alive, a probable victim of amnesia.

Linthicum said his uncle was a man of considerable wealth, apparently had no financial worries, was a former State senator of North Carolina and a member of the State budget commission.

Actions Were Peculiar.

At the conference here today with Linthicum and Chief of Police J. H. Langston, of Henderson, N. C., with local authorities, the nephew said the actions of his uncle when last seen were rather peculiar.

He told of his uncle leaving Henderson to keep an important engagement at a Richmond bank, but on arriving at the outskirts of Richmond he asked directions of a filling station attendant which would have taken him direct to Washington. The attendant claims McCoin started in the direction pointed out, although he was perfectly familiar with the route leading to Richmond and his appointment.

Linthicum also said a young farm employe of McCoin, who accompanied the attorney from Henderson to the vicinity of McCoin's farm near Richmond, told how McCoin during the 100-mile ride drove his car off the road three times and seemed bewildered during the trip and often consulted his watch.

Hopes Are Aroused.

Henderson, N. C., Dec. 29 (A.P.).—The belief that R. S. McCoin, 60-year-old attorney, had been slain, gave way to hope that he is still alive with the receipt here today of a report from Columbus, Ohio, that McCoin's automobile had been stored in a garage there Saturday by a man answering the description of its owner.

F. F. Kundts, Columbus police chief, telegraphed Henderson police that a postcard photo of McCoin had been tentatively identified as the man who took the car to the garage, and requested a better photograph to further identification.

Meantime, the anonymous letter from "a boy in distress," which purported to recount the killing of a motorist near Petersburg, Va., last Thursday—the day McCoin dropped out of sight while on a business trip to Richmond—was closely scrutinized, and some doubt was expressed as to its authenticity.

Believed Hardly Credible.

Virginia authorities yesterday were reported to have expressed the belief the letter's account of a slaying on the Petersburg-Richmond highway early Thursday afternoon was hardly credible. McCoin's automobile was found in a Columbus garage last Saturday night and his personal belongings were strewn about in the machine, several bearing spots that resembled blood. These articles are being analyzed.

The letter, mailed from Chicago Christmas night to the "Supreme Judge of the Supreme Court of North Carolina," at Raleigh, told that a lone motorist driving a car resembling McCoin's, had been slain and buried after he refused to pay damages following upon an intentional wreck staged for the purpose of obtaining money.

The letter writer said he was an innocent member of the party of four which killed the man, burned his clothes and then continued their way from Florida North.

First Word Since Letter.

Today's report from the Ohio city was the first word, aside from the letter, that a man resembling McCoin had been seen since he disappeared after stopping at a Richmond, Va., filling station while on his way from his home to visit his 1,600-acre farm at Dewitt, Va.

An intensive search was under way in Columbus, in Virginia, Maryland and Washington for clews that might lead to some definite discovery of the missing man.

Meanwhile, McCoin's private and personal papers were checked here today, and A. B. Webster, business associate, said everything appeared to have been left in good order.

Webster said McCoin, contrary to a report yesterday, had purchased one $1,000 North Carolina State bond instead of two and given it to his wife. The report said he had bought two in order that his wife might cash them "if anything happens to me."

Students Opposing War Protest Campus Drills

Chicago, Dec. 29 (A.P.).—The Student Congress Against War raised its voice in protest today against military training for students at colleges and universities. Speakers denounced maintenance of Reserve Officers Training Corps on campuses and the resolutions committee presented the 650 delegates at the congress with an opportunity to vote for abolition of them.

Military training is compulsory for colleges receiving Government land grants, the resolution pointed out, so another resolution proposing repeal of the Morrell land grant act by Congress was formulated.

"All right, Ding-How," the little fellow was assured.

GEOLOGISTS DISCUSS MASTODON HUNTING

Convention Hears Sargasso Sea Once Existed in Western New York State.

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 29 (A.P.).—Mastodons which may have been hunted by post-glacial Indians and a sargasso sea which flourished in what now is western New York, vied today for the interest of scientists attending the joint annual conventions of the American Geological, Mineralogical and Paleontological societies, here.

Later the delegates to the three meetings turned their attention to glacial evidences in New England and to a score or more of other subjects, many of them of great technical importance.

Tonight, at the annual banquet of the forty-fifth convention of Geological Society, the Penrose medal for distinguished achievement was presented to its fifth recipient, Dr. Edward Oscar Ulrich, of Washington, D. C., who was recently retired from the U. S. Geological Survey. Ulrich is regarded as one of the leading paleontologists of America. The medal was presented by Dr. W. D. Hotchkiss, president of the Michigan College of Mining and Technology.

At the same time the society honored the sole survivor of the 13 men who formed it in 1888, Dr. Herman LeRoy Fairchild, 83-year-old professor emeritus of geology at the University of Rochester, N. Y., with a bound and inscribed copy of "The Geological Society of America," a history which he helped to prepare. Fairchild is a former president of the society.

Soviet Decrees Healthy Housewives Must Work

Moscow, Dec. 29 (A.P.).—Russian housewives who now may purchase for themselves small rations of bread and sugar from the government stores, will lose that privilege after January 1 and thereafter will have to earn those commodities by working in the factories.

The government decreed today that after the first of the year all housewives under the age of 56 will be deprived of the cards which entitled them to purchase sugar and bread. In the category of housewives are included all healthy women not engaged in "socially useful" work. The wives of a number of high government officials are in this class.

MUSICIANS' PARLEY TO CONCLUDE TODAY

Two-Piano Recital, Speeches and Luncheon Mark Day's Activities.

The music teacher was termed a "minister of beauty" by Ernest Hutcheson, dean of the Juilliard School of Music, when he spoke yesterday at the piano forum, which was a feature bit of the program of the Music Teachers National Association convention.

The finale of the convention is scheduled for today with speeches by such notables as Deems Taylor, Walter Damrosch, George Wedge and Peter W. Dykema. There will also be a concert by Mr. and Mrs. Philip Abbas, on the viola da gamba and the harpsichord.

A part of yesterday's program included a concert—a two-piano recital—by Mary Howe, composer-pianist, of Washington, and Ann Hull, of New York.

The voice forum brought a message of uplift from George Ferguson, who presided. Mr. Ferguson also spoke of the height to which an artist may attain; the degree being entirely within himself. Percy Rector Stephens, again upon the voice, gave its physical aspects as dependant upon daily living. "Posture" was his topic. He cited John Charles Thomas and Lawrence Tibbett as two Americans who brought that fundamental need to the background of their art.

Mrs. William Arms Fisher led the sessions on the choral forum, with vital words from Mrs. Eugene Meyer on her own Westchester festival, and with Albert Stoessel, director of the Westchester festival, and of other festivals, talking of them. Several groups of students from the Washington public schools sang during an interlude, introduced by Dr. E. N. C. Barnes, director of music here.

A joint luncheon at the Hotel Washington yesterday assembled many of these most distinguished artists in friendly discourse when the National Federation of Music Clubs, with its national president, Mrs. Ruth Haller Ottaway, presiding, and the Mu Phi Epsilon Sorority, Miss Edith Athey, presiding, met in the hall of the nations.

Trade Zone Asked On Rockville Pike

Mrs. Nicholson, Dry Chief, Files Application for Her Property.

Application for permanent zoning as commercial of her property on the Rockville pike adjacent to the Waverly Sanitarium was filed yesterday by Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson, 103 Newlands street, Chevy Chase, Md., in the office of the Montgomery County Commissioners at Rockville, Md. Mrs. Nicholson is a well-known dry leader.

Mrs. Nicholson recites that the property, now used as a gasoline station, is zoned commercial through use prior to adoption of the zoning amendment, but asks that the zoning be made permanent. It is expected that her application will bring forth a storm of protest from the members of the Rockville Pike Citizens Association, which has opposed consistently any commercial use of property on the pike.

The county commissioners approved a new set of regulations and rules for the conduct of the North Chevy Chase special taxing area, presented by James Pugh, attorney for the corporation. They announced that further hearings on assessments revision in the suburban area will be held at Rockville Thursday.

Shenandoah Snow Boon to Farmers

Recent Fall Will Provide Required Moisture for Subsoil.

Luray, Va., Dec. 29 (A.P.).—The recent snow was the first of any consequence in this section in three years, County Agent G. H. Clark said today, and will mean thousands of dollars to farmers and orchardists in the Page Valley as well as to the entire Shenandoah Valley.

Mr. Clark said young trees had not grown for three years because of lack of moisture in the subsoil, and prior to the snow were in danger of dying because of that condition and the freezing temperature.

Fall grains and alfalfa also were materially helped by the snowfall, Mr. Clark said.

Violence by Unemployed Is Denied in Richmond

Richmond, Va., Dec. 29 (A.P.).—Reports, made public by Chief of Police R. B. Jordon, that members of the Richmond Unemployed Council will be armed with pistols when they present future demands to city officials were denied promptly today by Thomas H. Stone, acting head of the council.

Chief Jordon said he had information regarding secret meetings of the council and that armed violence was being planned. Stone branded the reports as "absolutely untrue."

Cherrydale Man, 72, Badly Injured by Car

Walter McGarrity, 72, of Cherrydale, Arlington County, is in Emergency Hospital here suffering from a broken left leg and arm as a result of being struck by an automobile operated by J. L. Wilkins, of Falls Church, on Lee Highway last night.

According to investigating police, the accident was unavoidable. McGarrity, it is said, stepped in front of the approaching car.

Virginia General Store Fire Loss Is $4,000

Leesburg, Va., Dec. 29 (A.P.).—Loss estimated at $4,000 resulted from the fire which destroyed the general merchandise store of S. O. Burton at Lenah Tuesday night.

The fire is believed to have been started by thieves, who first robbed the store and then intentionally or accidentally set fire to the place.

Newport News, Va., Dec. 29 (A.P.).—A committee to draft a legislative program for all branches of the seafood industry was authorized today at the annual meeting of the Oystermen's Protective Association.

Fifth Symphony Concert Draws Applause of 3,000

"Through the Looking Glass," by Deems Taylor, Marks High Spot on Program of Brilliant Entertainment; Music Teachers Guests.

A brilliant performance, brilliant in presentation as well as in the fortunate choice of selections, marked the fifth of the current series of popular concerts played by the National Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Dr. Hans Kindler, last night in Constitution Hall before an audience of more than 3,000. The concert was given in the honor of members and distinguished guests of the Music Teachers' National Association.

The high spot of the program was the playing for the first time in Washington of Deems Taylor's suite, "Through the Looking Glass," in its orchestral form. In its five parts—"Dedication," "The Garden of Live Flowers," "Jabberwocky," "Looking-Glass Insects," "The White Knight"—the suite is no less fanciful, amusing, and entertaining as a musical composition than is Lewis Carroll's immortal tale on which this opus is based. At the conclusion of the number, Mr. Taylor received an ovation second only to which greeted the final number on the program.

Last night Washington heard for the first time the polka and fugue from Jaromir Weinberger's opera "Schwanda, der Dudelsackpeifer," as the concluding offering of the orchestra. If the entire opera follows in brilliance these two selections, its popularity in Germany is easily justified, for few operas introduced here on the concert stage—save, perchance, Gomes' "Salvador Rose"—have met such enthusiastic and spontaneous acclaim.

Two other American composers held important places on the program, Edward MacDowell and John Powell. The former's "Dirge" from his second or "Indian" suite, and the latter's "Natchez On the Hill," fabricated from three fiddle tunes of Virginia (heard earlier during the present season), drew their well-deserved plaudits.

Upholding the more classic phase of the concert—that is, works of composers who are better known on symphonic programs, but surely no more worthy of unstinted commendation than the compositions played of those of more recent years—were selections from the works of Johann Sebastian Bach and Peter Ilich Tchaikovsky. From the "Organ Concerto in G Major" of Bach came the opening selection, the grave and allegro movements, and from the great Russian composer the fantasy-overture, "Romeo and Juliet," into which is woven a musical interpretation of the various themes of Shakespeare's immortal tragedy.

W. A. WHITNEY.

Delegates to Convention Honor Guests at Concert

Members of the music convention who were honor guests at the National Symphony concert last night included Dr. Swarthout, Carl Engel, Deems Taylor, Mrs. Ruth Haller Ottaway, Herbert Witherspoon, Mrs. H. H. A. Beach, Mrs. Frances Clark, Mr. and Mrs. William Arms Fisher, Miss Angela Diller, Miss Elizabeth Quaile, Dr. Z. Barney Phillips, Harold Bauer, Mrs. Franklin Ellis, Rudolf Gans, Edwin Hughes, C. M. Tremaine, J. E. Maddy, Peter W. Dykema, J. Lawrence Erb, Earl V. Moore, George Ferguson, Percy Rector Stephens, Dr. J. T. Quarles, Leo C. Miller, Karl Gehrkens, Oscar W. Demmler, Palmer Charitian, Glen Gildersleeve, Albert Riemenschneider, Glenn Tyndal and others.

HUNGER MARCH COST TO VIRGINIA IS $1,813

Director of Motor Vehicles Asks Reimbursement for Outlay on Escort.

Richmond, Va., Dec. 29 (A.P.).—"Marchers" who demonstrated at the opening of Congress in Washington early this month cost the Commonwealth of Virginia $1,813.67.

An itemized account of the expenditure necessitated by their escort back and forth through the State was sent to Gov. Pollard today by T. McCall Frazier, director of the division of motor vehicles, whose division bore the cost.

In his report Mr. Frazier requested that his division be reimbursed from some other fund, if possible, asserting that by the end of the fiscal year the division will be "pressed for funds with which to carry on the necessary duties of this office."

Economies Detailed.

Director Frazier, in the communication, explained that although his appropriations have not suffered by the two 10 per cent cuts ordered by Gov. Pollard for general fund appropriations, it is his "sincere desire to cooperate * * * in every way possible in affecting economies and giving extra hours of service in order that all money possible might be saved for the State."

He said he had already ordered a 10 per cent cut applicable to his entire $722,520 appropriation for the fiscal year 1932, including the $300,000 allocated by the General Assembly for the administration of the new automobile operators' license law. In addition to this the director said his office forces will be put on an 8:30 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. work day schedule, beginning January 1, in an effort to accomplish additional work placed on the division by the last General Assembly without additional clerks.

Handling of Marchers.

Frazier informed the chief executive that in escorting the "marchers" from the West Virginia line to Washington and the return trip, a distance of approximately 204 miles was covered.

"Sixty of our police force were used in handling approximately 1,300 'marchers' from Richmond to Washington," he continued. "On the return trip the same number of our force was employed in handling from Washington to the West Virginia line approximately 1,600 people, in two groups. Thirty-five cars were used to transport our force."

DELAY IN SELECTING BALL JURY IS SEEN

Commonwealth Will Seek to Have Panel Locked Up During Proceedings.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Efforts will be made by the Commonwealth to have the jury which will hear the second trial of E. Wade Ball, former Arlington County treasurer, in Arlington Circuit Court, locked up during the course of the trial, it was learned last night.

This attempt will be made, it was said, to avoid difficulties which developed at Ball's first trial through the alleged statements of a juror.

Because it has been intimated that the list of 100 persons who will report for jury duty includes 60 who were called for the first trial and who will be ineligible for the second, some delay is expected in selecting the twelve who will hear the case.

Whether the Commonwealth will renew its request for the impaneling of the jury from another county if the present list should not provide the veniremen, could not be learned.

Fire from an overheated flue threatened the home of James I. Signor at Penrose, Arlington County, yesterday afternoon.

Inspection of the damaged flue by members of the Arlington Fire Department showed that wooden framework came in contact with the flue. Damage was placed at $200.

Gus Anderson, alias Blue, colored, surrendered to Arlington County police early yesterday as a result of the fatal stabbing of Henry Williams, also colored, Wednesday night during a fight at East Arlington. Anderson was jailed by Deputy Sheriff Harry L. Woodyard on a charge of murder.

The special New Year services at the Falls Church Presbyterian Church will be featured by the choir, which will repeat at the evening service the special Christmas music of last Sunday. The musical program will include: Prelude, "Adeste Fidelis;" three anthems, "The People That Walked in Darkness," "The Star" and "O Holy Night," with soprano solo and obbligato by Mrs. Mary E. Ryer; a tenor solo, "Voices of the Sky," by Walter S. Frick, and an organ postlude, "Shout the Glad Tidings."

The Rev. Alton B. Altfather, pastor, will speak at the morning service on "Through the New Year—With Whom?" and at the evening service on "A Voice From the Wilderness for 1933."

Long-Lost Edmund Spenser Volume Purchased for $25

Only Known Copy of Plato Dialogue, "Axiochus," Sought Since 1758, Picked Up by American Educator in British Bookseller's List.

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 29 (A.P.).—The discovery of a lost work of Edmund Spenser as the result of a casual listing in an English bookseller's catalogue was related today by Dean Frederick Morgan Padelford, of the University of Washington Graduate School. Copies, he said, have been sought since 1758.

A year ago, Dean Padelford told the annual meeting of the Modern Language Association at Yale University, he noticed the catalogue listing of a description which concluded:

"At the end is a 12mo edition of Axiochus, a dialogue by Plato, translated by Edward (sic) Spenser, London, printed for Cuthbert Burbie, 1592. This has been taken to pieces and each leaf inlaid to folio size."

The amazed but skeptical dean purchased it for $25 and verified its authenticity. He refused today to estimate its actual value, but pointed out that a first edition of Spenser's "The Shepheardes Calendar," which is rare but of which several copies exist, recently sold for $17,000. This is the only known copy of the poet's "Axiochus" translation.

In 1758, Dean Padelford said, John Upton, a distinguished Spenser scholar, expressed a plan to edit the translation. He died without carrying out the proposal. Scholars have unsuccessfuly sought a copy.

The Oxford bookseller from whom the work came told Dean Padelford he obtained it from "a Shropshire family." Dean Padelford pointed out that economic conditions are forcing many old English families to sell their libraries.

Dean Padelford expressed the opinion the original publication at one time belonged to Francis Atterbury, Bishop of Rochester from 1662 to 1732, who was a friend of literary men and a student of Spenser.

Fire Apparatus Passing Signal Is Recommended

Amendment of traffic laws which would require that fire apparatus en route to a fire should not pass other apparatus going in the same direction, or that some suitable signal should be given to the first piece of apparatus before the second passes, is advocated in a resolution adopted by the Gaithersburg-Washington Grove Volunteer Fire Department.

The resolution was adopted after an inquiry into the accident Tuesday morning, in which a Gaithersburg fireman was injured and the fire truck demolished when it ran from the road while a Rockville Department truck was passing. Copies of the resolution are to be sent to the county firemen's association, the county commissioners, the Rockville Department and the commissioner of motor vehicles.

CHURCH PLANS 1933 NEW YEAR'S SERVICE

Virginia Pastor to Preside at Old Ceremony of Opening Door.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Fairfax 166.

A New Year's Eve watch night service will be held tomorrow evening in the Old Falls Episcopal Church in Falls Church, Va.

The Rev. Clarence Stuart McClelland, rector of the church, assisted by a group of singers and members of the congregation, will conduct the services. Old and new year carols and hymns will be sung. The theme of the rector's earlier address will be "Forgetting It," and for the later address "Stretching Ahead."

Just before midnight taps will be sounded while "Abide With Me" is sung during the service of symbolic lights. The old ceremony of opening the church door to let the old year out and to welcome in the new year will be conducted by the rector. Reveille will be sounded just after the chimes strike midnight.

Special music will feature the services, which will be held by candle light. A general invitation has been extended to the public.

J. C. Parrott, clerk-treasurer of Falls Church, Va., has announced that he will be at the town police station on Washington street tomorrow from 9 a. m. to 7 p. m. to collect taxes on all property within the corporate limits of the town, before the penalty is applied on January 1.

The road building program of the town council has drawn heavily upon the municipal finances during the past year and it is necessary to collect as much tax cash as possible in order to continue the necessary work.

The Fairfax Hunt Club, at Sunset Hills, Va., will hold a New Year's fox hunt tomorrow morning along the banks of the Potomac River above Great Falls. Following the chase, in which many prominent horsemen of Washington and northern Virginia will participate, a hunt breakfast will be served in the clubhouse at Sunset Hills. It has been announced that the club will not hold its annual New Year's dance this season.

Full Operation of Spa Draw Bridge Approved

(Associated Press.)

Secretary of War Hurley yesterday approved the petition of Annapolis navigation interests for 24-hour operation of the draw bridge across Spa Creek between Annapolis and Eastport, Md.

Regulation in effect since 1908 provides for operation of the draw from sunrise to sunset only. The petitioners said the regulation practically restricts the use of boats kept in the anchorage area above the bridge to daylight hours. The bridge owners opposed the change on the grounds that traffic does not justify the cost of operation of the draw between sunset and sunrise.

Lighthouse Offices Transfer to Stand

Service Division Will Be Moved to Norfolk Despite Protest.

(Associated Press.)

The lighthouse service has refused to change its plan to shift its division office from Baltimore to Norfolk.

In letters to Senators Tydings and Goldsborough, of Maryland, revealed yesterday, the service described Norfolk as "the natural center of the district," which extends from Pennsylvania to the southern boundary of North Carolina, and declined the Maryland senators' request that the office be kept where it is.

About 35 families will be involved in the change, the lighthouse service said. The transfer will take place within the next two years.

Slide Feared

Mountain Rift May Nudge Neighbor; Residents Ready to Flee.

Durango, Colo., Dec. 29 (A.P.).—Carbon Mountain shook and groaned and tossed more tons of rock down its scarred slopes today as Durango citizens gave serious thought to forecasts that it might nudge its neighbor, Smelter Mountain, over into the town.

Smelter Mountain, which rises steeply from the edge of the city, is between Durango and Carbon Mountain. Geologists said the fault causing the Carbon Mountain slides extended into Smelter Mountain, and that the latter might become active at any time.

There were many theories as to the cause of the movement.

Prof. Claude E. Needham, of the New Mexico School of Mines, who is here to study the phenominon, has inspected the mountain and, after considering all causes for similar actions, found that none of them quite fit this case. Caving of underground caverns or mines, working of rock desposits on slippery foundations and many other theories have been examined and discarded.

Durango folk, who have been quite pleased with the back-door show of a full-grown mountain doing a tumbling act, hurried out to take another look today when the possibility of damage to the town was revealed.

It was generally agreed that the prospect of Carbon pushing Smelter over into the town was not nearly so entertaining as the phenomenon had been when it was 3 miles away. No action has been noted in Smelter Mountain, but residents who live at the base of its towering cliffs were preparing to evacuate at the first rumble.

A heavy snow which fell on the torn and scarred face of the mountain today was hurled off in showering cascades when the north and south fault became active.

The main east and west action, which runs from the floor of the Animas Valley to the top of the mountain, had subsided today, but had not ceased. The north and south action, however, increased greatly and new crevices appeared, several of them scarring the solid mesa verde sandstone formation which crops out near the top.

The action began almost two weeks ago.

Jail Lauded

Rockville Prisoner Issues "Statement," Grateful for Comforts.

Elmer Wims, a colored prisoner who is quite a connoisseur of jails, yesterday issued a statement to the press from the Rockville Jail.

He states: "Elmer Wims, a colored prisoner of the Rockville Jail, says he feels himself very fortunate to have been put in Rockville Jail because it is the cleanest and most comfortable jail of all eleven he has been in. The beds are as soft as feathers, with wonderful springs. He (Elmer Wims) says the Christmas dinner at the Rockville Jail was the most delicious and finest dinner he ever ate. Soon after that the warden himself served cake and fruit to the prisoners.

"The dinner was cooked by Mrs. Moxley (wife of the jailer, Joseph Moxley). He also states that the other meals were very good and they always had a plenty to eat. He says the jail is as pretty on the inside as it is on the out. You can always feel at home in Rockville Jail says Elmer Wims."

Jailer Moxley yesterday reported to county commissioners that he spends 21 cents a day per prisoner for food.

PUMPING STATION'S ERECTION APPROVED

Project at Burnt Mills Is Authorized; Other Work Also to Begin.

Early construction of the new 10,000,000-gallon pumping station at Burnt Mills, Md. has been authorized by the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission. An emergency pumping station at Kenilworth, a new standpipe at Capitol Heights and system extensions in Takoma Park, Md., also were authorized.

A pipe line will be laid from the Patuxent River to Paint Branch and from there to Northwest Branch as part of a cut over from the river to the new pumping station. This is expected to augment the commission's water supply.

A series of articles in The Washington Post pointing out the need for improvement in the sanitary commission was followed by prompt action of the commission in obviating the trouble.

The new filtration plant and pumping station will be constructed in two units, each having a 5,000,000-gallon capacity. Work is to begin at once on one of these. The present filtration plant and pumping station will be demolished and the second unit built on its site.

The Kenilworth pumping station will connect with the District water mains and have an initial capacity of 1,500,000 gallons and is expected to be constructed in the spring. The stand pipe at Capitol Heights is expected to improve the pressure in that area. It will be 52 feet high, 72 feet in diameter and will be constructed on property owned by the commission on Brooke road.

Extension of water mains in Franklin avenue, Seven Oaks; Floral avenue, north of Blair road, and in Houston street, Takoma Park, was authorized.

Virginia Official Urges Permanent Relief Plan

Richmond, Va., Dec. 29 (A.P.).—"Permanent" relief measures, among them a minimum wage for all workers, a shorter work day and week, and unemployment insurance, were suggested today by Commissioner John Hopkins Hall, jr., of the State department of labor and industry.

His recommendations, embodied in the department's thirty-fifth annual report, included also inflation of the currency, the prevention of hoarding, and a guarantee of a more equitable distribution of the profits of industry.

Unpaid State Tax Average Near Half

Delinquency Rate Higher in Country Districts Than in Cities.

Richmond, Va., Dec. 29 (U.P.).—Reports received to date from about three-fourths of the counties and cities of the State show that the amount of delinquency in the payment of State taxes is averaging close to 50 per cent in the counties.

Although quite heavy in the cities, delinquency there is considerably less than in the rural districts. The reports are as of December 6, the date on which the 5 per cent penalty began to apply.

They refer to capitation taxes and taxes on intangibles and individual incomes, which go to the State. It is believed that the tax reports on tangible personal property and real estate, taxation sources that are segregated to the localities will show an equal, and possibly greater percentage of delinquency.

Reports of collections of State taxes as made to the State comptroller's office today were more encouraging than those of yesterday, when three out of five units reported delinquency in excess of 50 per cent. Of three counties reporting today, only one showed so great a percentage of delinquency.

Today's reports were as follows:

	Assessment	Collection
Carroll	$26,028.17	$16,988.66
Northumberland	14,189.99	7,039.07

Pet Cats With Bob Tails Increasing in Page County

Special to The Washington Post.

Luray, Va., Dec. 29.—Nine years ago when nature conferred a bobtail—about an inch long—on a Washington Maltese cat it perhaps did not think of its similarly affected offspring that would later be scattered over Page County.

The cat was given to Mrs. Ethel M. Cave, of this county, a number of years ago by Washington relatives. Since the feline has been a resident of this county, her home being in the Hollow Run neighborhood, she has become the mother of four litters of kittens, aggregating one dozen.

Of the dozen six were owners of bobtails like their mother. The other half dozen kittens had tails of regulation length.

In the first litter there was one with a bobtail. In the next litter two showed the mother was beginning to stamp her nature freak on her offspring in an impressive way.

In the next litter there was a dropping back to one bobtail kitten. In the last litter the mother cat staged another comeback with two bobtail kittens.

DESTITUTE FAMILY FOUND IN BOX CAR

Potomac Yards Men Donate $25 and Send Four to New Haven.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

A family of four—man, wife, and two little boys, 2 and 3 years old—was discovered yesterday morning in a box car in the Potomac freight yards by Arthur Powers, railroad policeman. The family, all of whom were suffering from exposure, had made their way from New Orleans, approximately 1,500 miles, in the same box car without detection. The man told Powers that he was trying to make his way to New Haven, Conn., where he had been promised work with a motor company.

The family was brought into the yard office and Paymaster Granville Studds was notified of their plight. He immediately started a collection among the men at the yards, with the assistance of J. O. Gallagan, and in a few minutes $25 was raised. The family was then taken to Washington and placed aboard a bus for New Haven and the money left after payment of the bus fare was given the mother.

Two colored men of three arrested were convicted in Alexandria Police Court yesterday. A third, William H. Adams, 21, was acquitted.

The men were occupants of a Washington taxicab which crashed into an Alexandria police car December 24, at Jefferson Park. William alias "Siderod" Turner, of Alexandria, admitted ownership of 30 half-gallons of liquor found in the car and was fined $150 and $40.50 costs. Harry Lowe, 33, of Washington, alleged to have been the driver of the car, was fined $50 and given a 30-day sentence as a hit-and-run driver, and fined $150 and $40.50 costs in connection with the transportation of liquor.

Policemen Townsend and Miller, who were in the police car, testified that they gave chase to the taxicab, which, they said, swerved from side to side of the road and finally crashed into a bank at Jefferson Park. In the dense fog prevailing at the time, the police car crashed into the other one. Adams was freed on his plea he had been given a lift by the other two.

Mrs. Anzea Parks, 50 years old, of 212 South Pitt street, Alexandria, was burned on the lip yesterday when a rifle containing a blank cartridge was accidentally fired by her granddaughter, Nancy Parks, 12 years old. First aid was given by Rescue Squad No. 1 of the Alexandria Fire Department.

Edward Penn died Wednesday night at his home, 305 East Lloyd avenue, Alexandria. He is survived by his wife and several children. The body was taken to the Cunningham funeral home. Arrangements will be announced later.

Funeral services for Mrs. Winfield Watkins, who died Wednesday, will be conducted at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon from her late residence, 426 North Columbus street, by the Rev. Dr. William Jackson Morton, rector of Christ Episcopal Church, and burial will be in Ivy Hill Cemetery.

Teachers' Pensions Near Virginia Limit

Purcell Warns Payment Must Be Curtailed or Principal Impaired.

Richmond, Va., Dec. 29 (A.P.).—The State teachers' pension fund will reach the limit of its liquid resources with the January payment, after which pensions must either be scaled down substantially or the remaining investments in the fund must be sold to meet the obligations, John Purcell, State Treasurer, revealed today.

There were 1,007 teachers on the pension roll when the last payment was made three months ago. The quarterly payment, made at the full rate, now totals approximately $66,000 and the annual drain on the fund is approximately $264,000. A full payment of the pensions due for payment in January has been authorized by the State Board of Education, Mr. Purcell said.

"After this," he said, "more investments must be disposed of to meet payments, or the payments must be scaled down to the level of the liquid asset of the fund."

Llewellyn Pugh Leaves $1,000,000

Will of Retired Planter Probated; He Died in Charlottesville.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Dec. 29.—The will of Llewellyn Pugh, of Belmont, near Keswick, retired sugar planter and broker, who died here three weeks ago, was probated today. It disposes of an estate valued at $1,000,000.

A trust fund is created for his daughter, Mrs. Sallie Pugh Haden, wife of Dr. William Dandridge Haden, this city, with the Girard Trust Co., of Philadelphia, to be invested in "sound nonspeculative securities." A codicil specified that none of the estate funds be invested in common carriers.

A granddaughter, Sallie Pugh Haden, who was married a fortnight ago to Joseph L. Yon, of Caraopolis, Pa., a student at the University of Virginia, receives $5,000. One thousand dollars each was left to three other grandchildren.

AN UNOFFICIAL VETO.

The role of a President-elect is extremely difficult. He has no authority between the time of his election and inauguration. Yet he has a vital interest in every action of the Government that may influence his own administration. For example, the budget which is now under consideration in Congress will be enacted without any official sanction from Gov. Roosevelt. Yet his administration will be bound by it from July 1, 1933, to June 30, 1934. Virtually every piece of legislation enacted at this present session will affect President-elect Roosevelt's administration.

In practice the President-elect usually makes his influence felt in a short session of Congress. This is especially true when the party which elected him has control of Congress. The Democratic leaders in the House make no secret of the fact that they are trying to enact Gov. Roosevelt's program before March 4. Almost no step is being taken without approval from Albany. Even though Gov. Roosevelt has no Federal authority and no official responsibility, he is in effect directing the efforts of the Democratic party in Congress.

President Hoover recognized the interest of the President-elect in questions confronting the Government when he invited him to the White House to discuss the war debts and other momentous problems. Gov. Roosevelt has not attempted to hide his concern over developments in Washington, nor to conceal the influence he is wielding over Democratic leaders here. When Speaker Garner and Representative Collier, chairman of the ways and means committee, veered toward the sales tax as the only practical means of balancing the budget which the Roosevelt administration will spend, the President-elect let it be known that he was "horrified" by the prospects of a sales tax. The result of his opposition was to "take the heart out of the boys." Democratic leaders in the House can not possibly go forward with their plan to enact the sales tax as an emergency measure. Hope of balancing the 1934 budget will disappear unless a substitute is soon forthcoming.

Gov. Roosevelt could not be expected to remain silent when his colleagues were about to sponsor a tax that is obnoxious to him. But in opposing the sales tax, he will be asked to suggest something to take its place. If the President-elect is to exercise his influence upon legislation before his term begins, that influence ought not to be entirely negative. A word from him, advising methods for raising revenue, would be most welcome to both parties in Congress.

JAPANESE DUMPING.

In spite of the fact that Japan found it impossible to balance her budget, she will double her armed forces in Manchuria. The Japanese public debt has grown to enormous proportions in recent months. Expenses are abnormal because of operations in China, and the demands of the army continue to grow. Financiers are puzzled as to where Japan will obtain the necessary funds to maintain this expanded program of conquest. But the Japanese are not alarmed about it.

A recent dispatch on Japanese trade seems to hold the secret of Tokyo's financial policy. The government has allowed the yen to decline to a value of 21 cents, compared with its par value of nearly 50 cents. Apparently no effort is being made to restore the value of the yen, and commodity prices remain at about the same general level that prevailed while Japan held to the gold standard. As a result Japan obtains nearly a 60 per cent advantage in marketing her products in countries still on the gold standard.

Japanese exports increased 16 per cent in the first 11 months of 1932, as compared with the first 11 months of 1931. While the trade of most countries was further slackening, because of the world-wide depression, Japan made a remarkable gain in exports. The Nipponese are flooding the world with cheap merchandise, much as Soviet Russia did a few years ago. The Soviet dumping program involved chiefly raw materials and agricultural crops, which were thrown upon the world market at extremely low prices to finance the industrialization program engineered by Dictator Stalin. Japanese dumping consists largely of finished goods manufactured under the advantages of cheap labor and materials. Apparently Japan is relying upon this means of financing her conquest in Manchuria.

The rise in Japanese trade is all the more significant because of the stagnation of commerce between that country and China. The Chinese continue to boycott Japanese goods, but Japan pours out her products in even greater volume on the world market at prices that no other nation can meet. During the first part of the year Japanese imports also increased in anticipation of a rise in prices due to the inflation policy. But when the expected price rise did not occur imports fell in volume and export trade continued to boom.

Japan is exploiting her people and drawing heavily upon her natural resources to gratify her ambition for more territory. At the same time she is making serious inroads upon the commerce of many other nations. Barriers against this Japanese dumping program might be more effective than any action the League of Nations may take to restrain the encroachment of Japan upon China.

THE AUSTRIAN LOAN.

"After refusing to pay the December war debt installment to the United States, our former ally, it would be monstrous to loan money to Austria, our former enemy."

In these words Louis Marin epitomized the new dilemma that confronts France. The Chamber of Deputies has voted to guarantee payment of France's portion of the proposed loan to Austria. To carry out her foreign policy on the continent France is obligated to make this loan. Yet if France advances $14,000,000 to Austria after refusing to pay its obligaton of $19,000,000 to America, every argument that the French have advanced to justify the default on December 15 will turn to ridicule. This issue brings to the fore the fundamental inconsistency of the French policy. France can not continue to pose as an impoverished nation unable to pay her debts on this side of the Atlantic while retaining the role of financial dictator in Europe.

France is anxious to make a loan to Austria to drive a wedge between that country and Germany. One condition on which the proposed loan is predicated is abandonment of the plan for a customs union between Austria and Germany. Even though Austria is a poor risk and a former enemy country, France is willing to help her, if in doing so she may strike a blow at the Reich. This situation brings into bold relief the entire French policy in Europe.

Ever since the World War France has been extending her domination of Europe in both the military and economic fields. She has lent money to Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia, Roumania and Poland. Even the former enemy countries, Bulgaria and Hungary, have obtained money in return for concessions to France's ambition to dominate Europe. Loans have gone hand in hand with France's military policy. Every cent that has been advanced to these satellites is designed to cement their economic interests to France and thus enhance that country's security against a future attack from Germany. France's allies, which almost form a circle around Germany, have been furnished with arms and munitions as well as with financial aid.

At the height of this imperialistic policy the Chamber of Deputies foolishly defaulted payment upon the French debt to the United States. No one has ever tried to explain how France hopes to follow such a policy and retain financial domination over most of Europe at the same time. In defaulting to America, France invites a similar course to her allies that are suffering from hard times and unbalanced budgets. Premier Herriot undoubtedly saw the handwriting on the wall when he attempted to persuade the Chamber of Deputies to authorize the payment.

The foreign policy of the Paris government has been severely jolted by its default. France can not let this default stand against her and succeed in her program of hegemony in Europe.

STALIN'S RETREAT.

No one can follow events in Soviet Russia without realizing that significant changes are taking place. The Soviet is once more at the cross-roads. It is apparent that it must give way to pressure from the peasants. They have endured hunger and want in the hope of ultimate betterment of their condition, but as conditions become worse they are losing hope and are refusing to work.

Present indications are that Dictator Stalin will retreat from the most obnoxious communistic principles and "purge" the Communist party, so as to strengthen his control. Reports from Moscow say that about one-third of the 3,000,000 members of the Communist party may be expelled. A "salutary" number of executions may also be expected, as a warning to all who contemplate opposition to the regime.

Russians admit that Stalin is more unpopular than he has ever been before. That is quite natural. Every government has been blamed for the present adverse economic conditions in the world. It would be a miracle indeed, if the one government which has full control over the economic life of a people should escape such criticism, especially in view of the fact that conditions in the Soviet are worse than anywhere else in the world. The downtrodden peasants of Russia are beginning to identify their sorry plight with the Bolshevik program, in spite of propaganda that has deluded them as to the marvels of the five-year plan.

Of course, no one dares to question Stalin's authority. Russia is full of spies. The people are disarmed and defenseless in the hands of the Bolshevists, who compose about 1 per cent of the population. Few observers who are familiar with the situation anticipate an uprising. If the crisis should come, it would probably be a collapse, instead of a revolt. Stalin will throw enough of communism overboard to save the ship, if possible.

The first change to be brought about is a slowing up of the industrialization program. Great factories have been built and are, for the most part, standing idle. Stalin does not dare to ask the people to continue starving so that gigantic useless plants may be erected. The outlay for heavy industries during the first year of the second five-year plan has been drastically cut.

An even more important change in policy is the easing up of grain collections. It has been rumored that the grain collecting system will be completely abandoned in favor of taxes, but that announcement has not yet been officially made. It is certain, however, that something will be done to stimulate agricultural production and thus save Russia from starvation. At present farmers will not plant abundant crops because their harvests are confiscated, and the farmers are able to obtain nothing in return for them. A change must be made before spring to avoid widespread starvation next year. Communized farming has proved to be a failure.

Accurate information concerning what is taking place in Russia is very meager. No reliable statistics are kept, and it is the business of communists bureaucrats to make misleading favorable reports. Censors are effective in suppressing the truth. But they can not hide the bankruptcy of the communist system. The dictatorship must modify its plans or be swept out of existence.

PHILIPPINE INDEPENDENCE.

The House of Representatives completed yesterday the work of folly which it began at the last session when it passed a bill in 40 minutes, granting independence to the Philippine Islands. As it has been finally passed by Congress the independence bill would cut the islands adrift in 10 years, regardless of what the situation of the islands might be, and regardless of what the Filipino people might think of the separation at that time. This measure is one of the poorest pieces of statesmanship that have ever received the stamp of approval of Congress.

President Hoover ought to use his veto ax on this bill. A vigorous message from the President setting forth the absurdities of this measure and revealing the selfish motives that have prompted its passage would go a long way toward clearing the foggy atmosphere that surrounds the Philippine independence issue.

In reality, this is not a bill to create a free and stable republic in the Philippine Islands, but a measure to levy tariffs against the products of that distant territory. Even in this respect members of Congress who rushed to vote in favor of "independence" for the Filipinos have been deluded. While cutting off Filipino competition they would also ruin a profitable market for the products of American farms and factories. The entire proposal is surrounded by selfishness and ignorance.

If President Hoover destroys the Philippine bill in an effective manner, he may pave the way for common-sense consideration of the problem of relations with the Philippines.

House Democrats propose to balance the budget by authorizing Gov. Roosevelt to abolish thousands of bureau jobs. But they are interfering with Jim Farley's law of supply and demand.

Secretary Wilbur, at Miami, criticised "those long, flappy bowlegged pajamas which too many fat women wear." He wouldn't have dared to say that before election.

A little rat-trap independence bill for the Philippines doesn't require a roll call in the House.

Some of the lame ducks have developed web feet and will try to swim back on beer.

A mountain threatens to fall on Durango, Col. Washington knows how it feels.

UNHORSING THE CAVALRY

From the Cincinnati Enquirer.

Now comes another reminder of the change to a mechanistic age. The First Cavalry has closed the corrals at Fort Russell, where once the horse and the Army mule responded to "Boots and Saddles," and from now on will grace the scenes of Kentucky hills at Fort Knox.

Let no one think this is in compliment to the Blue Grass regions, famous for their horses. The First Cavalry, the oldest unit of mounted men in our history, is unhorsed. Now it operates armored cars, combat units and personnel carriers, all motored.

Beginning with the Russo-Japanese War, the motor has been making its way, and so complete were the changes in tactics that, by the time the World War was well under way, open warfare had made movements of cavalry useless.

The development of automatic fire power, demanding the laying down of barrages of artillery, called the tank into being. Since the World War the leading military nations have been working on this field unit. America did nothing of moment for many years. Maj. Gen. Charles P. Summerall, as chief of staff, ushered in the new equipment. Something approaching, if not actually exceeding, the mobility of the old cavalry has resulted.

Tests show that new tank equipment can move over roads and varied terrains at high speed and stand up under forced marches. The "Dandy First," which has a hundred years of horseback history, beginning with its organization as the First Dragoons at the time of the Black Hawk War, was not at the front during the World War. Some Army men contend that the old cavalry has its uses over country still proclaimed inaccessible to motors. But no doubt the First takes a professional pride in being the unit first to be organized with equipment which makes its utility greater in case of combat.

Its past is bound up in the operations on the frontier, throughout the Civil War, at San Juan Ridge and in the Philippines. Now it follows in the wake of all things of this mechanistic age. The mysteries of the internal combustion engine, the technique of the machine gun, take the place of spirited horses and the cavalry carbine.

Goodby Forever.

POST HASTE.

Pointing the way to more revenue from beer is odd strategy by Senator Borah.

Soaking the rich now provides a weak solution of tax troubles.

It is a base slander to say that broadening the base of taxation to assure All-American teamwork is unjust.

The sales tax offers the only assurance of painless extraction for friend Citizen and gold-filled coffers for Uncle Sam.

El Salvador has now joined Costa Rica in resuming the divine right of succession by revolution—after the fact.

The daily news of rapprochements with the central powers gives pause as to whether we used the wrong bait for French friendship.

Isn't it about time that something quick and certain be provided in the way of a bandit deterrent?

If the Government loads taxes on beer at both ends and the States in the middle it will fall flat, and flat beer is no good to anybody.

To some supporters of the Democratic candidate who have been equally ardent for a sales tax, late news from Albany leaves them hor—er-r, quite nonplussed.

Japan considers inviting Citizen Hoover to give some governmental advice. Well, the indications are that he will have some practically unused reorganization, income and economy plans on his hands in about 60 days.

The Senate flouts the Garner holiday veto by adjourning three days at a time, but it's taking a chance when he's coming over as boss so soon.

Senator Wheeler took most of a radio hour to demolish every other plan for economic recovery, and then solved all our troubles in five minutes—shades of '96—with ye olde silver coinage at 16 to 1.

Don't be surprised if the holders of $17,000,000,000 of railroad securities develop some ideas for helping sick transportation.

One of the rumor factory's latest is that young Vincent Astor will be asked to doff his overalls and take a place in the next Cabinet family. Probably to see to it that millionaires divide up with the forgotten man.

References to the special session of Congress may now dispense with subjunctives.

JUST FOLKS

THOUGHT FOR NEW YEAR.

Danger and doubt and fear
Darken the step o' the year,
But out through the door
Though the wind blow
To what lies before
Bravely let's go;
May good health attend us
And good faith befriend us.

Skies that are dismal and drear
Frown at the birth o' the year,
But life isn't all
Lived in summertime gay;
There are winter and fall
To be met on the way;
Give us strength for the task
Nothing more will we ask.

Care's shadow lies over the land
As facing the new year we stand,
But high road or low
We can battle each day
Without asking to know
Every step of the way.
We have conquered before,
We can do it once more.

You Can't Relieve a Sick Man by Taking Home Part of His Germs

By ROBERT QUILLEN

To evade responsibility is childish. And refusing to think of evils and dangers is contemptible if somebody must take thought of them to prevent disaster. But it is foolish and wrong to burden the mind with matters that are unpleasant and depressing when neither your thinking nor any activity prompted by it can effect a change.

Brooding, as you know, drives men insane. And the mind that dwells too long on one matter, to the exclusion of all else, loses the sense of proportion and the sense of values. It becomes a crank mind.

Minds unbalanced by useless anxiety may be rare, but the evil effect of depressing thoughts is not limited to the mind. The relationship of mind and body is so close and so vital that the state of one determines the state of the other.

Doubtless you have learned by experience that anger, fear, sorrow or anxiety destroy the appetite for food and interfere with digestion.

And doubtless you have learned by observation that long-continued sorrowing or worrying makes invalids and nervous wrecks of people who have no physical affliction.

If these things are true, why handicap yourself and your family by discussing misfortunes over which you have no control?

If there is anything you can do to lessen the suffering of your fellow man or right the wrongs he endures, in the name of mercy and justice do it quickly.

But if you have no power to mend matters, by thought or word or deed, find something else to occupy your mind and serve as a topic of conversation.

There are homes, unacquainted with want or misery, where every conversation concerns the depression and its victims; and their atmosphere is so depressing that the children lower their voices as they would with death in the house.

Every home needs an iron-clad rule forbidding mention of any evil or misfortune that can not be mended.

Men going out to battle can't hope to win if their minds are poisoned with despair before they start.

POLITICAL COMMENT

New York's "False Pride."

Brooklyn Eagle.

New York City and New York State, through false pride on the part of officials, have made a mistake in not seeking loans from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for needed public works. The City of New York rightly has a first claim upon any funds provided by the Federal Government for emergency purposes. Where does the Federal tax collector get the money that is lent? New York City pays more than her share of the Federal taxes. It is here that the large income taxes are gathered. It is here that the Federal Government does much of its borrowing. It is here in New York that a large part of the huge sums already lent were raised.

A Last Resort.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

So few economies are being made in the Federal budget that additional revenues will be necessary if we are to have a balanced budget for the fiscal year 1934. In this circumstance the sales tax appears to be the best source available, or the least undesirable, at any rate.

The sales tax was proposed a year ago and defeated in the House. It is objectionable in that it overlaps the taxation system of many States. It is further objectionable as it tends to be a tax on necessities of life and to operate regressively; that is, burdening persons of small incomes with undue severity.

Despite these objections, however, there is no alternative method of raising an additional quarter billion dollars a year which is not open to even more serious objections.

Democrats in Congress.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

In the next House the Democrats will have unanimous delegations from 25 States. These include not only the traditionally Democratic Southern States, such as Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Kentucky and Mississippi, but Indiana as well, and Idaho, Montana, Nebraska, South Dakota, Utah, Washington and West Virginia. In Illinois they will have an overwhelming majority. In New York they will have 29 of the 45 members. In Michigan they will have 9 of the 17 in the delegation. In Iowa they will have 5 in a membership of 9.

Twenty-two States will be represented solely by Democrats in the Senate. They include Massachusetts, Arizona, Colorado, Illinois, Montana, Nevada, New York, Utah and Washington. Ten will be represented similarly by Republicans. The other States will send one Republican and one Democratic senator each.

Markets for Debts.

Houston Post.

Cancellation of war debts owed the United States is one thing, and rearrangement of the terms of payment is something else. The American people will do well to recognize the difference between the two propositions. Americans, if they will study the debt question from all angles, will agree—most of them—that if in exchange for a reduction in annual cash payments from the debtors this country can secure definite benefits in the way of wider markets in the debtor countries for our products, it would be wise to enter into such an arrangement.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Railroad Engineer Holds That Motorists Should Observe Safety First Rules in Fog.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I read the article in The Post December 26 telling about a young man being killed and his father being seriously injured by a motor car while replacing a tire on their automobile. The excuse given for this accident was poor visibility caused by fog.

Safety first is a strict rule on all railroads, and all employes are required to live up to the rule, especially engineers behind the throttle. When running in a fog, they would be taking their jobs in their own hands and jeopardizing the lives of other people as well as their own if they took a chance on having a clear track when they could not see signals or what was ahead of them. To do so would mean suspension or dismissal. On the other hand, by obeying the rule safety first and avoiding accidents the engineer is given credit by the railroad officials.

The movement of United States mail is very important. The engineer has to give a reasonable excuse for losing time. As much as an hour has been lost between New York and Washington. When asked for an excuse, it was that fog was obscuring vision of a clear track and that safety first precautions were necessary. This was a reasonable excuse.

I can not see why the movement of an automobile is more urgent than United States mail, and why a motorist running in the fog on a public highway should not be held responsible for accidents that could be avoided by observing the precaution of safety first to save a life.

Better Watch These Technocrats, or They Will Oust the Politicians.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: "Technocracy!" The word is unfamiliar, but the subject matter is old stuff. The Greeks may have had a word for it. But if this generation wants the low-down on it, there is Bellamy's book, "Looking Backward," and its sequel, "Equality." These were published about 1890. There also is an answer to both of Bellamy's books, published in 1893, and entitled "Looking Within." Bellamy's first book alone survives; and a new edition is published frequently.

William Morris, an English author, wrote a utopian romance along the same line in 1910—it was a fizzle—with the significant title "News from Nowhere."

Few save literary historians and "technocrats" give any serious thought to Bellamy's "Looking Backward," yet it might be of interest to the general public to know that two of the several "wild-eyed" predictions of Bellamy's are the talkie-movie and the tractor-plow. The part boys and girls just out of college would play in the scheme of things, according to Bellamy, until they reached, say, voting age, is interesting indeed. His solution of that vexing problem is the answer for the technocrats to pull on their readers.

The opponents of the technocrats will be hard put to answer the analysis being made by these scientists. Darwin was scoffed at. He was reviled. He was dismissed. But Darwin has never been answered by his opponents.

The philosopher-politicians in both the major political parties had better do some team work, else the philosopher-scientists now in a commanding position will oust them.

Barren Spots in Washington Should Be Adorned With Trees.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Many trees removed for street widening operations have not been replaced, and as a result thoroughfares denuded of their foliage finery have lost in attractiveness. A number of graceful, arching elms that adorned Adams Mill road where it curves into Columbia road at Eighteenth street were sacrificed to traffic. Although the triangular brick-paved island formed by this improvement is large enough for a great graceful tree whose shadow would be welcome to street car passengers who linger at this transfer point, nothing has been done to restore this center of activity to its former attractiveness.

Another barren brick-surfaced street island is situated at the intersection of New York avenue, Thirteenth and H streets northwest. A tree planted here would improve the appearance of the neighborhood. What a charming touch a solitary, widespreading elm lends to open spaces such as these! If Washington is to maintain its reputation as the city beautiful, a reputation which attracts numerous visitors, it can not afford to neglect the landscaping of its small open spaces which add so much to its charm.

LEWIS L. YOUNG.

Chicago Visitor Notes Absence of Provision for Lawns or Trees in Triangle Building Program.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I visit Washington occasionally and take pride in the city as an American citizen. The new public buildings are magnificent, but I regret to see them placed so close together, with no parks or greensward between them. No trees are to be permitted in the great triangle. The heat in those steel buildings will be killing in midsummer. Why do the planners fail to take account of the necessity for fresh air and spaciousness? In this city of magnificent distances thousands of workers will be huddled together in superheated steel buildings, without a vista of green lawns or trees. And yet Washington has enormous spaces which could be used for Federal buildings.

$9,743,697 IS LENT 3 STATES BY R. F. C.

Chicago Gets $6,770,000 of Emergency Relief Fund; Nears Limit.

(Associated Press.)

The Reconstruction Corporation voted $9,743,697 of emergency relief funds to three States yesterday, bringing the total allocated since the $300,000,000 fund was established to $103,421,443.

Chicago got two-thirds of today's allotment, $6,770,000 worth of relief bonds being purchased by the corporation. For 27 other Illinois counties, $485,000 was allowed.

The other loans were $2,440,397 for West Virginia and $48,300 for Nevada. The West Virginia funds will be used in 34 political subdivisions of that State and the Nevada money by 3 undesignated counties. These loans were for the months of January and February while the Illinois loan was for January only.

With yesterday's loan, Illinois came within $12,500,000 of having received the $45,000,000 limit to any one State. It has obtained $32,593,228.

The applications for relief now being filed with the corporation frequently are accompanied, not only by the certification of the governor of the State, but also letters from governors-elect indorsing the applications. In Illinois Governor-Elect Horner "heartily" indorsed the application signed by Gov. Emmerson. He pledged himself to do all in his power when he takes office January 9 to carry out every promise made by the relief workers who presented the application.

"We already have assurances from the leaders of both the Illinois Senate and House that they will promptly act upon such measures as may be necessary to meet our tremendous and inescapable problem," Horner wrote.

Bulk of Cooke's Estate Is Bequeathed to Widow

Mrs. Mary W. Cooke, widow of Levi Cooke, prominent attorney who died suddenly December 24, is named as the principal beneficiary of his estate, it was disclosed yesterday when the will was filed for probate. Value of the estate was not revealed.

The will, executed last July, provides for a $20,000 bequest to Laura K. Cooke, a sister, and $1,000 for an aunt, Bertha V. Collett. Three office employes, Miss Lucie Morehead, Florence M. Ruppert and Fred W. Weitzel were given $1,000 each, and St. Paul's Episcopal Church is given $600. All the remaining estate goes to the widow, who is named executrix. George R. Beneman is executor.

Rubber Plant Research Fund Attacked in House

(Associated Press.)

Federal appropriations for rubber-plant research yesterday were termed in the House by Representative Allgood (Democrat), Alabama, "a subsidy to Henry Ford and the large rubber companies."

"They are employing their own scientists in trying to grow rubber here," Allgood said. "Why does the Government spend any funds for it?"

His motion to strike out of the agricultural appropriation bill a $69,474 allotment for this research was lost, however.

THE PARADINE CASE

By ROBERT HICHENS

SYNOPSIS.

Sir Malcolm Keane, K. C., is asked by Sir Simon Flaquer, a noted English solicitor, to defend Mrs. Paradine, who has been arrested for the murder of her husband, blind war hero. Mrs. Paradine, a beautiful Dane, had been rescued from a life of degradation in Copenhagen by an American diplomat, taken as a servant to America and later made her way to England, where she married Maj. Paradine after the war. He agrees to handle the case.

Sir Malcolm is happily married to Gay, but when he calls on Mrs. Paradine at Holloway Jail he feels the strange fascination of his beautiful client. He is worried because Lord Horfield might be named as judge of the trial and endeavors to be friendly to him. He and Gay give a little dinner party to which they ask Lord and Lady Horfield. After the party Sir Malcolm studies a photograph of William Marsh, Col. Paradine's valet, and the idea occurs to him that the man who acted in so intimate a relation to his blind master might have had an opportunity to kill him. His plan of defense begins to take form in his mind.

Gay meets a Swedish painter, Baron Sedelsward, at the Flaquers' and he invites her to a private view of his paintings. Sir Malcolm decides to go to the exhibition when he learns that Sedelsward was acquainted with Mrs. Paradine. He asks the painter to dine with him that night.

Judy Flaquer, Gay's friend, suspects that Sir Malcolm is neglecting Gay because of his abnormal interest in his client. Lady Horfield also warns Keane to "look out" for his wife. Keane decides to leave London to further study his defense of Mrs. Paradine.

Before leaving, Lady Horfield intimates her husband delights in conviction of defendants on trial before him. Their meeting is ended abruptly by Judge Horfield, in whom Keane detects a spirit of antagonism. After refusing to take Gay with him, he goes to Hindley Village, where he encounters Marsh at the Paradine home; Marsh, animal-like and surly.

Returning to his inn after an inspection of the mansion, Keane is surprised by a visit from Marsh.

"I SHOULD like to make up to Lady Horfield for her disappointment about the theater the other night," he said when a pause came in the conversation.

Horfield looked interrogative.

"How?" he said. "I think my wife's got over it."

"I didn't suppose she was dressed in sackcloth and sitting in ashes. But why not make up another theater party? You and your wife come and dine with us in Portland place and we'll go somewhere. Have you seen Mrs. George Blason in her new play, 'The Uttermost Farthing?'"

"No."

"I'll get a box for that, then. Which nights are you both free?"

Horfield obviously hesitated. His face did not change. There was no evidence in it of confusion, perplexity, or reluctance. But he hesitated and did not reply immediately.

"Perhaps you're very much taken up," suggested Keane.

"No. It would be delightful. Now let me see!"

He drew out of the inner pocket of his black double-breasted jacket a little book, opened it, and turned the leaves slowly. Keane had the impression that he was giving himself time to decide what he was going to do. His eyes were bent on the book for a moment and his mouth looked grim. But suddenly he began to smile as if something amused him. And he looked up.

"What about Thursday next? We've nothing that night."

He was still smiling, but his eyes looked hard and determined.

"Splendid!" said Keane. "I'll book a box and Gay shall write to your wife."

"But you are sure she and you aren't engaged?"

"I don't think so. Anyhow I'll make that all right. So please put it down."

Horfield sent a searching glance to Keane, who immediately realized that by his impulsiveness he had roused suspicion in the judge. He damned himself for his carelessness. He had been driven by his eagerness to know, to make sure whether anything had happened between Horfield and his wife. Horfield, of course, had not let him know, but when he got home Gay surely would. He was impatient now to get home.

"If we are engaged I'll suggest another night," he said. "I'll telephone this evening. Will you be in?"

"Yes. We have some people to dinner. But telephone all the same. It will only take me away from them for a minute."

"I believe he's anxious to know how Gay takes it!" Keane thought.

When Keane reached Portland place he found Judith Flaquer in the downstairs sitting room with Gay.

"It's late. I was just going," said Judith, greeting him. "I came in with a message from mamma. She wants you both to dine with us next Thursday. Mrs. George Blason has given us a box for 'The Uttermost Farthing.' Will you come? Gay says you have no engagement."

"But we have!" Keane said abruptly, startled, and for the moment captured by an absurd feeling that again Judith Flaquer was trying to put a spoke in the wheel of his life with Gay.

"Really!" said Judith, for once looking taken aback. "I didn't know——"

She glanced toward Gay who was looking astonished.

"I made one just now."

He turned to Gay. He was vexed at not being able to tell her in private and closely to observe her reaction to his information, but that couldn't be helped now. Circumstance had taken him in the net.

"Yes," he went on, "and oddly enough it was to go to that very play. 'The Uttermost Farthing.' I've got a box for it for Thursday and just now at the club I came across Horfield and asked him and his wife to dine with Gay and me here on Thursday and go with us. And he accepted. I'm so sorry."

"Then we're out of luck," said Judith, looking at Gay.

"I knew nothing about this," Gay said slowly.

"No, you couldn't," said Keane. "It's just happened unfortunately."

"Couldn't it be changed?" Gay said. "I might telephone."

"To whom?" Keane asked sharply.

"To the Horfields."

"No, dear, that wouldn't do. I wouldn't on any account put Horfield off now he's accepted. He's an important man and a judge. I couldn't do that. Remember," he added with an attempt at jocularity, "I must keep in his good books as I have to plead before him."

"Well, better luck next time!" Judith said briskly. "Good-by, dear Gay."

She went to Gay and kissed her gently, then turned to Keane:

"Good-by, Sir Malcolm."

He went out of the room with her.

When he came back, Gay was still there waiting for him.

"I'm sorry about this muddle," he said. "But it couldn't be helped. It's nobody's fault."

"Of course, you couldn't know," Gay said. "There are things one doesn't know."

She said the last words with a strange and profound emphasis, though in a very low voice.

"So many things," she added, like one musing aloud, he thought.

She looked at him.

"Wouldn't it be better if it wasn't so? Wouldn't it be much better if we all came out into the open with each other, if we let each other know what we are and how things really are with us?"

"Well, but we do with those who are nearest to us," he said hastily.

"Oh, no! Even with them we walk in darkness."

"My dear Gay!"

"Yes. Malcolm, we do. And it's our own fault. We could be quite different. We could be sincere. We have the power, but we don't use it. But I am going to try."

He felt afraid of her at that moment. There was something actually stern in her voice, her look, her whole manner. She was making a great effort. That was obvious to him. He seemed to see her mind straining like a body to lift a burden, with muscles standing out and a skin streaming with perspiration.

"Gay!" he said, longing to stop her.

"Malcolm, I don't want you to receive Lord Horfield into this house. I don't want you ever to have him here again, either next Thursday or at any other time. I have—I have a sufficient reason."

"I know you never cared much about him, but I must keep in with him. I simply must. Gay, I'll tell you the truth. This rests forever between you and me. I think badly of Horfield as man, and therefore I must think badly of his as judge. For, whatever people may say, man and judge are one. You can't disentangle the man from the judge. When this case is over, when Mrs. Paradine's fate is decided one way or the other, then you shall do as you like about Horfield. You can close our door to him if you wish. I don't ask you not to. But till then—till then, I beg you not to hinder me but to help me with Horfield. I have my—my duty to my client, that unfortunate woman in Holoway waiting to know her fate. I know you too well to believe you could ever lift a finger to do her harm. Till the case is over—very soon now—you and I must conceal our hatreds. You're the wife of a man who has to battle for a woman's life, and you must help him; you mustn't stand in his way. I know you're too full of mercy to do that. We've both of us got to bear with Horfield for a little while longer."

"A little while. But when this case is decided you'll still be a vounsel and Lord Horfield will still be a judge."

"Oh, I don't care then! Let the heavens fall then!" he exclaimed with violence.

And he hurried out of the room.

That evening Keane telephoned to Lord Horfield, who came to the telephone, summoned by his butler.

"It's all right about Thursday. We shall expect you to dinner at 7:15, if that's not too early," Keane said.

The judge's clear and charming voice replied:

"That is very satisfactory. Sophy is enchanted at the prospect and is already considering what dress to wear. Give my thanks for the invitation and my best regards to your delicious wife."

"I will," said Keane, frowning.

Keane came away from the telephone hating himself.

Dreading the Thursday, knowing that it must be inevitably a date memorably ugly in his life, he resolved to dedicate it wholly to effort, to the full exercise of his will power in more ways than one, and in the early afternoon of that day he drove to Holloway Prison, filled with the determination to be drastically plain spoken with Mrs. Paradine.

When he was introduced into Mrs. Paradine's cell he was struck at once by a physical change in her. She was thinner. Or she appeared to him to be thinner. And this loss of flesh caused her to look, he thought, more etheral, and in consequence more like Gay. The resemblance between them was accentuated. He noticed that immediately.

She greeted him with a sort of restrained eagerness, as if she were very eager, but did not want to show it too much.

"It seems such a long time!" she said, in her rather husky and trailing voice.

He took her hand, glanced at the warder who was watching them behind the glass pane, and sat down. If only that man were away!

"I've been up to Hindley."

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

An ensemble for the jeune fille in light weight fancy woolen, the dress of green with white lawn collar and stitching, the coat of warm red, with brown fur trimming, lined in green crepe matching the dress. (Seen on Fifth avenue.)

THE three-quarters length woolen coat, which supplanted the short jacket of summer popularity, has much in its favor. This coat is usually made of some woolen material, or short-haired angora, and machine stitched or trimmed with "lots of buttons," as the saying is now. Although it is one of the easiest coats to wear, hanging from well fitting raglan shoulders or from a yoke cut in one with drop shoulder sleeves, it is not so easy to accomplish in the making. Its very loseness spells difficulty, and none but the most expert tailors can make this coat with any degree of success. When it is good it is very, very good—and when it is bad it is horrid.

Not that this raglan coat is only popular in three-quarters length—it is quite popular in the longer coat as well. Naturally, it is best when in a sports coat for morning or street wear, but it has been taken up in velvet and broadcloth for the dressier type of coat that is suitable for afternoon and evening wear.

* * * *

Speaking of coats, one must not except the comfortable and becoming evening cape which is still the choice of many a smart woman. And the little open cape as a sleeve persists in many houses. I have already told you of the atunning long evening coats made of wool, which were immediately sponsored by chic women when they made their first appearance in the new collections of the Paris Couturiere Couture. These are cut on princess lines, and are in the loveliest colors imaginable.

* * * *

Just kids, huh? Well, the mother of a growing girl never thought of it this way, I'll bet! Not when the young miss demands as much style in her clothes as mother herself, and outgrows them with a rapidity which is dear to the hearts of the dressmakers, if not of the mothers.

For the young miss of uncertain age and height, the coat and dress which I sketched today is both chic and practical. The dress can be a part of the ensemble with the coat, or be a separate one-piece dress, as desired. Its style is its recommendation, as is the style of the coat, stylish and practical. Combining just the right shades of red and green are another fashion note, too.

* * * *

A little rounded scarf suitable for either a breakfast jacket or a bed scarf or an evening scarf which covers the decolletage of the gown in the back—that's only one of the gadgets we telf you how to make in your spare finger time in this week's illustrated leaflet. It's just full of odds and ends in the way of gadgets, suitable for any lovely lady's loveliness or for any odd gift for which the need rises unexpectedly. Just send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for this leaflet, and put it away if you haven't the time nor the inclination to work on these spare finger time things right this minute.

* * * *

Scarlet or blue, or white or green—any gay color that contrasts with the frock—and a moire envelope purse of generous proportions matched with a belt! This is a novelty in the mode, and one that clever fingers could rather easily make for herself. Crisscross the edges with colored wool, or leather strips, if you are quite expert!

Au revoir!

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

TO young and old, to poor and rich all over the country the very words "New Year" are synonymous with "a new lease on life." Few of us will miss 1932. And I hope still fewer will indulge in retrospection as to what might have been. For living in the past is, at best, not a healthy practice. From a pictorial standpoint, it makes wrinkles. Bad business! Look ahead to new hopes.

Promise Yourself!

Of the things worth having that you can promise yourself, the first and most important is good health. Without it success is never complete. Without it true physical perfection can never be attained. Without it that vital desire to live and love and lift, that joy in just being is pitifully lacking. Health is something you owe to yourself and can give to yourself. Balanced living, safe and sane, is what brings perfect health; eat enough, drink enough, sleep enough, breathe enough pure, fresh air.

Happiness is something you can promise yourself, too. The good cheer that comes with a sane sense of values. Lift yourself above petty worries, at the same time appreciate the good of the little things that are worth while and come your way. Be sufficiently optimistic to be cheerfully sensible. A swell wrinkle-chaser, that.

Work conscientiously, play just as whole-heartedly and don't overdo either.

Help others, for unselfishness brings a bloom to the face and brightness to the eyes. But be selfish in the matter of your own well-being and take enough time out for bettering and beautifying yourself.

Promise Yourself Beauty!

There! It took a little time for me to selfishly approach my part of the picture. But I'm glad I've arrived, for it's my pet theme. Promise yourself beauty, for that is within you to give yourself. Make the most of your natural possibilities, remembering that good grooming and meticulous care of the little details of dress, hair and skin care and makeup are in themselves enough to make you good to look at. Enhance your beauty by the little artifices that authorities discover from time to time and pass on to every one.

Try to acquire grace of movement. Cultivate poise. Bring out the delightful, individual personality that is you. Be sweet. Be charming. Be dainty. Be kind. Be cheerful. Be beautiful!

* * * *

And it is the sincere wish of the writer that the New Year will be a happy and prosperous one, marked by good health, good will, good cheer for you!

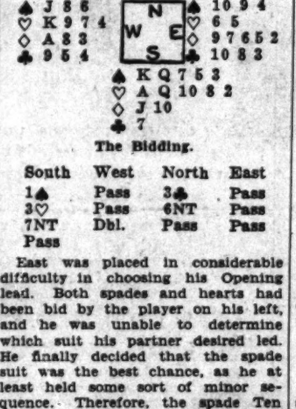
A DOUBLE GRAND SLAM.

A DOUBLE of an opposing game or Slam contract by a player who has not up to that point entered the bidding is generally made for the purpose of obtaining a certain lead from his partner. Sometimes it is the lead of partner's own suit that is desired, but more often the Double calls for a lead of the suit bid by the right-hand opponent. It is usually a desperation Double, made because the player is quite sure that there is no other way of defeating the contract.

Occasionally, however, the situation is complicated by the fact that the right-hand opponent has bid two suits. In these circumstances the unfortunate partner is forced to guess on his Opening, and the success of the Double then depends upon his intuition.

The following hand was overbid tremendously by the North and South players, but was made due to the above-mentioned circumstances:

South—Dealer.
North-South vulnerable.



The Bidding.

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	3♣	Pass
3♡	Pass	6NT	Pass
7NT	Dbl.	Pass	Pass
Pass

East was placed in considerable difficulty in choosing his Opening lead. Both spades and hearts had been bid by the player on his left, and he was unable to determine which suit his partner desired led. He finally decided that the spade suit was the best chance, as he at least held some sort of minor sequence. Therefore, the spade Ten was chosen and North now proceeded to make up for his partner's rash bidding by his own perfect play.

The first trick was won in the closed hand with the Ace, and the deuce returned immediately. It was obvious from the beginning that unless the spade suit broke the hand was hopeless. Three rounds of spades disclosed the fact that two more cards were available in the Dummy for discards. On these two cards, Declarer discarded two diamonds from his own hand. Having previously discarded a heart, he was now down to six clubs, the King of diamonds and the Knave of hearts. Placing West with the King of hearts and the Ace of diamonds on the Double, he now led six rounds of clubs, leaving the Ace-Queen of hearts alone in the Dummy. At the eleventh trick, therefore, the unfortunate Doubler found himself squeezed, being forced to part with either a low heart or the Ace of diamonds. When he chose a low heart, Declarer led the Knave from his own hand and went up with the Ace to catch the blank King. The Queen of hearts was good for the thirteenth trick.

Although the play was interesting, it is doubtful that the bidding could be recommended.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

South—Dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it, and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

What Today Means to You

"CAPRICORN."

IF December 30 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 a. m. to 8:15 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 3 p. m. and from 4:30 p. m. to 5:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 10:20 a. m. to 11:40 a. m. and again from 8 p. m. to 9 p. m.

Influences are such on this December 30, that you will appear to act and to make decisions without knowing just why. You will not be playing hunches; rather, you will probably feel that your actions are being guided by some power outside yourself. You should encounter much good in your path on this day. You may possibly be called away on a trip of some kind, or you may have a visit from a friend or relative who comes from a distance.

Born on December 30, the child will be brisk in his thinking and acting. Begin early to cultivate in him a sense of fairplay. Tendencies toward deceitfulness and untruthfulness will have to be guarded against most carefully. Love alone will guide this obstinate little one.

If December 30 is the date of your birth, you are inclined to be hot-tempered and argumentative. All your life you have liked a good fight; in your early years you were not averse to physical combat while later in life a verbal fray is always to your liking. Unfortunately your talents along this line are wasted, for you do not generally seek to maintain or establish a worthwhile principle, nor are you careful to be on the right side of the question. More often than not your obstinacy leads you to shift your own views just for the sake of warring with some one. A legal career would seem to suit you; possibly a career as a politician. Your ready flow of words never fails you and you have the faculty of phrasing matters in an appealing way.

If you are a woman and your birthday is on December 30, you are the type who is ever on the jump doing things in your home; cooking, cleaning, sewing, caring for others, all these follow in quick succession and you keep yourself happy by keeping yourself busy. You like people and enjoy entertaining; but you feel that you do not have the time to devote to playing hostess. Your children, and you would like to have many, are often set up as examples for other children to follow.

Successful people born on December 30:

Joel T. Headley, author.

John W. Geary, soldier and governor.

William R. Alger, Congregational clergyman and author.

Cornelius E. Fenner, poet.

Thomas Ryan, composer.

Alfred E. Smith, former governor of New York.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

THE WORST EVER.

THE chief delight of some people is to talk about operations they have had. This subject is far from being tabooed when two or more are gathered together. And such frank discussions, too! Organs are talked about without reservation.

Such conversations may do some harm. In the first place, if a man has always boasted that he had the only operation of a certain kind, it must be a great shock for him to sit by and hear three or four other men tell about having had that kind of an operation. Or, if some good woman has always thought that her case was the worst that any surgeon had ever seen, she must collapse somewhat when she hears other ladies state, with an air of certitude, that theirs was the worst case ever known to be operated on and to live through the ordeal. They knew because the surgeon told each of them so. In some instances, the same surgeon had told two or three of them that her case was the worst.

Among the surgical fraternity there is a tendency to tell such little white lies. Like other white lies they are reputed to be free from taint of sin because they stand the acid test of malice or harmful intent.

Nor have the physicians any right to assume a holier than thou attitude toward the knights of the scalpel. They have no right to throw stones. They have been known to say:

"Yours was the worst case that any person ever lived through.

"I never saw a worse case of pneumonia get well.

"You sent for the doctor just in time. Another hour and it would have been too late.

"Snatched out of the jaws of death. . . ."

The logic of the physician or surgeon who tells his patients and their friends is that these remarks do no harm and they make the affected party feel that he has something to boast about as an offset for all his illness cost him. And, so far as the former patient is concerned, this type of boastfulness is reasonably well tolerated. Perhaps the listeners are thinking: "If I am patient in hearing him through he will be willing to hear me tell about my very unusual case."

How Coughs and Colds Yield to Creosote

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (Adv.)

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

LEOPOLD STOKOWSKI will conduct the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra in a concert to be heard here over WJSV from 2:30 to 4 o'clock this afternoon. The program follows:

Concerto Grosso in D Minor (Vivaldi).

Unfinished Symphony (Schubert).

Fugue for Violins (Dubensky).

"May Day" Symphony (Shostakovitch).

The Dubensky selection, a nine-part fugue for violins, was composed especially for and dedicated to Stokowski. His musical setting to Edgar Allan Poe's "The Raven" was recently performed over the air by the Philadelphia Orchestra.

Shostakovitch, whose "May Day" symphony will conclude the program, is described as "one of the truly radical modernists." Only 25 years old, he has been proclaimed "a kind of composer-laureate to the Soviet State."

THE 1931 income of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers from licenses issued to all places where its music was publicly performed for profit was $1,971,000. Of this amount radio contributed the largest amount, $939,500. Then came motion pictures, $665,000; dance halls, $135,000; hotels, $89,000; restaurants, $79,500; carnivals, circuses, &c., $63,000.

These figures were revealed in a history of the American Society of Composers which appears in the January, 1933, issue of Fortune Magazine. The expenditures for 1931 of the society are set forth as follows: Operating expenses, $394,200; reserve fun, $96,600; foreign composers, authors, publishers, $96,600; indigent, outmoded composers, $96,600; divided among 100 publishers, $643,500; divided among 700 authors and composers, $643,500.

The revenue which composers receive from the society is divided into classes.

"Class AA is the active, highest paid list of the society, to which all song writers aspire," Fortune explains. "Their number fluctuates as their output varies. But in 1931 some $5,000 was paid to each of 51 writers, among them Irving Berlin, Walter Donaldson, Rudolf Friml, Sigmund Romberg, George Gershwin, Vincent Youmans, Ray Henderson, Bud De Sylva, Lew Brown, Charles Wakefield Cadman, Oley Speaks, the estates of John Philip Sousa and Victor Herbert. Five thousand dollars seems a puny price to pay the most talented and hard-working men in the industry for their performance rights. It would, of course, be much more if there were less sentiment in the division of spoils. But these gentlemen never complain. In fact, they are the system's stanchest supporters.

"After Class AA the society's prorating tapers off through Classes A, B, C, D, 1, 2, 3, and 4. In class A some $4,000 was paid in 1931 to each of nineteen members, among them Fritz Kreisler, Al Jolson, W. C. Handy and the estate of Charles K. Harris."

Outstanding events of 1932, including the American political campaign and elections, the threatened defeat of prohibition, the war in the Far East and the problem of reparations, will be dramatized during the broadcast of the "March of Time" over a coast-to-coast Columbia network, including WJSV, 8:30 p. m.

A dramatic cast, under the direction of Donald Stauffer, and a symphony orchestra, led by Howard Barlow, will take part in the review of the world's events. In addition to the foregoing, highlights of the Lindbergh baby kidnaping, Amelia Earhart's flight, the Olympic games, the Santiago hurricane, the Seabury investigation, the climax of the war debt question and the Massie case in Hawaii will be presented.

MRS. FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT will talk on "Keeping Your Husband Happy" when she appears on Pond's program over WRC at 9:30 p. m.

Brig. Gen. J. J. Carty, who was buried yesterday in Arlington, was a radio as well as telephone wizard. In honor of his feat in linking the Nation's radio stations by telephone so that speakers in every corner of the country were enabled to address an audience estimated at 50,000,000, the United States once was characterized as "Carty's Hall."

Later, with telephone improvements which he perfected, he flashed the spoken word from New York across the Atlantic to Paris, 3,700 miles away, by radio-telephone, and across the continent, and the Pacific to Honolulu, 4,900 miles away.

THE United States Army Band, directed by Capt. William J. Stannard, will give a special holiday program over WJSV at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Dressing rooms of the new International Music Hall in Radio City will accommodate 600 persons, and each room is wired for radio, so that the program may be broadcast to all artists over the same wires which carry telephone messages from the stage manager's corner.

The Northern Dramatic Company will broadcast a version of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" over WOL at 7:30 o'clock tonight. The day has been changed permanently from Thursday to Friday.

AL JOLSON uses two microphones while broadcasting each Friday night. He stands between the two mikes and thus has a clear view of the studio audience.

Highlights in tonight's Chevrolet program will be Jolson's singing of "Old Man River," "Donna Clara," "The Wonder Bar," "Here Lies Love" and "Travelin."

Shakespeare's "Midsummer Night's Dream," with an orchestra assisting in Mendelssohn's score for the play, is offered on the combined coast-to-coast networks of the N. B. C., including WRC, at 11 o'clock this morning.

The further investigations of Charlie Chan into the mysteries surrounding the murder of Shelah Fane will be revealed in the episode of "The Black Camel" to be presented during the Five Star Theater broadcast over WMAL at 7:30 p. m.

JESSICA DRAGONETTE will offer Cadman's "At Dawning," "Berceuse," from Godard's "Jocelyn" and "Some Day I'll Find You" as her soprano solos during the broadcast over WRC at 8 p. m.

Marlboro Jail Warden To Be Howard Proctor

Appointment of Howard Proctor, of Brandywine, Md., as warden of the Marlboro Jail for 1933 was recommended to Sheriff W. C. Hopkins yesterday by the Republican State central committee for Prince Georges County, meeting in Marlboro.

It is expected that the recommendation will be carried out, as Sheriff Hopkins voted the proxy of Thomas A. Baldwin at the meeting, and the vote to appoint Proctor was unanimous. Proctor will replace Deputy Sheriff Thomas Talbott, who acted as warden last year. Charles Greenleaf will continue to serve as jailer, the warden being the contractor who serves meals to the prisoners.

Mission to Give Party For Children Tonight

An after-Christmas party for more than 200 children whom Santa Claus forgot will be held at the Relief Mission at 471 Pennsylvania avenue tonight by the Volunteers of America, under direction of Capt. Jennie Ingram.

Each of the children invited will be given a toy, candy and nuts, and there will be a Christmas entertainment. Last night the Volunteers had received reports more than 180 children were overlooked, and more were being reported hourly.

Legislators to Speak At Jackson Day Fete

Senators Barkley, of Kentucky; Harrison, of Mississippi, and Byrne, of South Carolina, and Representative Rainey, of Illinois, will speak at the Jackson Day dinner to be given January 9 at 7:30 p. m. at the University Club by the Roosevelt-Garner Lawyers Club of Washington.

The committee on arrangements includes Charles A. Douglas, Robert W. Woolley, Joe V. Morgan and Sefton Darr.

13 Magyar Miners Killed.

Family Party Is Held By Cosmopolitan Club

Members of the Cosmopolitan Club, their wives and families, filled the large dining room at the Carlton yesterday for the annual family party of the club. There was a Santa Claus with gifts for the children, prizes for the ladies and a program of entertainment arranged by the ladies' committee, headed by Mrs. Lewis A. Payne.

Following luncheon and the award of prizes, the guests, seated cabaret style at small tables, danced for a time, following which a reading was given by Miss Grace Mary Colliflower, songs by Mrs. Fred J. Rice, and this was followed by a magician, who entertained the children. William L. King, presiding for the final time, announced the program and extended the thanks of the club to the ladies who arranged the party.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

IF ONE may judge from the ceaseless stream of photographs that trickle across a dramatic desk, the most attractive of recent importations is Wera Engels.

Wera Engels.

Wera — pronounced Vera, just as Wagner is sometimes pronounced Vagner, and Wurzburger (but why bring that up?)—is bewildered, a little, but willing, a lot! To her, just arrived from Germany, Hollywood is an astonishing place where the oddest things are said and done.

Wera can not understand, for instance, why she will be introduced to America in a blonde wig when she herself is a brunette. And it baffles her a bit to understand why her employers are making her an old woman in her first picture, instead of leaving her as she is—a sophisticated modern of 22.

Her English is reported to be practically faultless. Well, I said practically. To be sure, she calls a tall building a "sky stretcher" and makes a few other minor errors, but what are a few fumbles among friends? Her accent is said to be slight, less noticeable than either Garbo's or Deitrich's. She learned English when she attended grade school in China and polished it off during four years spent in England.

Wera is not a newcomer to the mysteries of the camera and the microphone—she has been in pictures four years, in Germany and in France. Her last French picture resulted in her one-picture Hollywood contract. If she is liked in the one film she is obligated to make, Fraulein Engels will be given a new document, covering a four-year period, with usual options, etcetera. Naturally, she hopes she passes muster—which she probably calls mustard, although I have no authority for this conjecture.

Wera's introductory picture will have her cast as a wealthy old man's wife who falls in love with a horse car conductor. You're quite right, that IS going back quite a bit for a plot. The story opens in 1890. The horse car conductor is Richard Dix.

The complications develop 20 years later, when Wera's son and her husband's son (by a similar affair) fall in love with the same girl. She doesn't think she will be too convincing as an old woman because "my mouth is too girlish."

"My make-up when I am an aged woman is fine," says Wera, "but when I smile I look just like Wera Engels!"

This is a matter in which Colleen Moore, Helen Hayes, Barbara Stanwyck, Norma Shearer and numerous others should be able to extend Miss Engels sympathy.

Incidentally, Wera Engels has been married and divorced. She became Mrs. Charles Lincoln, wife of a British flier and actor, when she was 18. They were divorced a year ago.

HITTING ON ALL TWELVE!

Which, of course, is Wera, Wera distressing!

Saturday mornings being what they are, this might be as good a time as any to get this business straight about the special New Year's Eve performances being given in practically all of the downtown, first-run picture houses and a good many in the residential neighborhoods.

The Earle will present a special midnight performance, beginning at 11:30 p. m., with Frank Richardson acting as master of ceremonies.

At the three Loew houses—Loew's Fox, Palace and Columbia—extended schedules will be put in effect, under which extra performances of the regular bills will begin at approximately 11:30 Saturday night, with the feature picture going on at about 11:45. Regular admission charges will prevail and no seats will be reserved.

This, as I understand it, is the plan also at RKO-Keith's and the Rialto. At the former, the Saturday midnight showing will constitute a public preview of Leslie Howard and Ann Harding in the film version of Philip Barry's stage play, "The Animal Kingdom," which begins its regular run on Fifteenth street Sunday.

It is with regret that we report that the combination of variable weather and the press of extra-professional holiday duties has got Eddy Gilmore down. The energetic and helpful publicist of the Loew houses in Washington has been under a doctor's care for several days, but had not found it necessary to absent himself from his desk until yesterday. His many friends hope he will be able to be back at it today, all of his pet germs taught to roll over and play dead.

And who should tap timidly on the heavily carved, bronze-bound door of the palatial suite housing the dramatic department, slipping on the handsomely tesselated floor and bumping his head on the low-hanging Tiffany chandelier, but Ol' Marse Jim Peede, avant couriering for the Cecil B. De Mille Biblical spectacle, "The Sign of the Cross," coming into the National Theater as a road show attraction on Sunday, January 8, to continue through the following Sunday, January 15.

This accounts nicely for a hitherto dark week at the National and brings back to town briefly a veteran of the show business. For James G. Peede, you certainly must remember, for years was general manager for Richard Walton Tully, whose production of "The Bird of Paradise" made a fortune and then largely lost it again in long drawn-out and costly litigation. Mr. Peede was also associated with Mr. Tully in all of his picture enterprises during the period of his affiliation with First National.

But about this "Sign of the Cross." As a preliminary freshening of the memory, it may be remarked that the cast includes no end of celebrities, among them Claudette Colbert, Charles Laughton, Frederic March and Elissa Landi.

Not since Mr. De Mille's "Ten Commandments" has there been a production comparable to this one—superfeatures, I believe, is what they used to call them!

And the (presumably) last of the cards was postmarked in Johannesburg, South Africa, November 30, 1932, and arrived yesterday. It was a fantastic sort of thing, consisting of a double folder with a painted savage emblazoned on the front with a spear held in most menacing fashion.

And the legend! Would you believe it when I tell you that that card bore the inscription, "Umbuliso Nemfiselo Enhle, Christmas, 1932," proving, as you can plainly see, that Charlie and Virginia Futrelle Raymond just don't come from nice people!

Or maybe I'm wrong.

By NELSON B. BELL.

Once more the familiar melodies of Franz Schubert weave a colorful tapestry about the romance of a diffident and struggling genius.

Preserving all of the lilting and robust qualities of the score—although perhaps a trifle light in orchestral instrumentation—and revealing a richly embellished scenic investiture, this classic operetta that seems destined to take its place beside the imperishable works of Gilbert and Sullivan as a perennial public favorite, along with "The Student Prince," to which the same company has devoted its talents during the earlier days of the week, last evening was effectively sung by a group of voices admirably attuned to a pretentious and exacting work.

The Gilbert and Sullivan analogy seems inevitable in any consideration of "Blossom Time," because in the vivacious characters of Mitzi, Fritzi and Kitzi, the charming daughters of Herr Christian Kranz, the foremost jeweler in the Vienna of 1826, it presents the counterparts of "The Mikado's Three Little Maids, the wards of Ko-Ko. The comedy of the piece is cut from much the same pattern.

It is, however, with the romance of the great composer, Franz Schubert, himself, that the major interest and the major movement of the plot principally concern themselves. A tender love story, this, that lends itself graciously to the charming measures of such enduring masterpieces as Schubert's "Serenade," "Song of Love," "Moment Musicale" and others which Sigmund Romberg has so skillfully woven into the musical fabric of the play.

The role of Schubert again is acted and sung by J. Charles Gilbert, whom Washington has seen and heard before in the part. By long familiarity, Mr. Gilbert has come to be peculiarly the Franz Schubert of the modern theater, and, of course, contributes an especially complete and convincing bit of portraiture. In the opposite role of Mitzi, Gertrude Lang makes splendid use of a soprano voice of clarity, range and power and enters whole-heartedly into the delicate moods of the story.

George Hassell, as Franz, the explosive jeweler, is a tower of strength upon which the three acts largely lean for their main support of an amusing comedy structure. Allan Jones is a natural and finely vocal Baron Von Schober, and Harry Rabke, Charles Chesney, Joseph Toner, Berta Donn, Winifred Cahoon, Manila Powers and John Goldsworthy contribute generously to the rousing quality of numerous ensembles that still move appreciative audiences to spontaneous and sustained applause.

FRIDAY DECEMBER 30, 1932 SPORTS

PIXLEE CONSIDERED AS GRID COACH AT CHICAGO U.

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

TEDDY HAYES, former trainer of Jack Dempsey in the latter's championship days, yesterday ridiculed the refusal of Washington high school officials to permit the staging of intercollegiate boxing matches at Tech High School gymnasium by Columbus University.

Hayes, a current visitor in Washington, declared that the school officials' statement that the public associated amateur boxing with prize fighting was amusing and praised the sport as a character builder.

Hayes states the case of amateur boxing as follows:

"Having been associated with the boxing profession for many years, the controversy that has resulted from the refusal of one of your local school officials to allow the Columbus University to utilize the Technical High School gymnasium for its matches, has naturally interested me. Statements made in support of such refusal were amusing, in view of the wide gulf that exists between amateur and professional boxing.

Cites Character-Building Qualities of Bouts.

"Boxing is a sport that builds character. A man who squares off against an opponent in the ring must have courage. He must be mentally alert. He must be resourceful and must have the faculty of coordinating both his physical and mental faculties. The old expression of ring lore, 'Can he take it?' is applicable to any of life's endeavors. The man who can't take a few jolts in life and come back again for more isn't going any place. If you can't laugh off a few hard setbacks, where are you going?

"Boxing stimulates the competitive spirit in its highest form. It generates the spirit prevalent in all Americans; the spirit that carried our boys to victory in the European war. And, incidentally, it was my privilege to serve in that little old fuss under a grand man, Admiral Moffett. I was a chief petty officer and had the honor of convoying a Navy boxing team to the other side that boasted such men as Harry Greb, Ritchie Mitchell, Pal Moore, Andy Chaney and Marty Cross. It was a great experience and goes without saying that my boys knocked them stiff over there.

Boxing in Colleges Making Headway.

"But to get back to the colleges again. Intercollegiate boxing is making great headway. Some day, in the not too distant future, it will have the status of a major sport like football, rowing and track. Teams of the caliber turned out by 'Spike' Webb, of the Naval Academy; Eddie La Fond, at Catholic University, and by others at Penn State, New York University and elsewhere have crystallized great interest in the sport. Matches held by these teams have attracted dyed-in-the-wool sport lovers, who have generally come back for more.

"But to get back to this local difficulty, I wonder if the learned gentleman who ruled against the Columbus University boys has ever seen an amateur boxing match. Such matches run off with shorter rounds, heavier and more thickly padded gloves, than those of the professional game, are not more brutal, if as brutal, as modern football, basket ball or lacrosse. I have never known a boxer, even in the professional sport, who entered the ring in good condition and who was pitted against a man of his own weight and class, who received a serious injury from such an encounter.

Interested in District Boxing Bill.

"I am also interested in the bill, introduced by Representative Hartley and pending before the District of Columbia committee of the House, that will establish amateur boxing on a firm footing in Washington. A law of this nature should be passed, if only for the reason that it will promote a manly sport in local colleges and eliminate the tendency in some institutions to go in for pink teas, lounge-lizarding and general mollycoddleism. I hope, too, that none of the silly, unwarranted and unfounded prejudices of well-meaning but uninformed persons opposing it will militate against its passage."

Judson Hero; Steele Held To Draw

Hectic Struggle Ends at 2-Hour Limit; Referee Casualty.

Burns Unconscious as Ray's Shoulders Are Pinned to Mat.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

LIKE the Biblical story of old in which the more potent wine was saved until the guests had consumed all the vin ordinaire, the scrambled-eared boys of the mat committed their final bout of 1932 last night at the Washington Auditorium and they threw themselves a show that outdistanced any other of the year in the field of excitement, dramatics, surprises and ostensible agony.

The last and best of the year's bouts was a rare two-hour draw between and amongst Ray Steele, vice president, and general manager of the Londos-championed league of rasslers; Frank Judson, former wrestling coach at Harvard; Referees Cyclone Burns and Bennie Bortnick and Promoter Joe Turner, all of whom had a hand in the presentation of the wildest match perhaps ever staged here.

Briefly related, Steele and Judson were laboring along in rather fierce style after about an hour in the ring, when Cyclone Burns, bald-pated overseer of a million matches in the past, got too close to the brandishing arms and legs of the competitors and received Steele's hard heel in his groin with great force. Burns collapsed backward, and Judson leaped on the prostrate Steele and firmly pinned his shoulders down, but Burns lay evidently unconscious on the side of the ring.

Steele Wriggles Out From Under.

The crowd, already excited, had gone quite insane over the situation, what with the unbeatable Steele being pinned and nothing being done about it. Steele finally wriggled loose amid a thundering bedlam of cries for somebody to do something about it, and Promoter Turner jumped in the ring as a couple of his flunkies carted the doubled-up Burns off the scene. Turner began to act as referee ad interim, separating the elephants with words and gestures and at the same time instructing a ringside spectator to "Find Benny Bortnick!"

Mr. Bortnick had already labored in three bouts during the evening and was at that moment reclining somewhere in the audience. He was dragged to the stage, and the excited mob, fearful that Turner was going to declare the match a draw or something, cheered Benny to an echo when he ripped off coat and vest and jumped in the ring. And the boys went at it again. The dramatic interruption came about midway in the match. A half hour from the end Steele went cascading out into the spectators, thrown there by the dogged attack of Judson.

Judson's Defensive Work Good.

Judson, for the great part, wrestled defensively, turning Steele's bull-like charges into nice coups that sent the so-called Crown Prince thumping to the mat. Judson's lone hold was a splendid arm strangle, and a sort of combination arm-strangle and wrist flip, which he learned from its originator, Joe Turner. He seemed to have no great difficulty in breaking Steele's variable holds. Both boys were groggy at the end. It was the second 2-hour draw in the modern history of wrestling here, Steele and Rudy Dusek having presented one nearly two years ago. Joe Turner wrestled Pinkie Gardner three hours to a draw in 1914.

The remaining bouts were incidental. Abe Coleman and Dr. Sarpolis waged a 45-minute draw, Joe Cox beat Charles Lapian in 15 minutes, Milo Steinborn dumped Willie Davis in 5 minutes, and floored Benny Bortnick, the referee, for good measure, and those two venerable old gobblers, Tiger Nelson and Nick Nestor, wrestled for the "world's worst" championship, nicely won by Nestor, who lost to Nelson in 17 minutes.

About 3,500 saw the bouts.

Maj. Griffin Candidate For N. C. A. A. Berth

New York, Dec. 29 (A.P.).—Maj. John L. Griffin, of Chicago, commissioner of the Western Conference, was among the candidates most pprominently mentioned tonight for the presidency of the National Collegiate Athletic Association for 1933, succeeding Dr. Charles W. Kennedy, of Princeton.

Dr. Kennedy, who retired this year as chairman of the board on athletic control at Princeton, was understood to have declined to consider reelection to the position he has held for two years.

Dr. S. V. Sanford, president of the University of Georgia, also has been urged for the presidency by his friends. Dr. Sanford was a candidate several years ago for the office, but yielded in a contest to Brig. Gen. Palmer E. Pierce, who headed the N. C. A. A. 25 years.

The election of Maj. Griffith is coupled with the plans to hold the 1933 annual meeting in Chicago.

Oakland, Calif., Dec. 29 (A.P.).—Ray Brubaker, veteran utility man of the Oakland Club of the Pacific Coast Baseball League, today was chosen as manager of the club succeeding Carl Zamloch. Brubaker came here from St. Joseph of the Western League in 1920.

GIANTS SELL HOGAN TO BRAVES

New Shifts Expected; Starred as Catcher Despite Bulk.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29 (A.P.).—Francis J. Hogan, of Somerville, Mass., the bulky, shrill-voiced catcher of the New York Giants, today went back to the Boston Braves, the club which traded him to the Giants four years ago.

The deal was announced as a straight cash transaction, but as they gave out the news the Giants dropped a few hints which indicated further shifts were in order which might bring one or more Boston players to New York before the entire matter is cleared up.

It had been known for some time that Hogan was slated to go in Manager Bill Terry's general housecleaning which has resulted in the disposal of eleven players since the disastrous end of the 1932 season. In the course of the trading session Terry obtained Gus Mancuso from St. Louis to fill the post of first-string catcher with young Francis Healey available for relief duty.

Broke in With Braves.

Hogan, a local boy who made good after he left his home precincts, broke in with the Braves as an outfielder in 1925 and promptly was farmed out to the Albany, Worchester and Lynn clubs. He was converted into a catcher at Lynn and backstopped for the Braves in 1927. During that winter he was traded to the Giants with Outfielder Jimmy Welsh for Rogers Hornsby in a deal that rocked the baseball world right down to its heels.

Since coming to the Giants Hogan has been one of the league's outstanding catchers despite his bulk and his lack of speed on the base paths. His batting average fell to .287 in 1932, his worst season at the plate, but he continued his remarkable fielding record by compiling a .983 average while handling 522 chances, more than any other catcher in the league. The year before he established a league fielding record with a .996 average only to see it eclipsed by Earl Grace, of Pittsburgh, in 1932.

Use of Braves' Name Stirs George Marshall

Columbus, Ohio, Dec. 29 (A.P.).—Legal action against a football team, now barnstorming in the South, to prevent it from using the name of the Boston Braves may be started, Joe Carr, president of the National Professional League, said here today.

"The traveling eleven is not the Boston Braves of the National League," Carr said, "and I have been informed that George P. Marshall, president of the Braves, contemplates legal action."

Forward Passing Ace May Sign With Cubs

Milwaukee, Dec. 29 (A.P.).—John Doehring, forward passing sensation of the Chicago Bears, near the close of the National Professional League football season, may get a tryout with the Chicago Cubs as a pitcher when the team goes into spring training, he said today.

Doehring played sandlot baseball in Milwaukee and pitched at Kentucky Military Institute.

Okeson Seen Grid Rules Chairman

Langford Likely to Retain His Post as Secretary.

Biff Jones Denies He's Interested in Berth at Fordham.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

NEW YORK, Dec. 29 (A.P.).—Through the haze of tobacco smoke, football talk continued to dominate the winter convention of college athletic leaders today as efforts to fill at least three important coaching positions mingled with speculation as to whether Walter R. Okeson or William S. Langford, both Easterners, would succeed the late Edward K. Hall as chairman of the national football rules committee.

Tentative agreement was understood to have been reached at an executive session tonight to name Okeson as chairman and continue Langford as secretary under a mutually satisfactory arrangement.

Delegates to the National Collegiate A. A. convention from the West and South, as well as the East, were united in favoring the choice of these two men for the executive positions on the rules committee but there had been some disagreement on which to elevate to the chairmanship.

Langford Would Retain Present Job.

Langford, who was closely associated with E. K. Hall for years in the business of football rules-making, told friends today he had no desire to assume the chairmanship, preferred to see Okeson given this position and would continue, if desired, as secretary, so long as his health and business permitted.

Apparently the majority of college leaders were in agreement that the functioning of the rules committee would be less disturbed by the selection of Okeson as chairman, with Langford retained as secretary. Okeson is an officer of Lehigh University and at present commissioner of the Eastern Intercollegiate Association.

As a result of Hall's death, as well as developments of the 1932 season, the annual report of the football rules committee, to be made tomorrow, by Langford, is not expected to launch into any discussion of possible changes in 1933 or make any recommendations. A majority of the committee is understood to be agreed that the radical changes made a year ago have proved satisfactory and should be retained.

The four-year terms of two members, H. J. Stegeman, of the University of Georgia, and Amos Alonzo Stagg, of Chicago, have expired, but both are expected to be reelected as their district representatives on the football committee.

No Move to Expand Membership.

Due to the present restricted geographical set-up of the National Collegiate A. A., limiting membership on any of its committees, no move will be made to expand the membership of the football body to give immediate representation to the new Southern Conference line-up, consisting of the colleges in the Carolinas, Virginia and Maryland. Stegeman or his successor will continue to represent the entire South.

Meanwhile, although many may have been called for consultation, none has yet been chosen to fill gaps in the coaching ranks at Chicago, Fordham and Holy Cross.

Jimmy Phelan, of Washington, former Notre Dame quarter back, has been mentioned in connection with all three of the jobs under chief discussion. Jimmy Crowley, of Michigan State, one of the "four horsemen," also has been prominently mentioned as a possible successor to Maj. Frank Cavanaugh at Fordham, but he has given no indication he wants to leave his present post.

Biff Jones Is Not Interested.

Capt. Lawrence M. (Biff) Jones, Louisiana State's head coach and former West Point mentor, was brought into the Fordham discussion today when it developed the genial Army officer had been approached by Jack Coffey, Fordham's graduate manager. Capt. Jones, however, promptly told Coffey he was not a candidate and intended to return to L. S. U., where he has just successfully completed the first year of an anticipated four-year term of military as well as athletic duty.

Holy Cross, where Capt. J. J. McEwan was ousted as football coach late in the season as a result of internal differences, was not conspicuous in the lobbying.

Dempsey Weighs Hometown Offer

Salt Lake City Group Bids $300,000 for Baer-Schmeling Bout.

Salt Lake City, Dec. 29 (A.P.).—Jack Dempsey, former world's heavyweight boxing champion and fight promoter, today telegraphed assurance that a $300,000 offer from this city for a bout between Max Schmeling and Max Baer would receive his consideration.

He wired the sports editor of the Deseret News:

"Salt Lake's wonderful offer is being given every consideration. My home town is first and foremost in the bidding, other things being equal. I am being flooded with offers, all of them great. The following cities are hot after the match: Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Dayton, Detroit, Chicago, Los Angeles, New York City, and Miami. New York City and State officials are pressing me to stay here.

"Meanwhile, I will not lose sight of Salt Lake City and its generous invitation. Best New Year's wishes to all my home town friends."

GALLAUDET, COLUMBUS OPPOSE

Local Court Foes to Clash Tonight at Tech's Gym.

IN the holiday season's sole item of college athletics, Gallaudet College's well-trained basket ball team will meet up with the untried but potent Columbus University squad tonight at Tech High gymnasium at 8:30 o'clock. The game, bringing together two virtually evenly matched foes, represents the first "home" game Gallaudet has played away from its cramped little gymnasium since basket ball became a part of the sports routine.

On the eve of the battle, Coach Wally Krug of Gallaudet has shifted about his line-up to fill the gap left by the injury Kenneth Burdett suffered in a rough scrimmage session yesterday. Wells Logan has been moved up from the second team to serve as tap-off man tonight. He is as tall as Burdett, 6 feet 2 inches, but lacks the latter's polish.

Blues Boast Team Of Veterans.

Veterans will man every other position on the Gallaudet team, Capt. George Brown and Johnny Davis, iron-legged forwards, and Jimmy Rayhill and Sparky Koziar, guards, are the youths concerned, all of them capable of much smooth play on the basket ball floor. Among the subs are Heimo Antila, Seth Crockett, Roy Turner and Cecil Davis. Burnett, injured center, may play anyway, if Logan fails to get the tap-off consistently.

Coach Tubba Farrell, of Columbus, has gathered a representative flock of former high school boys around him for tonight's game. Bill Payne, long an all-around athlete at Western, is in center, with Downey Rice, former Central High ace, a ready substitute, who can also fill in at guard. Bob Smith, who played well for St. John's near the end of his high school days, plays at one of the forwards and Nate Friedenberg, a member of last year's J. C. C. Big Five, will be his running mate.

A preliminary game between Gonzaga and the Gallaudet Reserves starts at 7:30 o'clock, with the bigger game to follow. Admission is 40 cents.

Paul Outslugs La Barba to Win

Feather Champion Gains Decision; Jones Bows to Rosenbloom.

Chicago Stadium, Chicago, Dec. 29 (A.P.).—Tommy Paul, Buffalo, N. Y., recognized by the National Boxing Association as featherweight champion, proved that he was no mistake tonight, by defeating Fidel La Barba, Los Angeles, ranked as the outstanding challenger, in their 10-round battle in the Chicago Stadium.

Paul outboxed and outslugged the Pacific Coast youngster to the amazement of 5,926 spectators, who paid $8,640 to witness the bout.

The verdict was not unanimous. One judge voted for a draw, and the other arbiter joined with the referee, Joe McNamara, who cast his ballot 52 to 48 in favor of Paul.

Paul earned the verdict by his aggressiveness and sharp hitting. Neither came near scoring a knockdown. The bout was not a championship affair.

Maxie Rosenbloom, recognized in some spots as light heavyweight champion, slapped and cuffed his way to an easy decision victory over Billy Jones, Philadelphia Negro, in a 10-rounder.

Girls Reach Semifinals In U. S. Indoor Tennis

Brookline, Mass., Dec. 29 (A.P.).—Helen Grawn, of Detroit, qualified to meet Louise Harding, of Brookline, and Joanna Palfrey, of Sharon, qualified to meet Helen Jones, of Swampscott, today in the singles division of the National Girls' Indoor Tennis Tournament.

In the doubles Miss Jones and Miss Palfrey reached the final round and will be opposed by Marian Wood and Louise Harding, greater Boston team, tomorrow. Miss Grawn entered the semifinal round by defeating Miss Rosemary Kerrison, of England, 6—4, 6—0. Louise Harding, who will be Miss Grawn's opponent tomorrow, entered the semifinals yesterday. Miss Palfrey, top seeded player in the tournament, eliminated Virginia Hollinger, of Dayton, Ohio, 6—0, 6—2. Miss Hollinger was suffering from a heavy cold and defaulted in the doubles match.

Trojan Plays Are Shown Scribes

Jones Shifts Interference and Grooms Long Passes.

Coast Team Remains 10-7 Choice; Pitt's Players Ready.

By PAUL ZIMMERMAN.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 29 (A.P.).—Coach Howard Jones of Southern California lightened the practice burden which rested today on the shoulders of the unbeaten Trojans.

He sent the squad through a shortened workout with very little dummy scrimmage included in the preparatory exercises which were open to newspapermen.

The semisecret drill was a direct departure from other years when the gates of Bovard Field were closed to all comers before important games such as the impending contest with Pittsburgh at Pasadena January 2.

When questioned about possibility of information getting out which might tip off some of the new formations to the opposition Coach Jones enjoyed a good laugh.

"I've changed things around a little," he admitted, "but I'll bet none of you fellows can tell me what the difference is and I didn't hold back anything either."

Trojan Attack Puzzle.

There was no one willing to deny the statement. After a moment's hesitation he added, with a broad grin:

"Don't let that bother you. Some of my assistants who have been out there all the time haven't figured out several of the changes either."

All of which only served to make more puzzling the proposed method of attack the Trojans plan to use against the Panthers. Jones said he had changed the assignments of several of the players on forming interference for the ball carriers. He also has some new pass plays, all long ones.

The odds of 10 to 7 continue to favor the Trojans, who have won all of their three previous appearances in the Rose Bowl tournament game.

The ticket sale has gone along slowly, with no indication there will be anywhere near the capacity crowd of 84,000 persons. Estimates were that less than 50,000 tickets had been sold.

Pitt Squad Takes Light Drill.

Tucson, Ariz., Dec. 29 (A.P.).—The Pittsburgh Panthers launched the final phase of their training for the Southern California game at Pasadena January 2, with a short light workout in their desert rendezvous near here today.

The drill, which was radically different from the previous work, inaugurated what Coach Jock Sutherland termed the "tapering-off process." It will be continued Friday and Saturday.

The players spent a good part of the morning with calisthenics, threw passes for a while and finished with a short signal drill.

The Panthers were still evading colds or other illnesses and the slightly injured were rapidly rounding into condition to hearten the trainers and team physician, Dr. Robert Sheanor.

Warren Heller and Mike Sebastian, back field stars, were reported in fine shape after minor injuries in scrimmages, and Paul Cuba, big tackle, carried from the field recently, was much improved. He will play against the Trojans.

Capt. Paul Reider, who has been suffering from a bad leg, is the only man who may not play, Dr. Sheanor said.

EAST'S STARS SCRIMMAGE ON COAST

Play Against Former Stanford Gridmen as Game Nears.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 29 (A.P.).—Scrimmage for the Eastern forces and a long drill on pass defense for the Western Stars were the highlights of the practice programs today in the East-West preparations for the annual charity football game here January 2.

The Eastern representatives charged against an opposing squad composed mainly of former Stanford players. While the scrimmage was not as heavy as the one a couple of days ago when Harry Newman, Michigan quarterback, injured an ankle, it was sufficiently rigorous to put the East squad on edge.

Crowley, of Yale, Rejoins Squad.

Coaches Andy Kerr and Dick Hanley welcomed the return to action of Joe Crowley, Yale half back, who has nursed a wrenched knee since arrival ley teamed up at right half back in at the Stanford training camp. Crowone of the back field units that also included Bart Viviano, Cornell, at quarter back; Joe Zapustas, Fordham, at left half, and Bob Rowe, Colgate, full back.

The other combination saw Jack Manders, Minnesota, at quarter; Gil Berry, Illinois, left half; Pug Rentner, Northwestern, right half, and Roy Horstmann, Purdue, full back.

At their University of California practice field, the Western gridders went through a long session. It included dummy scrimmage both on offense and defense in addition to an intensive drill against aerial attack.

Tentative Line-Up Decided.

Coaches Orin Hollingbery and Dana Bible have tentatively decided upon a starting line as follows: Ends, Steve Hokuff, Nebraska; Ralph Stone, Olympic Club; tackles, Bill Morgan, Oregon, and Jack Johnson, Utah; guards, Clem Senn, Washington State, and Charles Molinari, Santa Clara; center, Lawrence Ely, Nebraska.

Coach Hollingbery said no effort would be made to select a starting back field for a few days. From the East's camp, Coach Kerr said starting line-ups of his squad probably would not be announced until the day before the game.

GARDEN CANCELS BOUT.

New York, Dec. 29 (A.P.).—Madison Square Garden today announced cancellation of its boxing program for tomorrow night as Isadore Gastanga, one of the principals in the main event, reported ill with a cold or influenza.

Gastanga was scheduled to box Tom Heeney, of New Zealand, in the main 10-round bout.

PRIMO CARNERA WINS.

San Antonio, Tex., Dec. 29 (U.P.).—Primo Carnera, 261-pound Italian, tonight won an easy decision over Jack League, 195-pound San Antonio fireman-pugilist, after toying with the latter for 6 rounds.

G. W. Mentor Sounded on Transfer

Name Among Those Seen Eligible for Stagg's Post.

Verbal Contract With G. W. Ends in June After 4 Years.

THE possibility that Head Coach Jim Pixlee, highly successful dispenser of football knowledge at George Washington University, would be called to Chicago University to fill the post of football coach there, to replace the venerable A. A. Stagg, loomed yesterday as Pixlee and his assistant coach, Len Walsh, returned from the New York meeting of the gridiron tycoons.

Pixlee admits he was approached by "friends of Chicago" with a view to ascertaining his reactions toward taking the job—if it were offered to him, and withheld comment from them. At least five other coaches also were listed by Chicago as "eligibles" and were approached in the same way by friends of the coachless university.

Verbal Contract Here Expires in June.

Coach Pixlee's verbal contract with George Washington University expires in June. When he came to Washington, at the behest of his friend of long standing, Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of G. W., he entered into a tacit agreement with Marvin to put the Colonials on the map in football. He asked for four years' grace. The recent conquests and rise of the local school are too fresh in mind to bear retelling, suffice to say that, playing against first-

Candidates Numerous For Chicago U. Post

New York, Dec. 29 (A.P.).—"At least six or eight men are under consideration for the position of head coach, formerly held by Alonzo Stagg, at the University of Chicago," said Thomas N. Metcalf, athletic director of the institution, today while attending the football coaches' meeting here.

"No choice has been made and none will be made for some time," Metcalf added. "I have talked with several men here, but I am not at liberty even to mention their names."

REGAL FLAG PAYS $32.20 IN JEFFERSON PARK FEATURE UPSET

Park Scores Easily With 15-1 Shot

Beats Sandwrack by Four Lengths on Heavy Track.

JEFFERSON PARK, New Orleans, Dec. 29 (A.P.).—The Pinetree Farm's colt, Regal Flag, sprang an upset here this afternoon when he performed as if much the best to win the featured Arkansas Purse of a mile and 70 yards, returning his backers $32.20 for a $2 ticket. The son of Sun Flag passed the judges four lengths clear of the heavily backed Sandwrack, which had Gilbert in the saddle. Wrigley Field was third, another length and a half behind.

Though Old Sol was out in all his glory most of the afternoon, the track remained very heavy, and Regal Flag took 1:55 1-5 to negotiate the distance.

There was little to the running of the race. Monte Park, on the winner, allowed Surly to show the way for nearly a half mile, then shot Regal Flag into a clear lead which never was threatened. Sandwrack was outrun for 6 furlongs, then closed ground impressively to catch Wrigley Field in the final furlong.

Mills Rides Piecemeal To Victory.

Hank Mills kept to the path on the inside and succeeded in guiding the well-played Piecemeal to a driving victory over the unfortunate Klipdrift in the curtain raiser.

Johnny Gilbert piloted home his 211th winner in the sixth race astride the filly, Yankaway, a field horse which won by three lengths to pay $11.20. Aileen C. finished five lengths before Major Gomez for the place. Yankaway possessed all the foot of the field. She broke in motion and left no doubt as to her superiority at any time. Aileen C. was always the chief contender, but could not extend the winner.

135-Pound Gridmen In Intercity Contest

An attractive intercity football game is carded Sunday, with the 135-pound eleven of the Curtis Bay Athletic Club, of Baltimore, invading Alexandria for a tussle with the champion Virginia A. C., of that city. The fray will start promptly at 2:30 o'clock.

The Virginians won the northern Virginia title in addition to the city crown. They boast one of the strongest teams in their division in this neck of the woods.

Cobb's Steady Attack Wins Godfrey Bout

Philadelphia, Dec. 29 (A.P.).—A relentless attack carried Walter Cobb, Baltimore battler, to a ten-round decision over George Godfrey, giant Leiperville, Pa., Negro, in the wind-up bout at Convention Hall tonight.

Godfrey opened a bad cut over Cobb's left eye in the seventh, but the Baltimore slugger, undaunted, kept up his battering attack to carry the bout from start to finish.

Teddy Hayes (right), former trainer of Jack Dempsey in the latter's championship days, is renewing an old acquaintanceship in Washington with William A. Roberts, of the District Corporation Counsel's office and a faculty member of Columbus University. Hayes ridiculed the refusal of local high school officials to permit Columbus U. to stage intercollegiate boxing matches at the Tech High gymnasium on the grounds that amateur boxing is associated with prize fighting. He urged passage of the Hartley bill to legalize amateur boxing in the District.

Katherine Rawls Breaks 3 Records

Miami, Dec. 29 (U.P.).—Three national swimming records were shattered today in the opening session of a three-day meet featuring Olympic performers when Katherine Rawls, 15-year-old lass, swam the 440-yard breast stroke.

Miss Rawls' time for the 440 was 6 minutes 52.2 seconds, compared to the old record of 7 minutes 18 seconds, made in 1925 by Agnes Geraghty. Intermediate marks broken by the Fort Lauderdale girl were for 400 yards and 300 yards.

She sprinted the 400 in 5 minutes 53 seconds and the 300 in 4 minutes 37.2 seconds. The old 400 mark, held by Agnes Geraghty, was 6 minutes 29.6 seconds, while the 300, also made by Miss Geraghty, was 4 minutes 44 seconds.

Miss Rawls is an all-around aquatic performer, being a member of the 1932 Olympic diving team as well as national champion at 880 yards free style, 220 yards breast stroke, 300 meters medley and 10-foot spring board.

In a 400-yard free style swim against time Lenore Kight, of Homestead, Pa., also an Olympic swimmer, came within .2 second of shattering Helen Madison's record of 5 minutes 6.2 seconds, set in 1930 at Miami.

Georgia Coleman, Los Angeles, made her first appearance since winning the Olympic fancy diving championship in an exhibition with Miss Rawls, Helen Meany, 1928 Olympic diving champion, and Dick Degenej, University of Michigan.

Haskell Sport Head Would Forego Pay

Lawrence, Kans., Dec. 29 (A.P.).—Frank McDonald answered the assertion of Haskell Institutee authorities that his contract as athletic director was terminated as an economy measure by offering today to retain the post without pay, if the school returns to higher education.

"I am still interested in Haskell and the welfare of the Indian," McDonald said. "If the authorities feel the budget will not provide for me I am willing to serve without salary until such a time as the Athletic Association's finances will permit me to be paid.

"I will do this if the school offers a junior college course, which will bring a return of normal enrollment and enable us to have students of proper age for our athletic teams."

The Haskell director's contract terminates Saturday, ending his thirteen-year association with the Indian School.

NEWMAN SETS RECORD.

Dutch Newman cracked the season's set record in the National Capital League last night at Lucky Strike, where King's Palace won the odd game, and almost the third, from Fountain Hams.

Newman rolled 132, 164 and 135 in establishing the new mark. Tony Santini was high for the losers, with a total of 375. King's Palace rolled games of 585, 622 and 570 to Fountain Hams' 578, 588 and 571.

ROOT PRAISED AS COACH.

Chicago, Dec. 29 (U.P.).—Malcolm Farmer, athletic director at Yale University, today predicted Yale football teams under their new coach, Reggie Root, would come back to the former high place occupied by Eli elevens. Farmer spoke at the annual Yale father and son banquet here.

MAY SUSPEND MANAGER.

Detroit, Dec. 29 (A.P.).—James M. Brown, president of the National Boxing Association, said today he was considering revocation of the license of Jack Singer, of Buffalo, manager of Tommy Paul and George Nichols.

Brown said an investigation showed that Singer had canceled 11 bouts for Nichols in various cities without adequate reason.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: JEFFERSON PARK, DECEMBER 29.

I never expect to see a fast track at this course. There's been more downpour at this meeting than Sadie Thompson saw in "Rain." Slow, heavy, muddy and sloppy seems the limit of the vocabulary on track conditions of "Ifbet" Davis, the boy who runs copy in the press box. One scribe lays the defeat of Mills in the national jockey race to the fact that Gilbert is a better mud rider. However, Johnny has shown a little more than Hank in everything here, including an agent with a faculty of digging up much-alive horses. Well, friend, I had my usual two-a-day when Piecemeal, at $6.40, and Yankaway, at $11.20, turned the trick. Volwood, Sandwrack and Jack Biener, other top picks, were second. For tomorrow, I believe these hold better than ordinary chances.

BILL.

FIRST RACE—JEAN LAFITTE is the class of this field, despite that top impost of 119 pounds. This mare defeated Starboard Light and Sandwrack with 116 in the saddle and I can't see her passing up a chance of this nature. NEWGRO appears to have an edge on the others. WINNIE C. may be the one to cause trouble.

SECOND RACE—NYACK packs a neat burst of speed and may provide a mild upset by taking the measure of this group. DOLLAR PRINCESS is strictly the one to beat, but I have my doubts of her at the short price expected. Marion Ormont gets in light and may have a say in the final tabbing.

THIRD RACE—AUREBON is not overburdened with courage, but I understand Hank Mills will do the piloting. WELL SHOD came from far back to be fourth last week and a strong finish tomorrow might be good for the place. AIRWISE to show.

FOURTH RACE—DR. SYNTAX appears rather ambitious to rate running in a field of this caliber, but the Doctor is better than generally believed hereabouts. At least, so I'm told by some of the boys who have not hocked their watches. Adores the going. SMEAR to beat FLYING DON for the rest.

FIFTH RACE—COL. HATFIELD is capable of carrying top weight and taking care of this group. Looks like a winning favorite. CRESTA RUN, the Whitneyite, is on the improve and a possibility. MODESTO has an outside chance for the purse.

SIXTH RACE—PAULA L., in excellent form, gets weight from most of the field. The price might surprise with a shift in riders. PRECEDE and FRIAR to take care of the rest.

SEVENTH RACE—DRURY is in a winning mood these days and may be the surprise package in this. McGONIGLE and DUELIST for the place and show. RAIN OR SHINE might score if the substitute race is used.

RETURNBOUT FOR LOWRY AND RASPI

Intercity Foes Battle on Portner's Card Next Tuesday.

BOB LOWRY, hard-hitting local lightweight who is unbeaten in his eight professional fights, yesterday was matched with Joe Raspi, Baltimore's "Little Ceasar" of the ring, in the main six-round preliminary of the boxing program that will feature Joey Goodman, junior welterweight star, and Tony Stetz in a ten-rounder next Tuesday night at Portner's Arena, in Alexandria.

Lowry and the veteran Raspi are meeting in a return match. A few weeks ago the Baltimore battler substituted for his younger brother at Portner's in a four-round go and lost the decision after a slambang bout.

Matchmaker Frankie Mann also announced a four-round scrap between Barefoot Green, of Fredericksburg, and Jack Hollingsworth, football player from the St. Mary's Celtics. Green, a heavyweight, with a record of nine straight knockouts as an amateur, flattened his first professional opponent, Johnny Perussi, in the third round, and recently decisioned George Estes in a six-rounder.

Manley and Brown Clash.

The eight-round semiwindup will find Roy Kid Manley, Arkansas southpaw, facing Buster Brown, Max Waxman's protege. Manley has shown marked improvement since he joined Harry Groves' stable.

Goodman, Richmond, Va., 140-pounder, yesterday went through his second day of vigorous training in the District. In addition to his road work he is working out at the Jewish Community Center each afternoon, and those who have watched him go through the paces say that he shows speed, color and a potent left hand. It will be Goodman's first bout at Portner's, although he has been a consistent main-round fighter during the past five years.

Stetz, a southpaw, packs a terrific wallop. Making his bow at Portner's recently, he had the best of Arthur De Beve until he lost in the seventh round on a foul.

Record Community Center League Opens Next Week

24-Team Loop Plays in 2 Sections With Winners Meeting for Title; 15 Games Scheduled for First Week.

TWENTY-FOUR teams, embracing the pick of the amateur court talent molded into high-powered machines, will begin play in the Community Center League Tuesday night. Reorganized on a larger scope the league anticipates a banner season, keener competition among the teams and an increase in fan interest and attendance at all games.

Only fifteen games are on the opening week's program, but the remainder will swing into action the following week and from then on all will be busy. Every night, with the exception of Saturdays and Sundays, will find some teams playing.

Brisk rivalry is expected in both divisions. Sholl's, A. A. U. champions; United Grays, Bureau of Investigation and Atlas teams have been assigned to the same division, guaranteeing the maximum of action.

A plan drawn up by Winfree Johnson, director of the loop, whereby the winner and runner-up in each division will clash in a play-off for the championship, has been adopted. The Washington Post will carry daily reports and box scores of all games each morning, in addition to publishing the standing of the teams and schedule of games.

Hecht Advances In Junior Tennis

New York, Dec. 29 (A.P.).—Marco Hecht, of the University of Pennsylvania, continued his march to his third successive national junior indoor tennis championship today, reaching the fourth round.

Hecht allowed Philip Lautkin, of New York, only one game in his straight set victory, 6—0, 6—1. Lautkin was completely at the mercy of the champion and only in the second game of the second set, when Lautkin won on his own service, did the title-holder give way.

Richard Hebard, of Hill School, Pottstown, Pa., the No. 2 seeded player, and Gils Verstraten, of New York, No. 3, advanced with Hecht by virtue of straight-set victories, but Bernard Friedman, of the University of North Carolina, No. 4; John Nogrady, of Brooklyn, No. 5, and Willard E. Ingalls, jr., of Harvard, No. 7, each were extended to three sets before they could advance.

The boys' singles, running concurrently, produced the elimination of two favorites, Lyman W. Crossman, jr., of White Plains, who was defeated by William V. Winslow, of Rochester, N. Y., 6—2, 6—3, and Charles Mattman, seeded No. 4, who lost to Nathan Ritzenberg, of Brooklyn, 6—0, 6—3.

Two seeded teams in the junior and boys' divisions were victims of upsets. Hebard and Jesse Spalding, seeded No. 3, went down before Frank J. Rericha and Edward Degray, 4—6, 6—3, 6—6. In the boy's division, the Nesbitt-Hulme combination succumbed to the Ritzenberg brothers, formerly of Washington, D. C., 8—6, 6—4. All other seeded doubles teams advanced.

Stocks Continue Advances In Buoyant, Heavy Trading

Gain of 1.2 Points Added as Turnover Climbs to 1,606,439 Shares.

New York, Dec. 29 (A.P.).—Stocks rallied with better success today, thereby celebrating the conclusion of all but last-minute tax sales for the year.

Unlike yesterday's session, which saw a late relapse, this market was higher all day and closed at its best prices in the largest turnover since November 11. Rail stocks ran along in the vanguard, but other groups did equally well, especially during the uplift that characterized final dealings.

Although technical considerations appeared to provide most of the lifting power for stocks, Washington news was of a character to command attention. Notable in this budget was word that the Democrats proposed to give the new President broad powers to reorganize the Government on behalf of economy. Plans for fiscal legislation designed to rectify the discrepancy between Treasury income and outlay appeared to be awaiting next week's Roosevelt-Garner conference.

American Telephone and U. S. Steel came forward prominently toward the close, the former gaining 2 points, the latter 1⅛, net.

American Can, Allied Chemical and American Tobacco, New York Central, Santa Fe, Consolidated Gas of New York, Woolworth, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Corn Products and Public Service of New Jersey were among the leaders up 1 to about 2 points, while Socony Vacuum, Du Pont, Texas Corporation, Union Carbide and North American gained major fractions. Union Pacific gained 3. Volume aggregated 1,606,439 shares.

Foreign exchange favored the dollar, Far Easterns being down in sympathy with bar silver's new low of 24¼ cents. Sterling lost more than a cent and French francs were under the theoretical gold point. The Bank of England's reserve ratio dropped to 16.8 per cent and circulation both there and in France was up, reflecting the Christmas holidays.

CURB PRICES FIRM IN HEAVIER TRADING

Inactive Issues Dumped to Make Tax Loss; Sales, 480,000 Shares.

New York, Dec. 29 (A.P.).—The curb market maintained a fairly steady undertone today, in the busiest session in nearly three months, in which year-end influences were still predominant.

The turnover of 480,000 shares was 160,000 more than yesterday's and the largest since September 8. The number of issues traded was the largest in many months, as holders continued to dump ordinarily inactive issues, to establish losses for tax purposes.

As in yesterday's market, many of the principal issues displayed a firm tone. In the utilities, Electric Bond & Share and American Gas and Electric rose fractionally.

Industrials and specialties were mixed. Aluminum Co. lost more than 2 points, then recovered. Some of the insurance stocks were moderately higher, Insurance Co. of North America and Employers Reinsurance gaining about a point.

Loadings of Some Railways Show Increases Over 1931

New York, Dec. 29 (A.P.).—Carloadings reported today for the week ended December 24 showed improvement for a few railroads over the corresponding week last year, but were generally below the immediately previous week.

BONDS SENT HIGHER IN CHEERFUL TRADING

Three-Tenths Gain Is Added as Sales Decline to $15,637,000.

New York, Dec. 29 (A.P.).—Despite numerous irregularities, the bond market displayed a somewhat more cheerful tone today.

Last-minute tax selling and profit taking gave the list a spotty appearance at times, but prices, on the whole, maintained a steady to firm position with some indications of investment as well as speculative buying apparent.

Although the turnover was not quite as large as that of yesterday, sales totaled $15,637,000, par value, and the Associated Press-Standard Statistics average for 60 domestic corporate loans advanced three-tenths of a point.

Heavy trading in German issues sent several of them up to new 1932 highs, the Reich 5½s and 7s being especially in demand while the corporate bonds were only a trifle less popular. Further gains were recorded by the Argentines, Chileans and some of the Italians. The Canadians, Japanese and Australians were heavy.

The United States Government list reacted under realizing.

The more active rail liens with gains of 1 to 3 or more points included some of Atlantic Coast Line, Baltimore & Ohio, Boston & Maine, St. Paul, Rock Island, Erie and Great Northern.

A number of the utilities displayed quiet strength.

WHEAT VALUES GAIN ON CROP PROSPECTS

Market Closes ¼ Cent Off to ⅜ Up; Corn and Oats Sell Higher.

Chicago, Dec. 29 (A.P.).—Stimulated by official reports of precarious prospects for winter crops in a large section both of Kansas and Nebraska, wheat prices turned upward late today.

Gains in wheat values here were in the face of the fact that the Liverpool market had virtually failed to reflect yesterday's price upturns on this side of the Atlantic, and that British exchange rates had fallen.

Chicago wheat prices closed firm, ¼ off to ⅜ up, compared with yesterday's finish; corn, at ⅛ to ½ advance; oats, unchanged to ⅛ higher, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 2 cents.

Corn and oats responded to scantiness of rural offerings. Indications of damage to the new Argentine corn crop had little effect. Provisions averaged lower with hog values.

COTTON PRICES RISE ON LATE COVERINGS

March Closes at 6.10 as General Market Gains 14 to 17 Points.

New York, Dec. 29 (A.P.).—After holding within narrow limits during most of the day, cotton advanced rather sharply in the late trading on covering influenced by a closing rally in stocks. Early advances on relatively firm cables and absence of Southern selling pressure was well sustained throughout the greater part of the session on domestic and foreign trade buying. March contracts sold up from 6.00 to 6.11 and closed at 6.10 with the general market closing at net gains of 14 to 17 points. There was no increase in the limited offerings from the South and as a result local selling pressure was again checked.

The New York Cotton Exchange Service reported that inquiries indicated distribution of approximately 500,000 bales of cotton by the Red Cross had resulted in a possible increase of consumption of not more than 50,000 bales, partly because a large portion of the goods received by the Red Cross came out of stocks and partly because the larger part of the value in goods received by the Red Cross represented labor and other manufacturing costs.

Local spot houses reported slightly better inquiry from Southern mill centers. Liverpool cables said the market there was higher on end-month trade calling, while Manchester was quiet but cheerful.

Exports today, 58,903, making 4,089,860 so far this season. Port receipts, 17,252. United States port stocks, 4,844,545.

GOODS MARKETS.

New York, Dec. 29 (A.P.).—Cotton goods were quiet today in finished and unfinished lines. Combed yarns have been reduced to a basis of 38 cents for sixties 2-ply. Scarcity continues in several sizes of rayon waste used for knitting and weaving. Knitters of full-fashioned hosiery continue well sold for some weeks to come and are using more rayon for low-priced numbers for spring. Burlaps were inactive. Inquiries are increasing for worsted dress goods for spring.

GOLD ACTION HALTS SOUTH AFRICA TRADE

Nation Is Off Standard and Exchange Rate Quotation Is Refused.

Pretoria, Union of South Africa, Dec. 29 (A.P.).—Business was at a standstill today throughout South Africa with the dawning realization that the government's monetary decrees of two days ago were to be accepted as departure from the gold standard for the South African pound.

With the lapse from gold, various government spokesmen tonight made clear, there is no linking up with sterling.

Gen. Jan Christian Smuts, at Johannesburg, forecast that business chaos would result from the failure of the government to tie the South African pound to English sterling notes.

The Reserve Bank today refused even to quote exchange rates, although it was gathered unofficially that banks may quote a reduced discount rate on sterling tomorrow to test the pound before any decision regarding the currency is announced.

Exchange rates, Finance Minister Nicholas Tavenga asserted, "will find their level in accordance with current monetary and trade conditions."

The finance minister explained that the action was taken under the powers vested in the government by the financial emergency regulations act of 1931. "The government," he said, "took precisely the same steps as the British Parliament did in September, 1931—that is to say, it released the reserve bank from its statutory obligation to redeem its notes in gold, and thereby it cut the link by which South African currency was a currency on the gold standard."

Paris Editor Raps Spending by U. S.

Lauzanne Charges Nation Uses Nearly Half of Budget for Arms.

Paris, Dec. 29 (U.P.).—A sharp attack on Col. Edward M. House by Stephanne Lauzanne, editor of Le Matin, was published today in the form of an open letter. Lauzanne has a large public following.

"In your discussion of war debts," Lauzanne wrote, "you said the United States is not prosperous. That may be true, but Europe knows that America, in 1931, had 26,000,000 automobiles, spent $1,700,000,000 on gasoline, $693,000,000 on candy and soft drinks and $478,000,000 on jewelry.

"Despite America's armament criticism of France, Europe also knows that current armament appropriations in the United States total 43 per cent of the entire budget, as compared with France's 33 per cent."

Manchuria Called In Good Condition

Debuchi, Back From Tour, Feels Pu-Yi Will Not Be Made Emperor.

(Associated Press.)

The assertion that economic conditions in Manchuria are "relatively good" was made yesterday by Matsuji Debuchi, the Japanese Ambassador, who has just returned from a tour which led him across the scene of recent conflict between China and Japan.

Debuchi gave his impressions to newspapermen after visiting Undersecretary Castle and other officials at the State Department. Among other things, he said he did not believe it likely that Henry Pu-Yi would be made Emperor of Manchuria.

Debuchi said his observations of the agricultural conditions in Manchuria showed farming had not been seriously interfered with and that food supplies were plentiful.

Freer Teacher Exchange Between Nations Asked

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 29 (A.P.).—Liberalization of the immigration laws to permit "the freest possible interchange of students and professors between the United States and other nations" was urged today in a resolution adopted by the American Association of University Professors.

The association, concluding its annual meeting at Yale, also adopted a resolution deprecating "the ruling of the United States Department of Labor restricting foreign students in opportunities to pursue remunerative labor," and asking that this ruling be rescinded.

Central Park Casino Wins Padlock Case

New York, Dec. 29 (A.P.).—Declaring the Casino "bears no earmarks of a speakeasy," Federal Judge Robert Patterson dismissed today the efforts of prohibition enforcement officials to padlock the fashionable Central Park restaurant. This was the first of the Government's actions here involving "set-ups"—glasses, ice and ginger ale.

While the Government did not contend that liquor was sold in the Casino, the prohibition agents who visited the place before it was raided in 1930 testified it "resembled a high-class speakeasy."

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

An ax in the hands of Leonard Wallulis can be made to do almost anything. One of the several spectacular stunts this Oregon woodsman can perform is the throwing of axes into the end of a log at 50 feet. His aim is so accurate that he can cut a cigarette in half with an ax from a distance of from 40 to 60 feet. Throwing several axes he can place them side by side in a log.

Wallulis can also shave a man with his ax. He sharpens it like an ordinary razor, tests the edge on the hair of his forearm, and takes off whiskers like an expert barber.

How far do you walk a day? A survey shows that the average American walks 8 miles a day. Topping the list is the farmer at his plow, with 25 miles a day. The postman is second with an average hike of 22 miles a day. The typical woman shopper covers slightly more than 8 miles a day, while the average housewife in a year walks a distance equal to a hike from New York City to San Francisco.

Statutes throughout most of the United States governing medical practices provide that no one who is not a licensed physician may practice medicine for gain, but it is also general that a druggist may in case of emergency render medical attention. This places the druggist in the strange position of being authorized by law to give medical aid, while at the same time he is prohibited by law from charging anything for it.

Colors give added realism to strange things and happenings illustrated by John Hix on a full page in The Sunday Post.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

A CREED FOR 1933.

I BELIEVE that the big pickup is right under our noses and that we couldn't help seeing it if we'd put down our telescopes.

I believe the country is through gassing about causes and has abandoned loose conversation as a major aid to recovery.

I believe the people have definitely parted with the notion that they can talk themselves out of a blizzard, outwit a tornado or shadow-box a hurricane.

I believe the idea that we were merely in a temporary backspin and that everything would be all right if we just sat still, hoarded our reserves, deferred the purchase of a clean collar and concentrated on thinking up peppy slogans is dead and done for.

I believe that even the optimists now know the car's collapse was no joke and are ready to get out and push.

I believe the depression will have proved a good thing for the country and that if it had been delayed much longer we would have been so softened up that we wouldn't have rallied from the first punch.

I believe that, despite its hardships, it has cleared our heads and our hearts and given us some new standards worth upholding and some new visions worth following.

I believe the people are so fed up on false predictions, silly prophecies, foolish and irresponsible deductions that they have been doing their own thinking for months and are at last getting the right answers.

I believe America realizes the golden goose has stopped laying eggs and that it's a better long-term policy to stick to regular poultry for a steady supply of omelets.

I believe we have stopped trying to understand depression charts and that this will speed the recovery immeasurably.

I believe the business men of the country have stopped being crystal gazers and are now facing the facts, subtracting correctly and charting their course by an adjusted compass instead of a roulette wheel.

I believe that skating on thin ice has disappeared as a national sport and that even the most daring manipulators are sticking to indoor rinks in their more reckless moments.

I believe the epidemic of cold feet, spinal collapse, whitening of the gills, palpitation of the heart, nightly apparitions, cold sweats and big jitters has passed over the country, and that the average man is feeling in better shape for a fight than he has since the World War.

I believe nobody now retains the notion that prosperity is to be restored by magic powders and a couple of voodoo doctors.

I believe that while the average man is pretty thrifty he is likely to bust out and buy himself a raccoon coat, trade in the old car and begin making inquiries about opera tickets any minute.

I believe that bankruptcy court officials have seen their busiest day and that 1933 will see them with plenty of time to watch the ball games again and take three days off a week for golf.

I believe "Don't sell America short!" was a sucker tip in 1929, but that it is golden advice today.

I believe a change in the administration won't do us any harm and that there is always something about a new pitcher in the box that gives the fans a psychological uplift.

LOOKING AHEAD.

Acting on the rumors that beer will be sold in drug stores, as predicted by some people, Elmer Twitchell has already put in an application for a job as bouncer in an apothecary shop.

Children Perform At Kiwanis Party

Expiration of Hill's Term as President Marked at Raleigh Hotel.

The expiration of the term of Edwin F. Hill as president of the Kiwanis Club was marked yesterday by a "Mother Goose Party" at a meeting in the Raleigh Hotel, attended by the Kiwanians and their wives and children.

Mrs. John S. Bennett impersonated Mother Goose, and children of the Kiwanians took the part of nursery characters. They were, Little Red Riding Hood, Dixie Zirkin; Little Jack Horner, Lewis T. Breuninger; the Owl, Jean Jewell; Jack and Jill, Charles and Jane Schwartz; Micky Mouse, Martin T. Weigand, jr.; Minnie Mouse, Prescott Pardoe; Little Bo Peep, Nancy Joras; the Fairy, Jane Johnston, who also danced, and Little Boy Blue, Micky Lansburgh.

Robert F. Fleming, costumed as an old man, represented the passing of 1932, and Newman Marsh, as a scantily clothed sprite, represented 1933.

Jury Trial Demanded By Man in Liquor Case

Charged with manufacture and possession of liquor, Perry Williams, 21, yesterday entered a plea of not guilty and demanded a jury trial when arraigned in Police Court.

Williams was arrested by Policemen B. F. Day and W. D. Perry in a house in Eleventh street southeast. The policemen said they found a 60-gallon still, 20 gallons of liquor and a large quantity of mash.

GAIETY AND PRAYER ON CITY'S PROGRAM TO WELCOME 1933

Special Rites at Churches; Theaters and Night Clubs Prepare for Crowds.

Glad pandemonium and grave prayer will hold sway in the city as midnight tomorrow ushers in the figurative infant whose birth marks another milestone in the march of the twentieth century.

For the fulsome moment precipitated by the meeting of the hands of the clock at the transcendent hour, the allegorical old fellow who represents 1932 will be the "forgotten man" as his neophyte successor mounts his throne on the top of the calendar.

Church and hotel, night club and private residence will be ablaze and agog with song, dance and hymn as the New Year becomes a reality. Several downtown theaters have announced full-length midnight shows.

The churches again will be faced with the double occasion of Sunday and a great holiday—as they were at Christmas time—appearing simultaneously.

Catholic and Protestant churches generally will hold midnight watch services as well as special New Year ceremonies during the regular Sunday observances.

Watch Service at Cathedral.

At Washington Cathedral a watch service will be in order at midnight.

At the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception in Catholic University special services will be held and the colorful solemnity of the service at the Franciscan Monastery will again be witnessed by many.

The Rev. Francis J. Hurney will preside over a special New Year mass to take place at 5 a. m. at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Eighth and N streets northwest.

Pretentious entertainment arrangements have been made by hotels, night clubs and restaurants. Per plate scales appear to have declined from those of last year.

Special police plans have been made to cope with any rowdyism or other disorder that may attend the celebration of the New Year and the passing of the old.

Revised Schedules.

Street cars and bus companies have revised their midnight schedules to meet the demand for late transportation. Generally, trolley and motor buses will run from an hour to an hour and a half later on all urban and suburban routes.

Open house will prevail at the headquarters of many organizations during New Year's Day. Among such will be open house at the Y. W. C. A. Central Building, Seventeenth and K streets, as well as many of the society's branches. Tea will be served from 3:30 to 5 in the afternoon.

Government workers again will have a three-day holiday. Leaving work this afternoon at the regular hour, they will be free from their desks until Tuesday morning. While stores and business will continue at full swing tomorrow, most large establishments will be closed Monday.

Citizens Group Calls Utility Penalty Usury

Charging such penalties were usury, the Conduit Road Citizens Association last night adopted a resolution asking that the 10 per cent penalty imposed on delinquent customers by the light and gas companies be eliminated. The resolution will be sent to the public utilities commission for its consideration during the present rate hearing.

On the recommendation of a special committee, named to judge the Christmas lights, H. J. Steiner, who won the award last year, again was given the prize for the best decorated home.

FEDERAL EMPLOYE IS SUICIDE BY RAZOR

Daughter Discovers Typist in Veterans' Administration Lifeless.

A razor blade was used by Mrs. Arretta Anne Dennen, 46 years old, to commit suicide late yesterday in the bedroom of her home at 1300 Park road northwest.

Precautions that the blood would not stain the room were taken by the woman, a Veterans' Administration stenographer, who placed her arm in a waste paper basket after slashing her left wrist.

Her daughter, Elaine, found the body when she returned from work. She had left her mother in the morning and a place had been set for her lunch. The body was partly under the bed.

Mrs Dennen had been ill for several months. Three months ago, according to police, she had tried to commit suicide by drowning herself in a bathtub. Then she went on a three-months rest cure in the hope of remedying a nervous ailment.

Last Monday she returned from Trenton, N. J., where she visited relatives over Christmas. She was to have returned to work last Monday.

At first, the police were unable to ascertain the instrument used by her in cutting her wrist. Detective Sergt. John C. Dalglish found a blood-stained razor blade in the waste basket. Mrs. Dennen was pronounced dead by Dr. Darrell Crain, of Emergency Hospital. He said she had been dead several hours.

$5,000 Cook Bequest Received by Howard U.

Receipt of an unrestricted legacy of $5,000 from the estate of the late Dean Emeritus George William Cook, of Howard University, was formally acknowledged yesterday by the executive committee of the Howard trustees. The acknowledgement was sent to his widow, Mrs. Coralie Franklin Cook, and the Washington Loan & Trust Co., coexecutors of the estate.

Dean Cook died in August, 1931, after having served Howard in various official capacities for 58 years. He was also an alumnus of the university, being a graduate of both the college of liberal arts and the school of law.

TRAFFIC TOLL TO DATE.

Apparently very few motorists are paying any attention to the proper adjustment and focusing of their headlights. Dazzling lights are rapidly reaching the degree where they are a menace to the road.

Of the numerous sources of bad accidents, dazzling headlights is one of the worst. This oversight on the part of the motorist is inexcusable in the eyes of the traffic authorities.

It is a simple matter to take your car to a garage and have the headlights focused so that they will not shine into the eyes of other motorists when you ride at night.

	1931	1932
Deaths	78	121
Injuries	3,489	3,700
Accidents	7,934	7,505

"Be Careful!"

FLU DWINDLES HERE; 5 NEW CASES IN DAY

Mt. Rainier's Building Inspector Dies of Pneumonia After Attack.

Only five new cases of influenza were reported to the District Health Department yesterday, bringing the total for December to 184.

Cases reported in Prince Georges County, Md., dropped abruptly to 20 from a high of 49 set Wednesday.

So far this month there have been eleven deaths from the affliction in the District, Dr. William C. Fowler, health officer, declared, and repeated his statement that there was no cause for alarm because the influenza is of a very mild type.

One death in Prince Georges County, that of Frank P. Brown, building inspector, of Mount Rainier, was caused by pneumonia, which followed influenza.

There was a marked increase in cases throughout the entire Nation, according to the United States Public Health Service. This week 127,040 cases have developed, as against 37,777 last week.

The disease is still most prevalent in the South, although all portions of the country have more of it than in the corresponding season last year.

The Montgomery County Health Department announces that there have been 64 cases of influenza, with 1 death from pneumonia reported in the county. Dr. V. L. Ellicott, county health officer and well-known epidemiologist, has issued a statement with directions for sufferers. The Gaithersburg-Washington Grove Volunteer Fire Department has indefinitely postponed its minstrel show scheduled for January 19 because of the epidemic.

Cannon Cracker Found in Automobile Explodes in Man's Face.

When a firecracker explodes in one's face the results are usually disastrous, regardless of the time and occasion—as G. C. Stewart, 43, 407 Seventh street southeast, can attest.

While cleaning out his car at his home yesterday, he found a cannon cracker in his accumulation of excess baggage. Just for fun he lighted the cracker. It exploded in a flash within a few inches of his right ear.

Providence Hospital was unable to ascertain whether the ear drum had been injured. He was advised to go to the Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital.

5,500 TAGS IN DAY ESTABLISH RECORD

Time Will Not Be Extended and 7,000 Owners Seen Without Plates.

The organization of Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer yesterday established a record in license tag issuance when 5,500 sets of plates were obtained by dilatory autoists. The record brought the total issuance to 95,000.

Mr. Van Duzer last night said he expected 6,000 tags would be issued today, and, based on last year's registration of 108,000 cars, it appeared that 7,000 auto owners will be without tags for the New Year holidays.

There will be no extension of time for the delinquents, he said. There is no basis on which to judge how many automobiles have been decommissioned or sold out of the District by their owners because of the depression, he said, although some States have registered 20 per cent decreases in the number of registrations.

More than 500 titles were issued yesterday to automobile owners who came to the District during the past year and who have been driving on their State tags. Likewise, 500 drivers' permits have been issued to the newcomers, who were using State permits which expire on January 1.

About 400 taxicab drivers were given brake and mechanical tests yesterday by inspectors. In order to obtain registration tags, the taxicabs must pass rigid tests. It is possible that 300 or 400 cabs will be out of commission for the holidays because of the delay of their owners in applying for tags. There will be no extension of time after 4:30 p. m. today, according to the Public Utilities Commission and Mr. Van Duzer.

The occasion is a Christmas smoker in honor of the undergraduates of Brown who are residents of the Capital, as well as those who plan to enter the university next fall.

Mr. Adams will discuss the educational trends during the past few years in the universities and the effect of the depression on the privately endowed institutions. Dr. Edwin Dexter, is president of the local alumni.

ANOTHER RATE CUT IS ASKED OF PEPCO BY UTILITIES BODY

Reduction to Take Effect on Feb. 1 Is Proposed Despite Present Litigation.

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday formally proposed to the Potomac Electric Power Co. that another compromise electric rate reduction be worked out for 1933, although a proposed new sliding scale for determining future rates is tied up in litigation.

William F. Ham, president of the power company, last night said he had not received the communication which had left the commission about noon, and he declined to comment on the proposal.

Although the present rates were fixed with the stipulation that they would continue in effect until the termination of litigation over the new sliding scale, the commission pointed out in its letter yesterday that it fully expected the legal proceedings to be concluded before the end of this year. The District Supreme Court has upheld the commission's scale, with some modifications, but the power company has appealed to the Court of Appeals. A decision can not be expected from the latter court, the letter stated, "for several months to come."

Would Take Effect February 1.

Stating that "no such indefinite delay was anticipated when the stipulation was entered into," the commission proposed that the stipulation be amended so as to permit another reduction to take effect February 1. The amount of the reduction would be determined upon the same basis as was done early this year; that is, it would be halfway between the sum that would be made available by the commission's unaltered sliding scale and the amount that would be fixed under the same scale as modified by the District Supreme Court.

Should the power company agree to repeat this compromise division, the letter explained, the commission would be willing to agree that the new rates "should not be disturbed for the succeeding twelve-month period."

Figures Not Available.

No definite figures are available to show how much money would be available under this arrangement, though it is expected that there will not be so much applicable to reduction as there was for this year when $860,000 was agreed upon. Not more than $450,000 may be available for the new year's reductions if the power company agrees to the proposal, although net earnings of the utility for the first ten months of 1932 show an increase over the similar period of 1931.

It is believed, moreover, that the commission will seek to iron out some of the inequalities in the present rate schedules rather than decrease greatly the present initial domestic rate of 3.9 cents per kilowatt hour. Particular attention probably will be given to auxiliary household schedules such as refrigeration and heating.

Relief for Unemployed Is Aim of Fete Today

The Christmas "oan" party of Southeast Community Center will be held this afternoon at 2 in the auditorium of Buchanan School, Thirteenth and D streets southeast. A can or cans of food will be asked for admission and the receipts will be distributed among the unemployed.

Dance and drama groups of the community center will furnish entertainment. The Christmas Story in the form of dance tableaux will be presented by the Friday Night Dramatic Dancing Group of Hine Branch, directed by Miss Evelyn Davis.

Bicycle Rider Hit by Car.

Knocked from his bicycle at New Jersey and Massachusetts avenue northwest by the car of Franklin Sheridan, 24, of 619 Indiana avenue northwest, Clyde J. Hutchinson, 18, of 510 Seward street southeast, yesterday afternoon suffered severe lacerations and bruises.

Grocery Store Looted.

Cured hams, eggs and fresh meats, valued at $150, were stolen from the grocery store of Henry Millstein at 1744 U street northwest Wednesday night by burglars who broke open a rear door.

Fireman Loses Hunting Dog.

Capt. J. B. Key, of the District Fire Department, yesterday reported the loss of a valuable hunting dog. The animal slipped out of its collar near Fourteenth and U streets northwest, Capt. Key said.

Take Office

Inaugural Workers Move Forward for Big Celebration.

A suite of offices in the Washington Building, Fifteenth street and New York avenue northwest, has been engaged by the inaugural committee, which is headed by Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson.

The rooms, which will become a beehive of activity in the months preceding the taking of the presidential oath by Franklin D. Roosevelt, were formerly occupied by the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission.

To begin with, attaches of the inaugural committee said yesterday, about five rooms will comprise the headquarters of the committee. Office quarters for the twenty-odd subsidiary committees will, in some cases, it was said, be scattered around at other places.

All of the executive staff of Admiral Grayson will be quartered in the Washington Building, it was said. Yesterday attaches were looking over the rooms which probably will be occupied next Tuesday.

From these rooms most of the multitudinous details attending the arranging of the celebration of such an important event will be handled.

The inaugural ball, with its attendant problems, will be arranged from the offices, and the innumerable details incident to the inaugural parade also will be handled there.

SIEGAL'S CONVICTION GOES TO HIGH COURT

Lawyer Asks Sentence to 18 Months for Bribery Be Set Aside.

The United States Supreme Court yesterday was asked to review the case of Abner Siegal, former Washington attorney, who was charged with persuading a guard at the District Jail to change the records to show that his client, Vincenzo Damiani, was in jail here at the time when two murders were committed at Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

Siegal asked that the action of the lower courts which sentenced him to eighteen months in the penitentiary for bribing the guard, Harry S. Deane, be set aside.

His contention was based on the argument that the section of the District code under which he was indicted did not apply to bribery of a guard at the District Jail.

Further contentions were that the acts of Deane, under the direction of Col. W. L. Peak, jail superintendent, were not within the scope of his employment or lawful duties; that the District Court of Appeals had wrongly judged that Col. Peak had delegated a part of his official authority to Deane, and that if Deane accepted a bribe of $250 it was not to influence any conduct officially imposed upon him.

Kenneth Hundred, Guilty, Clears Wife

Admits Five Burglaries and Assault Charged in Baltimore Court.

Kenneth M. Hundred, against whom Washington authorities have several charges of grand larceny, yesterday pleaded guilty to five burglary charges and an assault charge in criminal court at Baltimore. He denied that his wife was implicated and charges against her were dropped.

Sentence will be pronounced next Tuesday after Judge Eli Frank receives a report submitted by the medical adviser to the bench, Dr. Manfred S. Guttmacher.

Hundred was arrested several weeks ago in New York at the request of Washington police. His wife was in court yesterday ready for trial. Prosecutors nolle prossed her indictment.

THIRD RELIEF SLASH FACES CAPITAL POOR IF CONGRESS DELAYS

Halbert Reports But $70,000 Left of $450,000 That Was Contributed.

Another slash in the rate of relief being accorded to Washington's unemployed by the emergency relief organization of the board of public welfare will be made next week unless there is definite assurance that an appropriation covering the first half of the calendar year 1933 will be made by Congress the first of January.

This step was decided upon yesterday afternoon by the special relief committee headed by Sidney F. Taliaferro after Leroy A. Halbert, director of unemployment aid, reported that but $70,000 remains of the original $350,000 appropriation and the $100,000 donated by the Community Chest. Only by further cutting the scale of relief can the money be made to last until January 14.

Congress Aid Urged.

The committee today will ask the District Commissioners to present these facts to Congress and urge that the requested relief fund be appropriated at once, so as to prevent further privation.

Starting with a low bare-living relief scale of $4.70 a week for a family of four, the committee three times has been forced to reduce the rate, viz: to $4 and to $3.60. For the remaining three weeks the welfare board can allow only $3.20 for each family, unless the new fund is made available in the meanwhile.

14,000 Applications.

Up until last Saturday a total of $380,052.72 has been expended, of which $356,064.81 was for direct relief. This amount includes $77,341.55 donated by the Community Chest.

To date there have been more than 14,000 applications for relief, but aid is being furnished only about 3,600 and some 400 cases have not yet been investigated on account of the shortage of welfare workers.

Site for Northeast Playground Picked

Will Be Located in Area Bounded by 9th, 10th, F and G Streets.

The National Park and Planning Commission yesterday announced that the new playground for the northeast section of Washington would be located between Ninth and Tenth and F and G streets northeast.

More than two-thirds of the needed land has already been acquired and officials of the commission have stated that they feel confident of getting the remainder without the necessity of condemnation proceedings.

The new playground will serve an area which houses approximately 12,000 children. It will be known as the Northeast Playground and will take the place of the former ground used southeast of the Union Station. This land has been used in the development of the Capitol Plaza. The nearest playground to the new location is nearly a mile away.

Woman Tries Suicide By Taking Poison Dose

Eleanor Defraisse, 28, attempted suicide last night by taking a quantity of poisoning at her rooming house at 1224 Seventeenth street northwest, according to Third Precinct police.

Miss Defraisse, police said, was found in a semiconscious condition in her room by occupants of the house. Dr. R. M. Rosenberg, of 1332 I street northwest, was summoned and, after rendering first aid, ordered the woman removed to Georgetown Hospital, where her condition was declared undetermined.
